REVENUE BILL LAID BEFORE WILSON TO SETTLE DISPUTES

President Is Expected to Tell Kitchin of His Views in Support of McAdoo.

SECRETARY SEES CHAIRMAN

Treasury Insistent on Profits Schedule and Differential Between Incomes.

BEVERAGE TAXES DIVULGED

$6 a Barrel on Beer and $4.40 a Gallon on Distilled Spirits Are Now Drafted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The split of opinion between Secretary McAdoo and Chairman Kitchin of the House Ways and Means Committee over disputed points in the $8,000,000,000 War Revenue bill, reached the point today where it became necessary to lay the matter before President Wilson for consideration.

The reporting of the bill, which is nearing its final stages in committee, has been delayed by the McAdoo-Kitchin differences, which are apparently almost irreconcilable. As a result of the reference of the matter to the President, the latter, who is supporting Mr. McAdoo's contention, is expected to inform Chairman Kitchin of the Administration's views in the matter.

Conferences between Secretary McAdoo and Chairman Kitchin were held today, after which it was announced that the Treasury officials still insisted upon their version of the excess profits and a differential between earned and unearned incomes. There were several imported discussions on the revenue situation which not only appears to be giving concern to the Treasury officials, because of its bearing upon the next Liberty Loan, but is worrying members of Congress.

Secretary McAdoo consulted President Wilson and laid before him a completed draft of the Revenue bill, especially emphasizing the two vital points of difference between the Treasury and the Ways and Means Committee members.

After this confernece the Secretary called in his advisors, R. C. Leffingwell and Professor Adams, head of the Excess Profits Board. It became known late this afternoon that the President had agreed with Secretary McAdoo as to the terms of the excess profits section. It was also reported that the President was in entire accord with the proposal that unearned incomes should be assessed 15 per cent. as a normal tax and that the normal tax on earned incomes should be 12 per cent.

President to Give Views.

The views of President Wilson will be communicated to Chairman Kitchin either by letter or by Secretary McAdoo in a further tax conference arranged for tomorrow.

The two points in controversy, representing the most essential and largest tax-levying possibilities in the bill, involved in Secretary McAdoo's recommendations are:

First—That the taxes on war profits be raised by an 80 per cent. war profit impost, with an alternative excess profit tax, based upon the present terms, of from 20 to 60 per cent.

Second—As to normal tax on incomes the Treasury insists that the normal tax on unearned incomes shall be 15 per cent. and the normal tax on earned incomes 12 per cent.

Chairman Kitchin's conclusions on these two points as tentatively accepted by his colleagues are: There shall be an 80 per cent. war tax, and this alternative excess profits levy: An exemption of $3,000 plus 8 per cent. of the invested capital and these rates: On incomes exceeding the exemptions, and not exceeding 15 per cent. of invested capital a tax of 35 per cent.; on incomes exceeding 15 per cent. and not exceeding 20 per cent. of invested capital a tax of 50 per cent.; on incomes exceeding 20 per cent. of invested capital a tax of 70 per cent.

As to the rates on individual incomes the committees favors 13 per cent. on unearned incomes, and 10 per cent. on earned ones.

Treasury officials expressed confidence that the Ways and Means Committee would finally accept the recommendations of the Treasury Department on these sections. While every effort was made today to prevent the impression becoming emphasized that the difference still existed between the taxmaking committee and the department, there was no offer by the Treasury to accept the compromise offered by Representative Kitchin.

One Treasury official said late tonight that the Treasury's recommendations on incomes would be adopted, and he was confident that if the House did not accept the advice of the Treasury experts on excess profits the plan favored by

President Wilson in High Spirits, Whistles After War Conference

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—President Wilson late today walked to the State, War, and Navy Buildings from the White House and visited Secretary Baker, with whom he remained in conference for more than half an hour. The President seemed in the best of spirits and was whistling as he returned to the White House.

DRAFT BILL VOTE IN SENATE TODAY

Substantial Majority Indicated for Measure Making Service Age from 18 to 45.

EDUCATION PLAN ADOPTED

Open to All Soldiers and Sailors After War—"Work or Fight" Issue Yet to be Decided.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The Senate today agreed to vote on the Man Power bill at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, voting on amendments to be begun at 1 o'clock. Indications tonight were that the measure would be passed by a substantial majority. Debate on the bill tomorrow will be restricted to fifteen minutes for each Senator, with ten minutes additional on amendments.

The bill as passed by the House reached the Senate early today. It was at once substituted for the draft submitted by the Military Affairs Committee. Later the Senate draft was brought before that body as a substitute, so that the Senate amendments could be voted upon in their entirety.

The majority of the Senate is favorable to the provision in the bill making the draft age between 18 and 45 years. Senator Kirby of Arkansas still has his amendment before the Senate to make 21 years the lower limit, but this has met with scant support.

The anti-strike amendment, supported by leaders on both sides, will be fought out tomorrow. The amendment, as offered by Senator Thomas of Colorado, stipulates that any employe in an essential industry who fails to stick to his work shall become subject at once to the draft. Senator Cummins has an amendment providing that disputes be submitted to the War Labor Board, workmen to remain at work until a judgment is given and to abide by the decision of the Board. This will come up tomorrow along with the Thomas amendment.

In urging acceptance of his "work or fight" amendment Senator Thomas expressed the opinion that failure to provide against walkouts in essential industries would be likely seriously to cripple war work.

"We might find our industries at a halt at the most critical time," said Senator Thomas. "We want to be fair to our workmen, but the country's interests come ahead of everything else. This war cannot be won on sentiment. We must see that our war industries are increased, rather than diminished, for the balance of the war."

An amendment offered by Senator Smith of Georgia that the War Department be directed to issue uniforms and equipment to officers at cost was accepted by the Senate. Mr. Smith said officers were obliged to pay extravagant sums for uniforms, in some instances more than 50 per cent. in excess of a reasonable price.

Senator Shields of Tennessee offered an amendment providing that wives of soldiers and sailors serving with the American forces be exempt from civil service in taking Government positions. This was defeated 40 to 30.

An amendment providing for the college education of soldiers and sailors after discharge from service, when the was is over, at Government expense, was accepted 53 to 13. Senators opposing it took the view that the Government would be put to a heavy expense, with too much latitude allowed for waste of Government funds. Those advocating it maintained that young men forced into the draft were entitled, after the war, to complete their education and that almost any expense to which the Government might be put would be justified. In any event, they argued, the discharged soldiers and sailors would be entitled to an education extending up to the period of their service and not exceeding two years, so that the expense would not be extraordinary.

PEKING, Aug. 23.—General Semenoff, in command of a force of Czechoslovaks numbering several thousand, has attacked and defeated a Magyar-Bolshevist force at Motsievskaia, Siberia. The town and many prisoners, including a large number of wounded, were taken.

The work of the Japanese in strengthening the Chinese frontier made the attack possible.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—General Semenoff's opponents in the Trans-Baikal region have withdrawn as a result of the arrival of Japanese troops at Manchuli, according to a Tien-tsin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company. Only 3,000 of the Bolshevist troops remain in that region.

Japanese troops are completing their concentration on the Ussuri front, according to dispatches from Vladivostok. At Engeneuka, sailors, supported by armored cars, attacked the Bolshevist troops in the face of heavy artillery fire and routed them.

The strike at Vladivostok is terminating in a fiasco. The striking laborers have been paid off and Chinese have been substituted for them. At the arsenal shops a serious clash between strikers and non-strikers occurred, but allied patrols intervened. The dispatch says that the Bolshevist fever among various elements of workmen is subsiding.

It is reported that Americans have privately loaned the city of Vladivostok 3,500,000 rubles, taking the tramways as security.

VLADIVOSTOK, Aug. 21, (Associated Press.)—American forces which have been landed here are in camp at the assembling plant of the big American Locomotive Works in the outskirts of the city. They chose this place rather than the Russian barracks, which require much renovation. A large building formerly used for housing employes of a German-Russian merchandising firm has been transformed into headquarters.

The Japanese are established in the Commercial School, which is situated on the bluff overlooking the harbor.

The first hostile engagement in which the troops have been involved occurred four miles beyond Razdolny, a suburb, where an American railway guard, assisted by the Japanese, drove back organized Chinese bandits. The bandit force numbered about 400, and was strongly armed with machine guns and trench mortars. They had threatened to loot Razdolny.

People arriving recently from Khabarovsk report that the Bolsheviki, since voluntary enlistments have ceased, are augmenting their strength by drafting peasants from the Ussuri country. Cossacks and prisoners of war have also been placed in the ranks.

Dr. R. B. Teusler, E. N. Frazar, and Dr. Hall of the American Red Cross are finding that their resources are seriously taxed in caring for the wounded Czechoslovaks and the sick and destitute refugees. There are 20,000 refugees, 4,000 of whom are children, between here and Manchuria station. Bishop Henry St. George Tucker of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Japan, is investigating conditions at Harbin and Hailar. He is accompanied by four American doctors and has enough supplies for the present. Other doctors and nurses are mobilizing at Chang-Chun.

Dr. Teusler has authorized the Harbin Chapter of the Red Cross to supervise the distribution of $15,000 monthly for the care of children. The Red Cross is treating sixteen wounded British and sixty Czechoslovak surgical cases at Harbin.

Negotiations between General Horvath, the head of the Provisional Siberian Government in the East, and the Omsk Government, are virtually deadlocked. An agreement between them has been prevented by the failure of each side to offer sufficient concessions.

German Agents Inventing Allied Atrocities in Russia

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The German progagandists in Scandinavia are circulating legends of "Czech atrocities" in Russia "perpetrated with the consent of the Allies, who are also said to have themselves retaliated for a supposed attack on General Poole by shooting members of the local Soviets. Other favorite allegations are that the British are illtreating Jews in Siberia. In view of the British actions in Palestine and elsewhere this propaganda is making little progress.

ROSENWALD GOES TO CHEER TROOPS

Arrives in France on a Special Mission to Tell Them of Conditions at Home.

SENT BY SECRETARY BAKER

Carries Letters from Governors, Senators, and Others in Nation's Support of Army.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Julius Rosenwald has arrived in Europe as a representative of the American War Department with a commission probably unprecedented in warfare. Wearing the uniform of an American officer, but without title or rank, he is to go among the soldiers, not to give them material things or routine diversions or oratory, but to talk man to man about the conditions at home, about the vocational opportunities that await them when they return, and to assure them of American support and sympathy.

The best official explanation of this unique work is contained in the following letter from Secretary of War Baker:

My Dear Mr. Rosenwald:

I want you to go to France, move around among the American troops and avail yourself of every opportunity to address the boys on the conditions at home, particularly the opportunities in American life as you have observed them in your own successful business career.

It is not unlikely that your chief opportunities will be among the men in the services of supply, of whom great numbers have been deprived of the opportunity of service at the front to render valuable service in the lines of communication, upon which the safety and efficiency of the army at the front depend. You will find them filled with the spirit of service and sacrifice. You will find all our boys enthusiastic, intelligent, and brave. Your special opportunity for usefulness to them will be to take a message from home pointing out how the country appreciates the services they are rendering, and how great the opportunity will be for them to build up business and professional careers at home when once the menace of militarism has been removed from the world.

Carry them as a message from me, or rather from the people of the United States, for whom I venture to speak, to them, this thought: That in a time of universal sacrifice they are having a heroic opportunity and their privilege is to vindicate again in the eyes of the world the wholesomeness and beauty of the principles upon which American liberty is based; that the war will free France and Europe, but, in addition, will free America, and when they have helped to make men free everywhere the blessings and rewards of a finer civilization will be especially theirs to enjoy, since they will have so greatly contributed to its preservation.

Carries a Touch of Home.

With his own personal knowledge of every part of the United States, Mr. Rosenwald is well equipped for his new task. Nothing cheers a soldier more than meeting an American who knows his particular State or town and can talk about it. Giving a soldier in France American tobacco pleases him. Telling him that you remember a store on the corner of the street on which he lives makes him supremely happy. He is immensely delighted to learn that you once went through his village, even if your train didn't stop there, and he hates to say good-bye to you.

In addition to his own sympathy with these young soldiers, his familiarity with their home districts, and his knowledge of the vocational opportunities awaiting them after the war, Mr. Rosenwald has invaluable material for his mission in the shape of many letters for the soldiers written to him by Governors and Senators representing States in all parts of the Union, and a personal message from Charles M. Schwab. He gave me the privilege today of reading these missives, and they sounded so

CLOSING ON GERMAN BASE

French Take Fresnoy to the North and St. Mard, West of Roye.

PRUSSIAN GUARD BEATEN

Division Thrown In Near Juvigny Forced to Withdraw, Leaving 400 Prisoners.

MANGIN REPULSES ATTACK

Has Taken 12,224 Prisoners in a Week—256 Cannon Added to the French Spoils.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 26, (Associated Press.)—Fighting in water up to their waists in the marshes along the Avre and charging the crews of machine guns who served their weapons until killed, the troops of the 3d French Army today took two of the strongest defenses of Roye. They also captured 600 prisoners and took important booty, including a large number of machine guns.

The first attack was upon the village of Fresnoy, two and one-half miles north of Roye, where the Germans had restored the old fortifications of 1914-17, reinforced them with wire, and installed many machine gun nests. After a short artillery preparation, the French infantry stormed the position, rushing the concrete blockhouses and killing the gunners at their pieces.

Fresnoy was one of the centres of enemy resistance around Roye that had held out against previous assaults, and from it the Germans had launched counterattacks in an effort to check the French offensive. Prisoners say the garrison had orders to hold out at any cost. The French attacked from the north and south simultaneously and with such dash that the enemy, although aware of the impending attack, was overwhelmed. Four hundred prisoners, including sixteen officers, were captured in the town.

The village of St. Mard, in the low marshlands of the Avre, south of Roye and also a strong outpost of that town, fell into the hands of General Debeney's men after a violent struggle this afternoon. The Germans had reinforced their old defenses by flooding the ground around their concrete blockhouses with water turned out from the Avre.

The battle opened with a hard struggle for the foot bridges over the river. The Germans tried desperately to recapture the bridges, but were driven off by the French, who fought in water to their waists. At St. Mard, as at Fresnoy, the German machine gun fire was silenced only when the gunners were killed at their pieces.

Roye is now invested from the west, north, and south, and the Germans have but a feeble hold on it. The success of the French today in breaking through the old entrenchments and with the growing British advance in the north increases the threat to the entire Chaulnes-Roye line, which may break at any moment.

North of Soissons, on the extreme right of the French line, the Germans renewed their efforts against the line from Pont-St. Mard to Juvigny during the night. They were not only repulsed everywhere, but the French made fresh gains and occupied Domaine Wood. This added one more serious defeat for the Prussian Guard.

American Airmen Drop 40 Bombs on Conflans; British Again Raid Mannheim and Frankfort

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 26, (Associated Press.)—American bombing machines again raided Conflans Sunday, dropping forty bombs on the railroad yards, despite heavy anti-aircraft fire. All the bursts were well together at the east end of the yards, one causing a big explosion, as though an ammunition car had been hit. The northern edge of the roundhouse also was struck.

German planes appeared as the Americans completed their mission and followed the Amricans back to their lines, but failed to engage them in battle.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Chemical factories at Mannheim and the railway station at Frankfort were successfully attacked Sunday night by the British Independent Air Force, according to an official communication issued tonight.

All the British machines returned safely to their base.

In the bombing of Mannheim last Thursday the Independent Air Force lost seven airplanes. The frank report of this loss has caught the public imagination here. The outstanding feature of the exploit was the heroic determination of the British squadrons. They were heavily attacked as they flew to their objective, they knew that equally stern fighting would await them on their way back, but nothing daunted them. "It takes more than the risk of danger to halt British airmen when they have made up their minds to reach an objective," said one newspaper.

It is pointed out that the Germans were in largely superior numbers and had only to think of fighting, whereas the British had both fighting and bombing to attend to. The odds were all on the German side, but the British aviators reached Mannheim and did their job.

Newspaper editorials point out that the bombing was well worth the risk, for Mannheim is the centre of the great chemical industry, and the raid is believed to have done damage which will compel the German armies, for a time at least, to do without supplies of war chemicals from that quarter.

The British aviators did not suffer without hitting back, the newspapers also point out, for three German fighting planes were beaten down.

Officially it is noted that the Germans are now making most determined efforts to protect towns by concentrating large numbers of fighting machines and anti-aircraft guns. Commenting on the raid, a British air officer said today:

"We suffered losses, but we won a splendid victory. We set out to bomb Mannheim and no German efforts could frustrate our intention."

British Capture of Monchy-le-Preux Gives Them Command of 3 Valleys

Position Stands Right Across the Top of the Old Hindenburg Line—Bapaume, Virtually in Haig's Possession, Reported to be Empty—Attack Sweeps On to South of It.

By HENRY W. NEVINSON.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 26.—Fine and steady as the advance along the whole line of the two armies has been, all other news is thrown into the background for the day by the announcement that Canadians and some other British troops have captured Monchy-le-Preux, five miles west and a little south of Arras upon the Cambrai Road.

The position was famous in the earlier years of the war. Standing as it does right across the top of the old Hindenburg line and marking the extreme British advance in that direction, its importance as commanding not only the valley of the Scarpe, but the Cojeul and Sensée, can hardly be overstated.

Its capture, which took place at 9 o'clock this morning, without strong opposition or great loss, will bring fresh honor to the troops engaged, but no details are known as yet, and though I was at the time within sight of the hill from the ridges above Croiselles, it was five miles away and looked only like a long, dark mound surmounted by stalks of trees.

Besides my whole interest was concentrated upon the situation in Croiselles, where the enemy was still holding out with machine guns on the spot and with artillery probably securely placed behind the main Hindenburg line, which is only about 2,500 yards distant.

However, the recapture of Monchy and the fact that the British are advancing upon Guemappe, a mile south of it upon the Cojeul, is the most important item of news from this front.

As I probably mentioned before, the northern point of the British advance hitherto was Neville-Vitasse, about four miles southwest from Monchy, and the same distance south of Arras. This place itself is well across the head of the original Hindenburg line, and the British now hold it securely.

Coming south and a little east for a few miles one would reach Croisilles early, in peace time, and coming from the west over the hard-fought railway from Arras to Albert and passing through Boyelles and other indistinguishable heaps of ruins I quite hoped to reach it this morning, but it was still in the enemy's hands and his shells were falling at random over the grassy waste of ridges which apparently had never been cultivated, a rare thing in France.

Over the top of the ridge which just concealed the village, machine gun bullets were sweeping in occasional showers, also at random from the village and from behind the Hindenburg line the Germans were evidently endeavoring to check any new attacks upon Croisilles from this quarter. Indeed, they had already checked two, as I heard from men who had hastily dug trenches there—men showing the strain of danger and watching, and sick with mud and dirt and sleeplessness, all the more because rain fell hard at intervals, but quite confident in the success of the advance if the order for it should come.

Close behind me on my right lay the ruins of St. Legère, which were taken yesterday, I think by the Guards. Certainly those splendid troops were engaged in the dashing and bloody action near the ruins of Mory, about a mile and a half further south, and that also was yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock.

The 36th Bavarian Division, good soldiers and freshly brought into line, began violent counterattacks upon the front where the Guards then linked up with another British unit. With a heavy fire of artillery and machine guns they began to force the British backward out of Mory and had made some progress when the Guards fixed bayonets and charged back upon them. Seventy Bavarians were killed by bayonet thrusts, a few prisoners were taken, and the position among the ruins was restored. In this action the King's Company of Grenadiers was specially distinguished.

A little west and south of Mory, upon the main road from Arras to Bapaume, stand the villages of Behagnies and Sapignies, both British now, though only after serious fighting. A mile west of Sapignies is Favreuil, where a battle raged yesterday, since the enemy had here thrown in two new divisions, the 111th and 120th, in hopes of checking the movement round north of Bapaume, from which it is a little over a mile distant.

As they approached the British airmen harassed them with bombs,

BATTLE ON 30-MILE FRONT

British Win Two Villages on Somme and Capture More Prisoners and Guns.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—On a thirty-mile front from the River Scarpe at at a point east of Arras to Lihons, south of the Somme, British troops were in battle today, crossing the Hindenburg line on the northernmost sector of their attack.

The villages of Wancourt and Monchy-le-Preux, which formed part of the famous German defense, were captured by Canadians this morning, and the victors continued their progress to the east of them.

Scottish troops have pushed eastward on the north bank of the Scarpe and reached the outskirts of Roeux, north of Monchy-le-Preux.

Bapaume, gradually being surrounded, is still further threatened by this successful extension of the British attack to the north, not to mention the fact that the Germans have been forced back immediately to the north of the city, and that heavy counterattacks to the south have been utterly broken.

Field Marshal Haig's night bulletin also reports the capture of Montauban and Bazentin-le-Grand, southwest of Bapaume, a little to the west of the highroad from Bapaume to the Somme at Suzanne, which, with Cappy, on the opposite bank, has also fallen before the British attack.

The capture of Montauban represents an advance of two miles in the last twenty-four hours.

These British gains were made in a pouring rain.

More prisoners, heavy guns, and machine guns have been taken by the troops in their advance.

Crushing German Rearguards.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 26, (Associated Press.)—The German retirement is continuing along many parts of the battlefront tonight. The British are overwhelming the enemy's rearguards in heavy fighting.

Reports indicated that at least one counterattack has been broken up by the British artillery concentrating its fire on massed enemy troops.

South of the Scarpe the Canadians, driving along the Arras-Albert-Cambrai road, have gained more ground and added more than 1,000 Germans to the British total of prisoners during today's fighting.

With the battlefront widened by a surprise attack in the north, so that it now extends all the way to the River Scarpe, the British again have made steady progress eastward all day long.

The enemy's resistance, offered in many sectors, has taken on more and more the aspect of rearguard actions — stubbornly fought, but nevertheless rearguard actions.

Haig's Guns Pound Rear Lines.

There are rumors that a counterattack has been developed by the enemy in an effort to gain the time which he badly needs, as his main roads, especially in the centre of the battle zone, which are required for moving material to the rear, have been broken or are under fire from the British big guns, which have been shoved up so that they range far behind the enemy's line.

In many localities the retreating Germans have left strong posts of machine guns supported by single field guns in an effort to delay the advancing British. These field guns have had no effect.

Cappy, a little town just south of the Somme, was lined with machine guns when the Australians, in the middle of the night and during a driving rainstorm, attacked it. A lone field gun from the rear of the town threatened to do some damage until a daring group circled round and crept upon it from the rear and hurled themselves on the gunners, killing them. Then, with the assistance of tanks, Cappy was cleared of the live machine gunners, and the Australians pressed on. About the same time Suzanne, almost across the river from Cappy, fell in somewhat the same manner.

To the north British patrols are now operating with more freedom. Combles, an important position south of Bapaume, has been gradually encroached upon, and the town, through which pass many roads which the Germans must use, is under a hot fire.

Combles is also a logical point for the concentration of troops, and undoubtedly heavy damage has been inflicted upon men and material here.

It is an interesting feature of the battle that the Mametz Wood, which has been taken and passed, was attacked and captured by the same units of Welsh troops which attacked the position in July, 1916.

The attack south of the Scarpe was delivered in co-operation with tanks. These steel monsters rolled through the rain and shot their way through the German first lines almost before the Germans realized that they were being attacked.

North of Bapaume the Germans have been driven further back. According to a report from the front lines the British have reached the Bapaume-Beugnatre road and have established themselves there.

The Germans are making great efforts to hold Bapaume, but the town is gradually being surrounded.

In the south there was new activity. Below the Scarpe the British continued to push forward last night and today. A vicious German counterattack at Eaucourt-l'Abbaye was repulsed with heavy losses for the enemy, while additional prisoners were captured by the British.

South of Bapaume the Germans this morning launched another heavy counterattack. The British permitted them to come up to the trenches and then met them with the point of the bayonet.

More prisoners, heavy guns, and machine guns have been taken in the past twelve hours.

Everywhere from the River Scarpe to Lihons the battle continues today and the British are making progress despite a stiff resistance from the German machine gunners. Astride the River Somme the British have materially advanced their lines.

Despair Evinced in Captured Letters

Many letters taken from prisoners and dead Germans indicate that hopeless despair is beginning to prevail on the German side of the line. A letter written home by a German who was stationed in a town which has now been captured said:

"The war has been lost for some time, only those high up are failing to admit it."

The letter added:

"Oh, poor Germany! Only the dead at the front have forgotten this swindle."

Another letter said: "This cannot last much longer," while still another German wrote: "Our losses greatly exceed all the drafts. Germany is sure to lose very soon."

It is a fact that many letters taken from prisoners, whether written by them to be posted home or received by them from civilians in the interior of Germany, are in the same vein. One German in Berlin chided his brother at the front about making rapid progress to the rear. He then predicted that the war was surely coming to an end, and that, with the Allies then waging an economic war, Germany would be ruined.

Many of these letters were written before the British began their drive.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Aug. 26, (Reuter.)—British troops yesterday took 1,500 more prisoners and made a further collection of guns, trench mortars, and machine guns. Field Marshal Haig's forces swung forward as far as Longueval in their advance north of the Somme.

OUR GUNS BLOW UP AMMUNITION DUMPS

Shelling of German Stores North of Vesle Made Possble by Aerial Observers.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE FRONT, Aug. 26, (Associated Press.)—Several German ammunition dumps north of the Vesle River were blown up today by high explosives from the American guns. This was the only notable incident in the operations between Soissons and Rheims, although the exchange between the artilleries continued.

The destruction of the dumps was made possible by aerial observation by American aviators. They were located near Revillon and early in the day a battery of long range guns began dropping shells at points indicated. The observation posts soon after reported great clouds of smoke from the targets.

An indication of the lengths to which Germany is going for war materials is contained in a letter taken from a dead soldier. It was written by his wife and informed him that the great bronze statue of Emperor William at Luneburg, Pomerania, had been torn down and sent to the foundry to be converted into ordnance, as had also the roofs of churches.

and at the village they were met by a barrage. Then a British unit advanced to the attack and swept the ruins out, capturing 110 men and 5 officers. Bapaume itself is reported to lie empty, but the British make no unnecessary haste about entering the place, which is of little military value. At the moment their line passes just between Bapaume and its suburb of Avesnes, but the town is virtually theirs, or will be if the advance north of it reaches Beugnatre.

South of Bapaume the line interlines slightly west and apparently includes Martinpuich and Pozières, which I saw attacked on Saturday, as I wrote; but I seem to have been mistaken in saying the British had the Bois des Foureaux, so terribly known in past history as High Wood. I understand they have only one corner of it as yet.

They hold Mametz Wood, near the famous position of Contalmaison, which is also theirs, but as I write the Germans are reported still at Montauban, though the British are near enough to shell Combles, three miles further east.

So the line approaches the uplands overlooking the links or loops of the Somme, and on the north, or right, bank of the river the Australians are reported in Suzanne, which is barely nine miles from Péronne, while just across the river the village of Cuppy is now in the hands of other Australian troops. These last-named positions, however, are apparently not quite secured yet, as German posts are believed to be lurking about Suzanne.

Further south within the limits of the British armies I do not hear of any important change, but now their forward movement extends from the Scarpe to the Somme, and south from the Somme almost to Roye, and and extends for close upon forty miles.

In eighteen days the armies of General Byng and General Rawlinson have drawn that line, and I do not know what higher praise soldiers could have.

SOUGHT TO PROTECT THIEPVAL BY FLOOD

Germans Caused Ancre River to Overflow in Effort to Hold the British Back.

By HENRY W. NEVINSON.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES, Aug. 24.—Some say that last night and this morning were the turning points of the present campaign, and, perhaps, of the whole war. An officer of high position, who speaks with knowledge and caution, said in a conversation tonight that the enemy seemed to be cracking. No one need deny that five months ago many German Generals thought the British were cracking, but they have not cracked yet, and there is no doubt that the armies opposed to them here are disconcerted, and that the two British armies engaged along the present battlefront of about thirty miles are pressing this advantage to the utmost.

I need hardly repeat that those two armies are the Third, under General Byng, along the upper reaches of the Ancre, and the Fourth, under General Rawlinson, astride the Somme and south of it to the point of union with the French near Lihons. As the tide of war is running so fast that the advance will certainly have developed at most points by the time of telegraphing tomorrow, I may tonight try to describe just a very small part of the victorious progress I have been able to follow throughout the day, so as to show what happens when the enemy's line seems to be cracking.

I had always desired to see Thiepval, that terrible position, so famous in the old battle of the Somme, and now, since the end of last March, once again in the enemy's hands. So, hearing last night that there was to be an attempt to take it, I went early this morning to Mesnil Wood, overlooking the Ancre from its western to its right bank.

River Flooded by Germans.

The village of Mesnil is, of course, a mere heap of ruins, the wood a group of large sticks partly covered with leaves, the pleasant country house which crowned it a framework of shattered walls; but just at the foot of the hill ran the Ancre, unnaturally broad and flooded, as could be seen from the numbers of trees sticking dismally out from its waters. The Germans, no doubt, caused the flood as a means of defense when they lately withdrew from the western bank. Probably they obstructed the narrow but deep and powerful current at Albert, though some say they flooded both the Ancre and the Somme by breaking down all the locks, which I should have thought would have exactly the opposite effect.

Across the flood the opposite bank also rose steeply, and there, just upon my left, stood the sombre Hill of Thiepval. It rises gradually to no great height, but is dark and gloomy, partly, no doubt, from association, but chiefly owing to fires, shellholes, lines of defense, and relics of the large wood upon its face above the river.

The little village and château which give the name to it lie in a slight hollow, rather behind the summit—of course, in ruins, but above the village down—which rises again still rather higher to the old Schwaben redoubt, which commanded all this blunt curve or angle of the Ancre from Miraumont downward.

From the direction of Miraumont and its neighbors, Irles, Grandcourt, and Beaucourt, came the sound of guns heavily firing, which showed that Miraumont still was strongly held by the enemy, though almost surrounded. The town itself was just hidden by the curve of the river and the northern slopes of Thiepval, but Beaucourt was in sight, and the smoke and dust going up from the country beyond, varied with one great column of fiery smoke where some dump of oil or explosives was alight, proved how resolute was the fighting on both sides.

On my right also, further down the river, I could hear guns evidently firing upon the highroad; running northeast from Albert to Pozières, and so to Bapaume, having the memorable position of Contalmaison close on the southern side before Pozières is reached, but from Thiepval itself there came no sound except when every few minutes a big shell burst beside its wood as though the enemy were feeling for a path by which the British troops and ammunititon might be going up. It was evident that the redoubtable hill had been captured already and was probably empty.

Arras Railroad Destroyed.

Coming down from Mesnil Wood, an officer who accompanied me and I crossed the railway from Arras to Albert and Amiens, which road here runs along the western bank of the Ancre and further up by Achiet-le-Grand. It has been the object of much hard fighting. It is, of course, broken to pieces, the lines torn up, and bridges crushed down across it in a permanent way, owing to the craters of heavy shells and gaps at streams; yet I believe that the industrious sappers could put it all straight in a fortnight, for to put everything straight is the function of that most enviable corps when they are not engaged upon blowing everything up.

Then came the floods and the main stream of the river. A causeway with bridges used to run across here to the opposite village of Autuille, but of course it has disappeared like the village. The only way to cross seemed by wading and swimming, and I have since heard that the British troops, chiefly Welshmen, I believe, did, in fact, cross somewhere there by wading and swimming.

During last night, guided by a brilliant harvest moon happily over the deepest current, we found long and narrow planks still lying, placed there perhaps for the benefit of a Brigadier or Colonel. No one was there now, and as we climbed the right front of Thiepval Hill the silence seemed ominous.

In these situations one can never be sure where the enemy's line remains, and we had no wish to run into it, as I very nearly did at Chipilly a fortnight ago. Besides, after a retreat there are sure to be many odd Germans lurking in shell holes and dugouts; and some of them may think it their duty to take another shot for the Fatherland before they are "mopped up," to use our soldiers' expressive phrase. So we advanced cautiously to the top of the ridge, always resolving to go back at the next point above us, but never going.

After reaching the summit and descending on the other side, we were relieved to meet two or three real British soldiers at last, bringing in a big troop of prisoners, with the self-confident nonchalance habitual to their class. As we went forward we met another troop of prisoners, and then small groups, and isolated men. Over the whole of the next ridge and the valley beyond the Germans were scattered about. They were evidence of an army, or at least of a division, which had lost its cohesion and courageous hope.

Though I was of course unarmed, they made no attempt to shoot me or any one else. If they were fortunate enough to be detected in their hiding places, they surrendered at once, throwing down their rifles and flinging off their equipment, especially their heavy iron helmets, which now are usually camouflaged with patches of brown, yellow, and green paint. They flung away everything except their clothes and a little sack in which the generally carried black bread, bits of meat, soap, and razor. They had thrown away their regulation cowhide knapsack long ago, as it is too heavy for fighting.

Lone Trooper Rounds Up Germans.

I saw one mounted British soldier, who seemed to be prowling around on his own initiative, bring in seven of them in two batches, though he was armed only with a German revolver, without cartridges.

As I understand their language, I could overhear them talking among themselves while they rested and waited for others to be brought in. They complained that they lost their companies through the fault of their Sergeant Major, but were heartily glad to be taken.

One said he was "fed up to the neck with the war" and would never fight again. Another said he would fight no longer in a war for the upper classes and the capitalists; another looked forward to seeing England again, as he had sailed to Southampton and Bristol with his ship. Another, of homely nature, said:

"In her nice little house up on the Oder my mother keeps an empty bed for me, and here I am sleeping in mud and covered with lice."

They belonged to the 330th and 331st Prussian Regiments, but came from various parts of Hanover, Silesia, and German Poland, and other provinces. Three of them complained that they were only just 19 and had been at the front for more than a year. So they went on their way.

We had climbed the next ridge, along the top of which runs the road from Albert to Bapaume, and close in front of us on our left stood the ruins of huts and the railroad which the army once built on the ruins of Pozières. Up the slopes toward a small pyramid where a Pozières windmill once stood, we could see the British infantry advancing in groups, some in files, some in extended lines. They had advanced over Thiepval's almost impregnable position with hardly a check, and Pozières was the next point to fall; but between Albert and Pozières, south of the road beyond Boisselle and Meaulte, the fighting evidently still continued.

Returning to Mesnil, and making our way down the right bank of the Ancre, we entered the ruins of Albert itself. Next to Ypres, it is the most entirely ruined town of considerable size that I have seen. The expensive, but not beautiful, church so long famed for the statue of the Virgin leaning from its spire is now a hopeless ruin of bricks and marble, gaining almost Roman dignity in its fall.

The former officers' club is shattered, the market square is a heap of litter, the whole town is reduced to a mere chaos of timbers, bricks, and stones. Over the ruins shrapnel burst, and sometimes a heavy shell threw up red and yellow dust. The enemy rearguard was protecting his retreat, but his army could nowhere hold on tight. It seemed, as the officer said, that he was cracking.

events further north and south. The great German retreat in this region in the Spring of last year to the then new Hindenburg line took us somewhat by surprise. This time General Debeny and General Humbert are ready to pounce at a moment's notice on the retreating foe.

The Oise front, which, as I have shown, is hardly favorable for a frontal attack, is comparatively quiet, but I found this morning considerable effervescence on General Mangin's front. Here, on the wide, bare heights and in the wooded gullies north of Soissons, the boche is in a desperately nervous condition. It is natural, since we threaten on, the one hand, to turn his position along the Aisne and Vesle, while, on the other, we are within gun range of the once famous hinge of the Hindenburg line between Coucy and the Soissons road in the west end of Chemin des Dames. It is certain the enemy will put up a determined resistance between the Ailette and Soissons and along the Aisne Heights.

In the former sector he is already doing so. Two strong German counterattacks were broken on Saturday in the neighborhood of Montecouvre and at a hill and farmstead east of Bagneux, and yesterday General von Eben sent in the first of the guard, which were severely punished. The French made 600 prisoners during the two days' combat at this point, and greatly advanced their line.

General Mangin's army has made 12,224 prisoners in the last week, including 255 officers and has taken 256 cannon.

The appearance of Austrian infantry, relieving German divisions in the hitherto quiet front of Lorraine, was not needed to prove the decay of the German effectives. The class of 1920 is being incorporated, and the 1921 class is being registered. It is a question, however, whether the decline of the morale in the German Army is not a more serious factor than the lack of numbers.

Counterattack Smashed.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE OISE FRONT, Aug. 26, (Associated Press.)—Violent counterattacks launched by the Germans this morning between the River Ailette, at Mont St. Mard, and Juvigny, north of Soissons, were completely smashed by the French. General Mangin's army is still menacing the German communications between the River Aisne and the Soissons and Laon region.

The French troops are still stoutly holding the positions they have won in this sector, and further gains on the plateau to the eastward in the direction of the Chemin des Dames would put the enemy in another dangerous pocket.

The French at Juvigny are within four miles of the railroad running toward Laon, and they also are within seven miles of the highroad going in the same direction. This highroad joins the Chemin des Dames eight miles away, near Malmaison, the western pillar of the celebrated Chemin des Dames position.

The First Division of the Prussian Guard was brought up yesterday, but it achieved no success. Its first rush gained ground between Pont St. Mard and Orme-de-Montecouve, north of Juvigny. It was obliged to abandon the field soon after, however, leaving a considerable number of dead and 400 unwounded prisoners.

Enemy troops between the Aisne River and the road from Soissons to Chauny are in the same danger as that which threatens General von Hutier's men in the Lassigny salient unless they are able to resist the pressure from General Mangin's troops.

Germans Fail East of Soissons.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—The Germans today attempted a counteroffensive on a large scale against the right wing of General Mangin's army in the region between Vailly and Soissons. The attack utterly failed.

General Mangin's army repulsed the German onslaughts everywhere and in some instances gained ground. The French flung back the attacking troops even beyond their starting points.

23,500 CASUALTIES IN THE BRITISH DRIVE

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The British Third and Fourth Armies suffered casualties estimated at about 23,500 between Aug. 21 and Aug. 25, according to advices from the front. During this same period the German losses in prisoners alone have amounted to 20,000 men in the battle east of the Ancre.

The official correspondent with the Australian forces in France telegraphs:

"The Germans are retreating, fighting rearguard actions. On Saturday night ammunition dumps could be seen burning everywhere.

"About 12,000 Germans have been captured by the Australians alone since Aug. 8, a much greater number than all the Australian casualties."

Official Reports of the Day's Operations

British

LONDON, Aug. 26.

Night Report—At 3 o'clock this morning Canadian, Scottish, and London troops attacked on both sides of the Scarpe River from Croisilles to the neighborhood of Gavrelle. On the south bank of the river Canadian divisions, attacking with great gallantry, passed rapidly through the enemy's foremost defenses and captured the high ground known as Orange Hill in the first rush of their assault.

Despite heavy storms of rain, the Canadian troops pressed on, and at an early hour reached Wancourt and Monchy-le-Pruex.

During the morning the rain ceased. These troops completed the capture of both villages and have made progress beyond them.

Meanwhile, north of the Scarpe, Scottish troops, advancing once more over the ground on which they fought in 1917, carried the German first defensive system south of Gavrelle, reaching the outskirts of Roeux. The chemical works north of Roeux are again in our possession.

On the right of the Canadians and Scottish, London troops, who during the preceding days had fought their way forward toward Croisilles and Heninel, continued their attacks. Although they met with vigorous resistance from parties of German infantry and machine gunners, they have made substantial progress and have completed the capture of the high ground between Croisilles and Heninel. In this new sector of attack many prisoners have been taken by us during the day.

On the southern portion of the battlefront our advance has continued on both sides of the Somme. Australian troops have taken Cappy and have made progress east of the village. North of the Somme they have entered Suzanne.

Further north English troops have pushed forward in the direction of Montauban, and the Welsh troops have captured Bazentin-le-Grand.

On the remainder of the battlefront fighting has taken place at a number of points. Our pressure has everywhere been maintained, and our line has been advanced in certain sectors.

Day Report—At 3 o'clock this morning our troops attacked in the Scarpe sector, and are reported to have made good progress.

On the southern portion of the battlefront we have advanced our line slightly astride the Somme, and by a successful operation carried out yesterday afternoon have made progress in the direction of Maricourt.

Yesterday evening the enemy launched strong counterattacks south and north of Bapaume, in the neighborhood of Eaucourt l'Abbaye and Favreuil. In both localities the attacks were repulsed. North of Favreuil our troops met the enemy with the bayonet, inflicting heavy casualties upon him and taking prisoners.

Another counterattack attempted by the enemy later in the evening in this latter neighborhood was also unsuccessful. Favreuil is in our hands, and we have made progress beyond the village.

North of this point we have improved our position southeast of Mory and west of Croisilles.

Heavy rain is falling on the battlefront.

French

PARIS, Aug. 26.

Night Report—On both sides of the Avre we carried out two local operations which enabled us to occupy Fresnoy-les-Roye and St. Mard, despite spirited resistance offered by the enemy. Prisoners counted up to the present exceed 600.

In the Vosges we repulsed several attempts at surprise attacks.

Day Report—Very vigorous artillery actions occurred during the night in the region of Roye and Beuvraignes, (three miles to the south of Roye.) The artillery fire was also heavy between the Ailette, Oise, and Aisne Rivers.

Two German surprise attacks in the Vosges sector were without result, and we took prisoners.

The night was calm on the rest of the front.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 26, (via London.) —Day Report.—There have been forefield engagements near Bailleul and north of the Scarpe. West of Croisilles, enemy attacks were held down by our fire.

On both sides of Bapaume the enemy continues his attacks between St. Leger and Martinpuich. It was his intention to break through our frontier by bringing strong forces of infantry and tanks into action.

Where the enemy was repulsed under our fire or by counterattack fresh forces constantly renewed the attack. The enemy penetrated our lines running west of Mory and west of Bapaume to Martinpuich. North of Bapaume local preparations and our reserves brought the enemy to a standstill on the eastern outskirts of Mory and Favreuil and west of Bapaume. Further attacks collapsed before these lines.

Southwest of Bapaume the enemy advanced on Gueudecourt, between Thilloy and Flers. Prussian reserve regiments and marine infantry in powerful counterattacks threw him back on the Thilloy-Martinpuich line. Both places were recaptured.

During the afternoon the enemy worked up to our line Bazentin-Le-Petit-Carnoy-Suzanne, which had been withdrawn from the Ancre front. Strong attacks launched in the evening between Carnoy and the Somme were repulsed. South of the Somme, after several assaults, the enemy established himself in Cappy and Fontaine-les-Cappy. On both sides of the Roman road (Amiens-Vermand) we beat back his attacks.

well even in comfortable Paris that I know they will be godsends at the front and up and down the long lines of communication back of the front.

If, despite cable tolls, we report every time the Kaiser condescends to declare Gott his associate, it is surely worth while to transmit a word or two of these messages of American statesmen asking God's blessing on the American soldiers. Don't read them as if you were sitting comfortably at an American breakfast table or in your own Town Hall, where you take your Governor and Senator as a matter of course. Try to imagine yourself marooned in some French village, the name of which you can't pronounce, in a supply service wishing you were up at the front where some get killed, but where some win the Cross of War. Under those circumstances a familiar letter even from a fellow against whom you voted is a welcome message.

Extracts from Governors' Letters.

Below are only short extracts from a few of the many long letters. First are letters from the Governors:

Capper of Kansas—"Your years of war shall not be years of waste in your lives. Your places are ready for you when you return. Your loved ones are cared for while you are away."

Burnquist of Minnesota—"The folks at home are working, saving, giving, and going the limit to back you up."

Phillip of Wisconsin—"All is well at home. We have bumper crops, enough to feed all our own people and a big surplus to spare. We miss you very much. We shall welcome the great day when your work is completed and you return to Wisconsin in triumph."

Henderson of Alabama, who forgets that he is a Governor, and writes like a father or a mother: "Things at home are the same as when you left except for the absence of yourselves, who are so dear to us. But there are no complainers. Both in the homes and kitchens here at home is the same spirit of loyalty and determination that you show in France.

Last week we had our first taste of victory since you got there, but we must not let it slack us in preparations for the big final victory. May Almighty God preserve and protect you and lead you to that victory."

Milliken of Maine: "We are doing everything we can for the welfare and comfort of your families while you are away."

Lowden of Illinois: "No Illinois man will lose his life in vain by the war."

Norbeck of South Dakota: "Your State sends you greetings. I inclose copies of the special laws which South Dakota has enacted to protect your interest while you are away."

Townsend of Delaware: "Whisper to them of our prayers for their return when and only when their great cause is truly and permanently won."

Frazier of North Dakota: "We are solidly behind you, not only during the war, but after you return to your pursuits of peace."

Withycombe, Oregon—"The American boys now in France will be the great men of the future in the United States."

Edge of New Jersey—"Your State rejoices at the fact that you are part and parcel of a great army taken suddenly from peace, but able to push back the Huns raised on the sword and cannon."

Brough, Arkansas—"This State has unbounded faith in your ability to lick the Huns."

Holcombe, Connecticut—"When you return this State will belong to you."

Houx, Wyoming—"Your State glories in the fact that in helping to bar the Huns from Paris you showed the same indomitable spirit as the French at Verdun."

Keyes, New Hampshire—"We appreciate what you are already doing toward accomplishing the grand result in which the final winning factor will be the American Army."

Messages From Senators.

Following are extracts from a few similar letters to Mr. Rosenwald from Senators:

Borah of Idaho—"The last few days have been proud days for all Americans. Our soldiers have revealed the American character to the world and have justified the faith we have always had in our kind of Government. That men could be taken from the vocations of a peace-loving nation and in so short a time and with such hurried training meet with such endurance, valor, and success the most thoroughly trained soldiers in the annals of war is one of the marvels of the world.

"As that splendid courage has been displayed upon the enemy's own chosen battlefields and as the news has come back laden with reports of united and individual daring, you could feel the bonds of national unity tightening and the spirit of national pride and purpose growing stronger day by day. Please say to these soldiers that language is inadequate to express our gratitude and pride."

McCumber, of North Dakota—"Assure the soldiers that five millions more are back of them in the field to make victory complete, to win reparation for all the crimes against innocent countries, to make such a hideous war evermore impossible."

Williams, of Mississippi—"Tell my Mississippians that they are battling for the most precious thing in the world—civilization. I don't have to tell these Southern soldiers to remember their fathers. They cannot forget them. We are using such wisdom as we have in our poor gray heads putting down concealed enemies here while the troops fight the open enemy there."

Smoot of Utah—"You are not fighting a British, French, or American war, but a war for liberty and justice. Behind you are 30,000,000 fighting Americans ready to die in the same cause."

Owen of Oklahoma—"America is organizing herself down to the individual home in every school district to support you in the field."

Wadsworth of New York—"We are with you through thick and thin."

Gronna of North Dakota—"North Dakota is proud of all her soldiers and their unselfish sacrifice for liberty, our undivided support and every dollar is at command for their victory. Give my greetings to all, including my son, if you happened to see him. He is a Lieutenant."

Lenroot of Wisconsin—"We no longer say that we must win or will win the war, but we say we are winning. There are 4,000,000 more ready to help you drive the enemy to Berlin."

Warren of Wyoming—"No words can express the feelings in my heart for every man there, from son-in-law Pershing down to the newest recruit in the service."

Schwab Tells of Ship Progress.

Charles M. Schwab's message to Mr. Rosenwald is:

"Tell the boys in France that we read with wondering eyes of the marvelous feats they are performing at the front, our hearts are overflowing with patriotic enthusiasm and gratitude for the unswerving stand they are making in the cause of liberty. We are with them in every possible way. Devoting all our energies, we will make all sacrifices, however great, that they may be provided with food, ammunition, and other supplies.

"Ships are coming out now at an undreamed of pace. The launching on Aug. 5 at Hog Island will start our big gun, which is a mile of ships, and will shoot many times each month.

"God be with them. May they return covered with the glory of magnificent deeds, which, after all, is only in keeping with American traditions. Good luck and a safe voyage to you."

Ex-President Taft wrote: "They are offering their lives in the cause. We must win if the lives of any of us are to be worth living."

SPAIN'S STAND PUTS BERLIN IN DILEMMA

Fear of Yielding to Madrid on U-Boat War Without Placating Other Neutrals.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 26.—Relations between Germany and Spain appear to be causing not a little discomfort in Berlin. I learn from a most reliable source that the situation is looked upon as serious, and that the German Government's reply to the Spanish representative is couched in much stronger terms than the semi-official statement would suggest.

Today the Vorwärts, dealing with the situation, says it is not merely a matter of Spain's neutrality, but of that of all Latin America.

"If Spain abandoned her neutrality," it says, "that would be the greatest political triumph the Entente could win. A wise and conciliatory policy on the part of the German Government is necessary."

The Vorwärts rejects the idea that Entente propaganda is behind the Spanish representations, and adds: "The Spanish Government was forced to take the step it did by the U-boat warfare. The first move has been made with all the usual international politeness, but after the first step has been taken it is difficult for any Government to draw back. If Germany refuses to meet Spain, the Madrid Government will be forced to take further steps. We demand that the German Government shall not force this neutral State into the ranks of our enemies and so fully complete the world coalition against us."

The journal concludes by asking the advocates of restricted submarine war to show how Germany can steer clear of this fresh complication. The great fear of the German Government appears to be that if it yields to Spanish demands it will create a precedent which other neutral powers, especially Holland, will not be slow to take advantage of. For Germany could scarcely deny to Holland and Norway any particular "favor" she might grant to Spain.

HONOR POST FOR OUR MEN

Foch Believed to be Holding Them as Shock Troops for His Final Offensive.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—"Two fine days for the British," sums up the opinion of Paris this morning on the manner in which the armies of Generals Byng and Rawlinson are taking their revenge for the trick the Germans played them at the beginning of last year by their sudden retreat back to the Hindenburg line, and especially for the losses the enemy caused them by his tremendous drive against Amiens last March.

The British, as Paris expresses it, were merely serving their apprenticeship to victory last year, and had to suffer all the disappointments and disillusions of a novice. Now, however, as their magnificent work of the last months has shown, they are fully accomplished craftsmen. Their second conquest of the bloodstained fields of Picardy will have no painful sequel except for the boches.

"We used to say that it takes five years to make a soldier," said a French officer to me this morning, "but the British have shown us that they have created a magnificent army running into millions of men in far less time."

Owing to the excessively late arrival here of the British night communiqué, of which more than one journal complains this morning, public comment on yesterday's victorious advance is necessarily somewhat meagre. Among the public, however, the enthusiasm evoked by the British success is wholehearted and unbounded.

Preparing for the Grand Attack.

The fundamental difference between the British offensive of last year and the present one has not failed to receive attention. It is pointed out that in 1917 the Somme was the sole terrain of the offensive, whereas now it forms only a single portion of the great general battlefront. The extension of the battlefront, which has been so admirably carried out by the British, continues in a great series of co-ordinated operations, which appear to have as their objective the spreading out of the whole of the German armies into one long and comparatively thin line. Once they have been forced by Foch's present tactics to assume this position, the ground will have been fully prepared for a great general attack by the Allies, that will have for its principal object a smashing blow that shall pierce the enemy battlefront at a point where it is found to be weakest and throw the masses of his troops, after being divided in two, back upon themselves in hopeless confusion to the right and the left.

From that point, with the allied armies intact, all that will be left to do will be to administer a coup de grace to the broken and battered German formations.

The development of the battle so far indicates that this is what Foch is aiming at. Ludendorff's method of defense has been to mass his men in depth to meet the various allied attacks. Foch, by increasing the rapidly lengthening battlefront, has forced the German reserves to be thrown successively in sector after sector. On the principle that a hedge is much easier to cross than a forest, Foch, with each successive prolongation of the battlefront, is steadily transforming the German forest into a hedge.

When the enemy has been forced to use up all his forests to build a hedge—and the process is now well advanced—Foch's moment for the great general offensive will have come.

Haig's beautifully articulated manoeuvre, as it is termed here, is exactly similar to that which freed Montdidier, further south. Unqualified praise is bestowed by the French experts on the British commanders and their General Staffs for having conceived, and later carried out, "this fine manoeuvre," and on the troops "who, in very difficult country, are dominating and beating the enemy resolved to defend his positions foot by foot."

"Saturday's work," writes Maurice Hutin in the Echo de Paris, "which proved once again the splendid tenacity and will to conquer of all the children of Britain and her dominions, did honor to our allies."

Experts here especially admire the tactical progress adopted by Byng and Rawlinson. During the last two days, it is pointed out, their line never ceased to form a series of salients and re-entrants which have disappeared successively in order to form new concavities and new convexities as the line was being gradually advanced eastward.

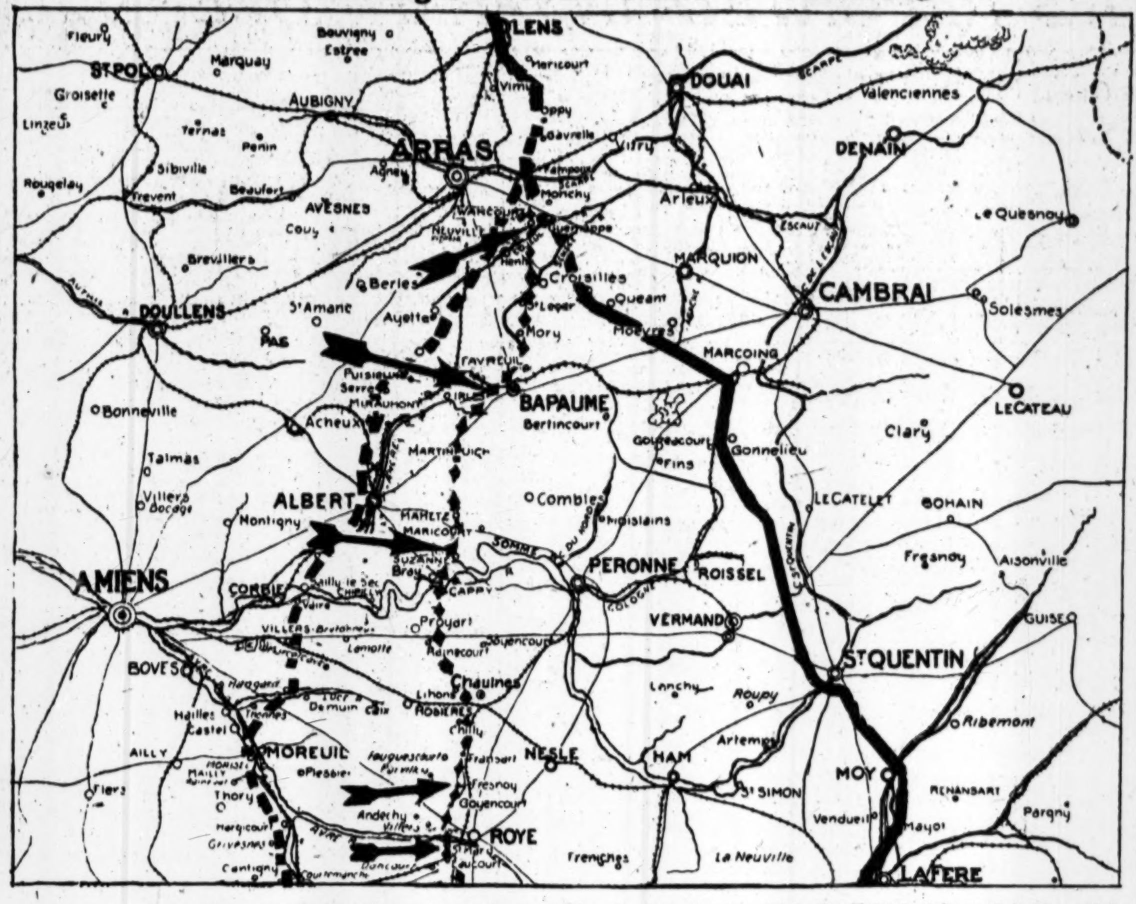
Successive Flanking of the Foe.

Today, the third day, the line presents the same contours. Every time powerful and solidly defended positions are encountered the British Generals, avoiding the heavy losses that would result from a frontal attack, direct their efforts against the less formidable positions to the right and left, and thus transform the more dangerous centres of resistance into fresh salients which can later be pinched out by enveloping them from the north and south.

As the battle develops the fundamental difference between the German and the allied methods is becoming daily clearer. All the great German offensives aimed at creating huge salients in the allied lines, as bases for future offensives. Foch on the other hand, by reasoned and progressive extension of the battlefront, has pinioned down the enemy reserves in sector after sector and deprived them of the liberty of manoeuvre, while his own forces are free to advance on one section of the front after another, steadily strengthened by the constant flow of American reserves. No dangerous pockets or salients are being created which may lead to disastrous flank attacks such as that which crumpled up the Crown Prince's armies on the Marne, and everywhere the Allies are steadily and surely advancing.

The fact which gives especial satisfaction here is that so far, with the exception of a few special units, the American Army, whose organization was recently formally announced, has as yet taken no part in the battle of the Somme and the Oise. The allied high command, as one Paris military critic points out, has therefore at its disposal the magnificent mass of fresh reserves who daily are increasing in number, and who will constitute the shock divisions of the allied armies the day when Foch shall give the signal for the offensive that will bring the decisive victory. The present brilliant operations of the French and the British are preparing the final blow, which will be confided to the American legions. Such tasks, it is recalled in Paris, were always confided by Napoleon to the elite of his troops.

Scene of Anglo-French Gains of Yesterday



Arrows indicate points at which gains were made yesterday in the attacks which the British delivered in the neighborhood of Wancourt, Bapaume, and Suzanne, and the French at Fresnoy-les-Roye and St. Mard.

Southwest of Bapaume the British captured the villages of Montauban and Bazentin-le-Grand.

The diamond-dotted line represents the front as it stands today; the solid black line at the right the Hindenburg line, and the broken line at the left that from which the British launched their August attack.

The War Situation

By THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

With the collapse of the German defensive along the line of the Ancre River the British task in this immediate sector approached its end. For the reasons which were explained yesterday this line had to be driven back before any material progress dared to be attempted elsewhere. But this was only a short stretch of line on a very long front. It was only a short link in the long chain which the allied high command is forging about the main German positions. The basic plan behind all of these movements is a huge envelopment of two flanks widely separated. One is well to the north—just below Arras. The other rests at Noyon. The French, as will be noted later, have accomplished all of the preliminary steps of their part in this plan. The British are well on the way to the achievement of theirs. Bapaume must go. The British line must be pushed even to the east of this important crossing. And with every yard of British advance the German position will become more and more disturbing.

Germany is not looking ahead with any great pleasure to a retirement. Her leaders would like to remain where they are until weather conditions are such that they could pull back their lines without the possibility of quick pusuit. They have never since the war began faced a retrograde movement under the conditions which now prevail, and they are not anxious to try the experiment.

The British, on the other hand, have every intention of forcing the movement if it is possible to do so. It was in furtherance of this purpose that an attack was delivered yesterday to the north along the valley of the Scarpe. Just how far it can be pushed is at present doubtful. It is distinctly to be noted, however, that in making this thrust which took the towns of Monchy le Preux and Wancourt, the Canadians have crossed the famous Hindenburg line and have passed at least a mile beyond it. This is a distinctly notable feat, from which considerable results may eventually follow. It is the first time since the allied offensives started that the original line from which they began their retreat has been reached. The news of this engagement is scanty, as the first news of a British offensive always is. But considerable progress has been made in a direction which is most embarrassing to the German command.

At the same time the British in the south have advanced their line beyond Montauban, a movement which if it continues will divide the long front on which the British are operating into two small enveloping operations, one north and one south of the Somme.

On the French front the fighting has died down to a point of relative quiet. Except for vigorous artillery action and some infantry fighting west of the Oise bend and in the vicinity of Roye the last two days have brought nothing of interest. As a matter of fact it would appear that the end of the French offensive along the Oise front has been reached. There is very little likelihood that Foch will try to drive against the river. The barrier is too strong to risk such an engagement. The losses would be very heavy and it is not altogether clear at present how they would be justified. Again it must be remembered that much of the allied success has been due to new tactics in which the tanks played quite an important role. Tanks cannot cross the Oise without suitable bridges, and such bridges are difficult to construct under artillery fire. While the German armies have been badly shaken and in some places torn to pieces they are not in a panic or in a rout. They are still fighting desperately and are still capable of effective resistance. It is therefore probable that along the Oise at least Foch will be content for the present with what he has already taken.

Between the Oise and the Aisne, however, we may still witness some heavy fighting. Between these rivers there is a plateau shaped like the letter 'Y.' The stem runs from the Soissons-Laon Railroad, between Vauxaillon and Neuville to Juvigny, where the fork begins. One branch runs northwest and the other southwest from Juvigny, the dividing line being a small ravine. The French are gradually, by very small steps, pushing along both branches of this plateau and are approaching the stem. When the end is reached, the German line to the east must be readjusted.

Except on this plateau, then, we need not look for material French operations. Foch's object seems to have been pretty thoroughly accomplished, however. About the southern end of the line he has thrown a loop which will ever be a threat of a dangerous flanking move. On the north the same thing is in progress. The actual springing of the trap which is to complete the envelopment of the line may well wait until a little later. The most difficult part of the problem, as far as Foch is concerned, still lies ahead. The terrain is all heavily against him, the natural obstacles much more important. He will need his strength for this part of his test.

GERMANY FEARS DISASTER.

Several Newspapers Hope Hindenburg Line Will Stop Allies.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Dull apathy is giving way to intense anxiety, according to reports from Berlin received at The Hague, says The Daily Mail correspondent in the Dutch capital. News for reassurance and several papers pin their faith on the Hindenburg line.

The Cologne Volkszeitung, a leading Catholic exponent of annexations, denounces the "wiseacres" and whoever had been so foolish as to believe that there were no war aims outside Germany.

"Germany is no longer fighting for Belgium or Alsace-Lorraine," the paper says, "but for its sheer existence. A great battle is going on. It is a battle upon the glacis of the fortress called Germany. We stand alone and have no help to expect from any one."

French Radicals Urge Realization of President Wilson's Plan.

PARIS, Aug. 26, (Havas.)—The Executive Committee of the Radical Party at a meeting yesterday adopted a resolution in favor of a society of nations, as outlined by President Wilson.

The party will urge its member in the French Parliament to work for the realization of such a plan.

CZECHS APPEAL FOR SPEEDY HELP

in Central Siberia before it is too late to be of real service to them and to Russia was emphasized late tonight when it became known that they are making an impressive appeal for help.

Friends of the Czechs in Washington have received information that the acting Foreign Minister of the Czechoslovaks at Amoy has issued an appeal to hasten the aid that has been assured them by President Wilson and the Entente Powers. In this appeal he describes those of the Czechoslovaks forces who are in Central Siberia as being hopelessly outnumbered by a combination of Austrian and German prisoners and Russian Red Guards, and as being inadequately supplied and almost in despair. Unless aid reaches them within six weeks it will be too late.

There are two main groups of Czechoslovaks in Siberia. There is an eastern group at and around Vladivostok, to which point the American and Japanese Governments have already sent troops. This group is not in any immediate danger. The two American infantry regiments of regulars and the Japanese forces already landed there are able to care for and aid this group.

The second, and by far the larger and more important group, stretches along the Trans-Siberian Railway all the way from Irkutsk, on the western shore of Lake Baikal, to Samara in European Russia. This group is in possession of Tomsk, Omsk, Scheljabinsk, in Siberia, and Uza and Samara in European Russia. The distance between Tomsk and Samara is 1,675 miles and the ability of the Czechoslovaks to seize these long stretches of the Trans-Siberian Railway has been one of the amazing epics of the war.

These are the Czechoslovak units which it is vitally important to aid. They are, according to information received here through authentic channels tonight, almost in despair of receiving soon enough—the aid that has been assured them. Most important of all is represented to be the need to furnish aid to the Czechoslovak forces at Irkutsk. It is declared to be highly essential to establish a juncture between the Czechoslovak forces who control the railway for a short distance west of Vladivostok and those who are at Irkutsk and west of that point.

This is declared to be extremely vital because the bulk of the armed Austrian and German prisoners of war who have been operating in association with the Red Guards and other forces of the Bolshevist régime are in the region between Lake Baikal and Vladivostok and around Chita, which is near the point from which the Trans-Siberian Railway branches down through Manchuria to Harbin and Vladivostok.

It is feared that unless very definite and precise military steps are taken to circumvent it, these Austro-Germans, balked at moving toward Vladivostok, and taking advantage of the fact that the Siberian Winter will be along inside of six weeks, may move westward from Chita toward Irkutsk in an effort to take advantage of the plight in which the various detachments of Czechoslovaks would find themselves, lacking, as they do, guns, ammunition, and clothing.

Should this assistance not reach them in less than six weeks, the movements of the Czechoslovaks west of Irkutsk will be in danger of collapse. Then, it is apprehended, it would be possible for the Austro-Germans who are leading the Bolshevist forces to wipe out the Czechoslovak forces around Irkutsk, and retire westward along the Trans-Siberian Railway toward European Russia, destroying the railway as they retreat and massacring the Czechoslovak detachments as they go.

How this situation will be met is a problem for the military authorities, but it is said that in order to deal with it effectively it will probably be necessary to send more Entente troops into Siberia than were contemplated at the time the United States and Japanese Governments reached their agreement for sending an expedition to Vladivostok.

Acting Secretary Polk's recent formal announcement of this Government's position and purposes stated that the United States Government had proposed to Japan and that Japan had consented "that each of the two Governments send a force of a few thousand men to Vladivostok, with the purpose of cooperating as a single force in the occupation of Vladivostok and in safeguarding, as far as it may be, the country to the rear of the westward moving Czechoslovaks."

The information reaching Washington friends of the Czechoslovaks, describing the situation of those in Central Siberia as being such as to require a speeding up of the program for aiding them, is of such a character as probably to require a reconsideration of the original plan, with a view to taking additional steps to meet the situation.

There is now a chance to aid those Central Siberian groups of Czechoslovaks, it is asserted, which may slip beyond the grasp of those now in a position to do it if the opportunity is seized, but which, if lost, will set back the whole fine movement for aiding them and at the same time serving the Russian people and delivering them from their present desperate circumstances.

SAYS TROTZKY ARMY IS AGAINST GERMANS

Ransome Also Avers Red Chiefs Are "Uncompromisingly Opposed" to Them.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Arthur Ransome, who while in Russia was in the confidence of the Bolshevist leaders and was the principal medium for the transmission of their views abroad, telegraphs to The Daily News from Stockholm under date of Saturday:

"I had a long talk today with M. Usenius, who was the official representative of the Red Finn Government at Stockholm. Usenius is a Social Democrat member of the Finnish Metal Workers' Union, and spent two years in America. He, like most of the metal workers, was opposed to the armed revolt in Finland, but bowed to the will of the majority and did not shirk the responsibility when it became inevitable. I asked him about the Red Finns' attitude toward the Allies at Murman and toward the Soviet Republic. He said the newspaper stories here about the Finnish leader Rahja, who is alleged to have taken 10,000 Red Finns to Murman, are extremely inaccurate.

"'Comparatively few Finns,' he said, 'have gone north from Petrograd, but great numbers have retreated out of Northern Finland and are escaping across the frontier. After suppression of the revolt they have joined forces with the English in the north, believing the English could help them against the Germans and White Finns. That, of course, was before the Allies had taken definite steps against the Soviet Republic. When it became clear that the Allies were opposed to the Soviet, Rahja tried to withdraw the Red Finns from Murmansk. The Finnish Social Democrats at Petrograd issued a declaration that no Finns should help the Allies, who opposed the Socialist Russian Government.'

"I asked whether Rahja brought away many. Usenius replied: 'A good number, but the majority remained, believing that only the English can help them.'

"Red" Finn Means Bolshevik.

"I asked him to define the 'Red' attitude to the Soviet Government. He said:

"'We can be convinced that no other, even the Socialist parties in Russia, should they come into power, would have given Finland real self-government, and that is what we want. We are neither for the English nor for the Germans.'

"I next referred to a conversation I had with Tokoi, the Finnish leader in Moscow, when Tokoi emphasized the fact that the Red Finns were for the Bolsheviki. Usenius replied:

"'That is so, and Tokoi, an older man, finds it more difficult to sympathize with the doings of the Extreme Left.'

"He then referred to Akselrod's and Roussanoff's proposal to send an International Commission of Inquiry to investigate the doings of the Bolsheviki. He said the Swedish Social Democrats were agreed on condition that all other parties should take part. He complained that they did not say how many or what countries were to be represented, and added that the scheme, in any case, was wrong, because it began by assuming that the prisoner was guilty.

"'Our business as Socialists is to help, not to criticise,' he added.

"That sentence, I think, pretty well expresses the attitude of the Finnish Reds toward the Russian Republic. I then asked him what he thought of the possibility of war between the Allies and Finland. Usenius said he did not believe in it.

Doubts Finnish Army Will Fight.

"'The Finnish Army,' he said, 'consists of very few men, and they are not yet in condition to be forced to do what it does not want. It does not want to fight. Food conditions in Finland also are bad. In the north frosts have ruined the potato crop, and done much damage to corn. The position in Finland is difficult enough without war. Therefore, it is unlikely that the Finns will take any initiative.

"'On the other hand, the communications are so bad that any serious attempt on the part of the English to drive the Germans out of Finland is unlikely, because that would need preparations on a vast scale, and the attempt could only become serious if Petrograd were in allied hands, so that the Allies could threaten the Southern Finnish Railroad.'

"I asked what he thought of the possibilities of German initiative, and if he knew of their preparations north of the Gulf of Bothnia, where they made a regular base of the harbor at Kemi, near Torneo, and at the old railhead at Rovaniemi, whence it is reported they constructed a railway running to Lake Enare. He said:

German Plans and Difficulties.

"'We have no precise information on that. We do not know what sort of a railway has been made, but we do know that the snows are such that in Winter it is almost impossible to keep it clear. The German object is to develop northward to Petchenga, but I think it likely at present that they will simply use the English presence as an excuse that they want to take away wood, of which there is a great quantity.

"'In the more southerly sections there is, of course, a good road to Rovaniemi and Onari; it is good only in certain seasons. Besides this line runs parallel with the Murman Railway, and suggests preparation on a parallel front. The distance between the two is very great, and the country is such that it would be very difficult for large bodies of troops to get within fighting distance of each other. Also events on the western front seem likely to make it impossible for the Germans to spare a large number of troops necessary for any serious arctic operations.

"'Hence, perhaps, the German urgency in trying to force on the preparation of the Finnish Army. They are even going so far as to issue Finnish newspapers with the object of the Prussianization of Finland and the creation of a military spirit. I have myself seen selections from this propaganda, some of which consist of an elementary kind of essay on the perfect soldier.'

"I asked Usenius what attitude the Reds would take in case, in spite of all, there should be war. He said that if many Social Democrats were forced into the Finnish Army they would probably be neutral. I asked whether there was any probability of a fresh Red rebellion. He said:

"'None whatever while the Germans are in Finland; unless there is a German revolution. Then probably the Reds would return from Russia and find help actually in the new Finnish Army, which contains many conscripts who are unsympathetic with the Whites and openly say they would be glad to learn the use of arms because of future possibilities.'

Germans Active in Gulf of Finland.

"Activity has been renewed by the Germans in the Gulf of Finland. A steamer with a safe conduct from the Germans was arrested by a German destroyer on the way to Reval and made to return to Bjorko, where it found the German battleship Kolberg and a fleet of trawlers. This report should perhaps be set beside one of a few days ago, when the Finnish shore batteries fired fifty shots at Russian boats that were mining the Finnish waters near Petrograd. The feeling in Petrograd for some days has been that of expectation of a German attack.

"Even should there be persons in favor of inviting help from the Germans, there can be no question about the attitude of the Executive Committee, which has uncompromisingly opposed any sort of collaboration with them.

"The feeling of the people is extremely anti-German. Steady propaganda has been carried on by the Soviet leaders during the last six months, never losing an opportunity of explaining both the abominable and temporary character of the Brest-Litovsk peace and never losing an opportunity of exposing all the misdeeds of the Germans in the Ukraine, which are now bearing fruit; and I am definitely informed that the Red army which Trotzky has created is definitely anti-German."

RUSE BY TROTZKY FAILS.

Tried to Pass Off as Jaroslav Prisoners Men Arrested in Petrograd.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Recent reports that both Moscow and Petrograd had been virtually abandoned by the principal Bolshevist leaders appeared to be confirmed by information reaching the State Department today from Sweden.

The report stated that the information had been supplied by a personage, identity not disclosed for diplomatic reasons, who had just arrived at Stockholm from Petrograd, which city he had left as late as Aug. 13. He also repeated the reports that have been current in Petrograd and denied that Nicolai Lenine, who had been serving as Bolshevist Premier, had gone on board a battleship at Kronstadt, and that Minister of War Leon Trotzky had boarded the yacht of the late Czar Nicholas II. a little below Petrograd.

According to the dispatch to the State Department, this informant also said that a meeting was recently held at Kronstadt in an effort to induce the soldiers there to fight against the Czechoslovaks. Seven thousand persons were present. They were addressed by Trotzky and other Bolshevist leaders.

The Bolsheviki had made a number of arrests at Petrograd and sent the prisoners to Kronstadt, where the garrison was told that the captives had been taken at Jaroslav in a counter revolutionary plot and "ought to be tried and executed." But the garrison learned that the prisoners were innocents from Petrograd, released them, and permitted them to remain at Kronstadt or return to Petrograd.

AMERICANS ESCAPE FROM EHRENBREITSTEIN

Airmen Recaptured at Dutch Border After Fleeing from Famous Fortress.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 26.—That American prisoners intend to outwit the Germans and make use of every opportunity to escape is apparent from information reaching THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent direct from Germany.

Six American airplanes, recently reported as landing at Coblenz, really landed on the Moselle, where the latter joins the Rhine, having lost their bearings. One of their objectives was a bridge over the Rhine where the "Archies" became very violent. The Americans were all imprisoned in the fortress at Ehrenbreitstein, which is situated on a high hill overlooking Coblenz and the Rhine, and is considered one of the impregnable fortresses of the Rhine defenses, and is almost unapproachable.

Nevertheless, an American Captain, who piloted one machine, as well as the observer, managed to escape from the fortress, to the astonishment of the Germans, and had not been recaptured up until a few days ago, although the whole country was scoured and all ships and barges on the Rhine were subjected to a rigorous examination.

The Dutch papers, however, report that the two American officers were caught when trying to cross the Dutch frontier from Germany a few days ago.

LIEUT. H. W. CAYGILL AGAIN VICTIM OF GAS

Mount Vernon Officer Was the Editor of The Spectator at Columbia.

WON FRENCH DECORATION

Capt. J. G. Finn, Wounded, Was in Corporation Counsel's Office —Other Casualties.

Lieutenant Harry W. Caygill, who is a son of Alderman Ranson Caygill of Mount Vernon, N. Y., recently received the ribbon of the Legion of Honor of France for gallantry in action, and only a few weeks ago returned to duty after having been in the hospital 55 days recovering from German mustard gas. He has again been wounded and gassed and is now in a hospital near Paris. Lieutenant Caygill was honored by the French Government for an exploit in the first days of the Marne battle. The advance of a platoon of the 23d Infantry, which he was leading, was held up by a German machine gun, whereupon Lieutenant Caygill went forward with drawn pistol and in a hand-to-hand encounter captured the officer commanding the surviving members of the machine gun crew.

Lieutenant Caygill is a graduate of Columbia University, class og 1917. At Columbia he was the editor of the university publication, The Spectator. He was graduated at the second Plattsburg Camp, commissioned a First Lieutenant, and assigned to the Regulars. He is 23 years old.

Lieutenant Dean N. Jenks, who has been killed in action, was born in this city thirty-two years ago. When war was declared he was living in Colorado. Lieutenant Jenks was a graduate of the Fort Sheridan (Ill.) Officers' Training Camp.

Lieutenant George E. Braker, killed in battle, was in a Regular Army infantry unit fighting in the Marne sector. His home was at 430 South Sixtieth Street, Philadelphia.

Captain James G. Finn, commanding Company H, 165th Infantry, Rainbow Division, has been wounded. Miss Helen E. Finn of 245 Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn, who is a sister, received the information in a letter from him yesterday. Captain Finn is a graduate of Bowdoin College and was an assistant in the office of the Corporation Counsel when he resigned to enter the Federal service. He was a First Lieutenant in the 14th Infantry of Brooklyn before the war, and was one of the officers transferred from that unit to the Rainbow Division.

Jamaica Soldier Gassed.

Sergeant Robert L. Flack of the Machine Gun Company of the 165th Infantry, has been gassed and is now convalescent in a French hospital. He is a son of Mrs. John H. Valentine of 31 Bergen Avenue, Jamaica, L. I. Sergeant Flack is a veteran of the New York National Guard.

Sergeant Hugh McMillan, a brother of Mrs. Catherine Christie of Corona, L. I., was wounded on July 29. He went to France with a Regular Army infantry unit.

Private William J. McDougal, a brother of Mrs. James Dunn of Glen Cove, L. I., was wounded on July 18. He is in the 9th Infantry.

Irving Needleman, killed in action, lived when drafted into the Camp Upton Division last September, at 117 East 113th Street with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Needleman. From Camp Upton he was transferred to the 18th Infantry, with which he was fighting when killed. He was 24 years old and was killed July 20.

Timothy Callahan, severely wounded, is a member of the 105th Infantry of the New York Division. He is a brother of Mrs. Ethel Farrell of 737 Third Avenue. Calloghan is 24 years old and was known to his friends, his sister said, as "Smiling Time."

John H. Doyle, who has been wounded, is a brother of Mrs. Elizabeth Unghfear of 645 Manhattan Avenue, Brooklyn. He is a veteran of the 10th Infantry and served with that regiment in Alaska, the Philippines, and Mexico. Doyle is 31 years old and is a graduate of St. Anthony's Roman Catholic School in Brooklyn.

Henry G. Silverston, reported wounded, went to France with the 47th Infantry. He is a son of Mrs. S. Silverston of 871 Seventy-second Street, Brooklyn. Silverston, who is 25 years old, enlisted in the regulars last November.

PROHIBITION DATE PUT OFF TO JULY 1

Senate Agreement for Passage of Bill Believed to be in Sight, President Concurring.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Nation-wide prohibition, as embraced in the Gore amendment to the Food Stimulation bill, now on the Senate calendar, will not become effective, if put through the Senate, until July 1 of next year, at the earliest. This was agreed to today by leaders among the "drys" in the Senate after Senator Sheppard of Texas, Democratic prohibition leader, had conferred with President Wilson at the White House.

Under the amendment as originally drawn nation-wide prohibition would become operative Jan. 1 next. The House Ways and Means Committee, in making up the $8,000,000,000 War Revenue bill, went on the theory that prohibition would not be forced through by the end of the year. So the committee put down $1,000,000,000 as a probable war tax on liquors. If the prohibition amendment were adopted, this would have to be cut from the bill, or at least a large part of it. This prospective loss of $1,000,000,000 of liquor revenue, if the Gore amendment should shut off liquors by Jan. 1, has caused some concern in Administration quarters.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26. (Associated Press.)—An agreement for passage of legislation to stop sales of all intoxicating beverages on July 1, 1919, leaders of both wet and dry factions in the Senate stated tonight, seemed to be in sight. President Wilson was represented as not opposing the legislation, and Senators believed the House would accept the proposal under negotiation. A definite "gentlemen's agreement" in the Senate is expected within a few days.

The wartime Prohibition bill pending in the Senate came up for consideration today under the unanimous consent agreement made several weeks ago, giving it right of way until disposed of, but was temporarily displaced while the Senate proceeded with the Man Power bill.

At President Wilson's suggestion, according to Senator Sheppard of Texas, postponement of the date from Jan. 1 to July 1 was agreed to by spokesmen of both factions. The President, it was stated, believes additional time should be given for financial and other adjustments. Opponent of the legislation were declared to be convinced that it could not be defeated, and to be satisfied with the proposed extension of time. Formal conclusion of an agreement is expected to pave the way for passage of the bill by the Senate late this week or early next week.

FIRE FIGHTERS WIN PLEA.

War Priority Board Admits Need of Guarding Piers Here.

The War Priority Board, acting on testimony that New York piers holding valuable and highly inflammable cargoes were endangered by lack of sufficient fire protection, yesterday granted national priority rights for the shipment of fire-fighting apparatus. The action of the board was announced here last night by B. F. Wollman, Chairman of the Committee on Fire Supplies and Apparatus of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense.

Mr. Wollman said the city recently had three of its nine fireboats out of commission for weeks because manufacturers could not deliver boiler tubes needed in the vessels.

Chairman Parker of the Priority Board assigned fire equipment to Class A6, which is little below the class of munitions, but he emphasized that all equipment ordered must be "absolutely necessary."

The subject of deferred classification for firemen in the present and approaching draft was taken up with Provost Marshal Crowder, and it was expected that firemen would be placed in Class 3, as being engaged in an occupation essential to the conduct of the war.

Fire Commissioner Thomas F. Drennen, Fire Chief Kenion, and Chiefs Murphy and Emerich of Philadelphia and Baltimore, respectively, represented the firemen of the United States and Canada at these hearings.

SCRIBNER'S
tells about a cheerful supper in France
Mr. Sothern says: "We had been delayed on our journey and had not fed since midday. To our pleadings for refreshment the boot-cleaner turned an unsympathetic ear and a pair of shrugging shoulders. However, feeding is greatly a habit. Travellers must overcome such affectations. One of my companions produced an aluminum cooking outfit, some solid alcohol, some malted milk tablets, some chocolate, and some war-bread, secreted for such an emergency, and with the appetizing reflection that we were better off than the men in the trenches we enjoyed a cheerful supper."

WHITMAN AND LEWIS START CAMPAIGNS

Governor Not "Silent," as Was Planned, but Praises Opponent.

LEWIS KEEPS UP ATTACKS

Urges Governor to Ride in the Subway During Rush Hours and Tell Voters What He Thinks of It.

Governor Whitman and Attorney General Merton E. Lewis, rival candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor, opened their speaking campaigns in this city last night. Governor Whitman addressed five meetings of Republican Assembly districts clubs, Attorney General Lewis three.

Mr. Lewis, accompanied by Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker, spoke as the guest of Republican district organizations committed to the third term candidacy of his opponent, and in the circumstances was compelled to practice considerable restraint in his utterances. Mr. Lewis, it was predicted last night, would really open up on the Governor in speeches that he will deliver under the auspices of friendly organizations in Brooklyn later in the week. In his speeches last night he took the Governor to task for his sudden change of front on the prohibition issue, his ambition to obtain a third term as a stepping stone to the Presidential nomination in 1920, and his ignoring entirely the mandate from two Republican State Conventions in favor of a return to the convention method of nominating candidates.

Before the Governor started on his speaking tour his campaign managers announced that he would conduct a "silent" campaign, merely shaking hands with the Republicans he met at the district meetings. The Governor wasn't silent last night, but he did say kind things about his opponent.

Praised Lewis's Work.

"'The office of Attorney General Lewis —and I say this though we are not on terms politically friendly for the time being—has been administered with unquestionable and rare fidelity," said the Governor. In all his meetings the Governor predicted that "the faithful servants at Albany of the State and the Republican Party" would be "triumphantly renominated and re-elected."

The Governor in his first speech at the Federal Club of the Sixth Assembly District, which was repeated at all the meetings except one of negro Republicans in the Nineteenth Assembly District, eliminated the war and support of the Federal Administration in its war policies as an issue in the campaign. At the negro meeting the Governor roused his audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm by reading a letter from ex-Public Service Commissioner William Hayward, who resigned that office to become Colonel of a negro regiment. The Colonel in his letter and the Governor in his speech lauded the negro soldiers.

Attorney General Lewis was cordially received at the three meetings he addressed in the Eighth, Eleventh, and Seventeenth Assembly Districts. In his speech at the meeting in the Liberty Republican Club of the Seventeenth, Mr. Lewis said that Governor Whitman last December had told him he thought the question of ratification of the Federal Prohibition amendment should be submitted to a referendum before being acted upon in the Legislature. Later, Mr. Lewis said, the Governor had sent for Senators and Assemblymen and urged them to vote for immediate ratification.

"'I do not know what was responsible for the Governor's change of front," said Mr. Lewis," but I do know that the lobby of the Anti-Saloon League had been camping on Governor Whitman's doorstep for some time before he sent his message to the Assembly accusing that body of cowardice and comparing it to the Assembly of Tweed's day for not complying without question with the demand of the Anti-Saloon League for immediate ratification."

There were many women in the audiences Mr. Lewis addressed. Although the Attorney General has not been regarded friendly to the suffrage cause, they were more cordial than were the men in their reception of him.

Wants Whitman in Subway.

Earlier in the day Mr. Lewis at his campaign headquarters in the Murray Hill Hotel urged the Governor to take advantage of his stay in this city to take a trip in the subway during the night rush hours, and then tell the voters at his meetings what he thought of conditions.

"If this subject is too abstruse for him to grapple with," Mr. Lewis said, "he might tell them what he thinks of the members of the Public Service Commission, under whose administration present subway conditions have been made possible."

It was definitely settled yesterday that the name of State Controller Eugene M. Travis, candidate for renomination, would remain on the Republican primary ballot. Chief Judge Frank H. Hiscock of the Court of Appeals decided that it would not be practical to convene that tribunal for the purpose of passing finally on the petition made by John Kissel of Kings, a contestant for the Republican nomination for Controller, to have the name of Mr. Travis left off the ballot on the ground of irregularity in the designating petitions filed on his behalf. Justice Cropsey of the Supreme Court, sitting in Brooklyn, ruled Travis out, but the Appellate Division reversed the decision. Louis J. Altkrug, attorney for Mr. Kissel, announced last night, despite the inability to obtain a ruling from the highest court prior to the primaries, he would press the appeal afterward with a view to obtaining a settlement of the legal questions involved.

Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker, who is candidate for the nomination for Attorney General on the Lewis ticket, announced yesterday the personnel of his Campaign Committee, which includes Henry W. Taft, Otto T. Bannard, William M. K. Olcott, William Jay Schieffelin, Mortimer Schiff, and Henry Clews of Manhattan; Darwin R. James, Jr., Henry Davenport, Meier Steinbrink, and Thomas G. Flaherty of Kings; Edgar Truman Brackett, ex-State Senator from Saratoga; ex-Governor Horace White and ex-Senator Harvey D. Hinman of Broome, V. V. Franchot of Cattaraugus, and Adelbert Moot of Erie.

Mr. Becker's campaign managers are preparing to make the most of the indorsement obtained from Colonel Theodore Roosevelt for their candidate. This was given on the ground that Mr. Becker in his present position had done valuable work for the suppression of pro-German activities. The Roosevelt indorsement is printed on the front page of a folder dealing with the official achievements of Mr. Becker, which was sent broadcast through the mails to Republican voters in the State yesterday.

MICHIGAN CANVASS FOR SENATOR ENDS

Nomination of Ford by Democrats Expected—Strong Claims for Osborn and Newberry.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 26.—The end of the Senate campaign, with tomorrow Primary Day, finds the supporters respectively of Truman H. Newberry, Chase S. Osborn, and Henry Ford confident and calm. Democratic leaders are satisfied that Henry Ford will be the next nominee of their party, and that James W. Helme will not make a flurry in the ranks. A number of them express the belief that Mr. Ford will be the Republican nominee, also, though the Democrats would prefer to see Mr. Ford nominated by them only. Then they could make a straight-out campaign in the Fall election. If nominated on both tickets, Mr. Ford would have five days after the official canvass to elect on which ticket to run.

Both the Osborn and Newberry supporters base their hopes largely on polls of the State. The Osborn claims are supported by a canvass of the State recently made by The Chicago Tribune, which declared Osborn would be nominated and elected. Henry A. Montgomery, Mr. Osborn's local manager, declares a poll was recently taken for the Republican National Committee, and Osborn's election was predicted.

The Newberry supporters point to a poll of eighty counties of the State recently made by The Grand Rapids Herald, a paper not especially friendly to Mr. Newberry. This poll showed Mr. Newberry overwhelmingly in the lead. The poll was taken among editors, County Clerks, State Senators, and representatives. It has been pointed out by critics that the poll represents politicians, and that no poll was taken of the plain voters.

Henry Ford's local supporters in the Republican primary have not polled the State.

The Osborn and Newberry camps both claim to have enlisted most of the former warriors of William Alden Smith. The Osborn supporters say they will get some of the older Warner strength, though ex-Governor Warner declared himself for Ford, and Richard H. Fletcher, Labor Commissioner, is reckoned as belonging to the Newberry forces.

WON'T CRITICISE WILSON.

But Missouri Republicans Will Demand Nonpartisan Conduct of War.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 26.—Republican leaders have decided there shall be no indorsement of the war record of President Wilson's administration in the platform to be adopted tomorrow by the Republican State Convention. Instead, it is said, the draft of the platform will contain a strong indorsement of the war and its vigorous prosecution to a successful termination.

The platform will contain nothing in the nature of criticism of President Wilson or the manner of conducting the war, but there will be "a strong plea for a nonpartisan conduct of the war in the future."

OSBORN AIMS AT MURPHY.

Says His Fight Is Chiefly Against Tammany Leader's Methods.

William Church Osborn, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor against Alfred E. Smith, President of the Board of Aldermen, said yesterday that his fight was not directed so much against his opponent as it was against Charles F. Murphy and his political methods.

"These methods are apparent in the matter of the Supreme Court Justiceship fight in Queens," said Mr. Osborn. "Borough President Maurice E. Connolly is a candidate for the nomination. He was opposed in the Democratic primaries by County Judge Burt J. Humphrey. Now the newspapers state that Mr. Smith and Chairman Edwin S. Harris of the Democratic State Committee went to Long Island City and induced Judge Humphrey to withdraw from the primary contest. As a result the people have been deprived of their right to choose their own candidate."

Mr. Osborn has canceled his speaking engagements up State, but will carry on instead a lively publicity campaign during the closing week of the primary contest. He said reports from up State indicated that his candidacy was being very well received.

LONDON UPHOLDS LODGE PEACE TERMS

Press Agrees That War Must End in a Democratic, Not Diplomatic, Peace.

FOE MUST ADMIT DEFEAT

Otherwise Hope of a Real League of Nations Would Be Vain and Another War Come.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Senator Lodge's program of war aims contains no specification making a clearer appeal to the British people than his exclusion of the permissibility of another treaty of Vienna. The war for democracy will be ended by a democratic, and not a diplomatic, peace.

Practically all the organs of English public opinion are agreed that no peace which satisfies German autocracy can satisfy British democracy. Here and there is some quarrel with the use of the phrase "Dictated peace" on the ground that it too nearly resembles the "knockout blow" policy, but on the essentials there is practical unanimity of view. Peace intrigues, whether engineered by a discredited deposed monarch or by any other German agency, are under the circumstances calculated to have a sorry career and in the light of the developments which have taken place since the words were uttered that English statesman, Asquith, who said it would be easy to reject a first German peace offer, but that it might be difficult to so deal with a second, might wish to revise his prediction. Great democrat that he is the late Premier would undoubtedly agree that the democracy which is winning the war will settle terms of peace.

Lord Hugh Cecil, in the course of correspondence dealing with Lord Lansdowne's proposals, has admirably delineated what may be described as the dominant temper of the British people. The British Government, he says, cannot, as Lansdowne thinks, endeavor to facilitate the opening of negotiations, because much more is now at issue than the causes of British intervention.

"The war is now a crusade," he writes. "We fight to overthrow a principle, stamp out a moral disease, extirpate an abomination. The war is no longer one between two groups of nations. It is the civilized world fighting to chastise rebels against its fundamental laws. The war can end not in conversations and negotiations as between equals, but in the recognized defeat, and consequent submission, of the rebel nation.

"If the result of the war were to show that Germany could hold its own against the world, unconditioned nationalism which is the evil principle that Germans maintain would have been justified in point of force, though not of right. It is vital to the idea of supernational supremacy, which is implied in a league of nations, to prove that there is a power in the world greater than the strength of the most warlike nation. Otherwise Germany might become neither a loyal member nor even an obedient subject of the league. Its nationalism might still remain undimmed, seeking afresh to strengthen itself by accumulated force till it should be strong enough to fight again. Other nations would be obliged to do likewise, and the league would fail of its purpose.

"The war must be fought till it ends in the submission of Germany. By submission I do not in the least mean destruction. Indeed, it is not, I believe, possible to destroy a strong and united nation by military defeat. We do not seek to destroy Germany, but we seek to force the Germans to recognize that they have been defeated and to submit to the authority of a world stronger than they. Moloch must be humiliated in sight of all his votaries if they are to accept a purer faith."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Senator Lodge's statement of the "irreducible minimum" in peace terms beyond which the United States and the Entente Powers should not yield has found a prompt response in Italy. The Italians, according to a diplomatic dispatch received from Rome today, are particularly pleased by the statement which Senator Lodge made regarding Italian aspirations. The dispatch follows:

"The declaration by Senator Lodge on Italian rights in the irredenta countries and the necessity of the great Slav populations of Austria forming independent States has been received with the liveliest sympathy in Italy, because it proves that the United States understands the new Italian spirit.

"The Epoca, commenting on Italy's foreign policy in a leading article which voices the majority of Italian public opinion, recalls the explicit declaration of Premier Orlando before the Chamber on Feb. 12, in which he solemnly affirmed the rights of all nationalities oppressed by Austria, together with the completion of Italian notional unity. The Epoca says that Italy and its Government today are more persuaded than ever of the necessity of recognizing the rights of the Jugoslav nationality.

"In Trajan's Forum a great Italo-Rumanian demonstration took place in the presence of the Ministers, representatives of the Chamber, Senate, municipalities, the Rumanian Legion, Italia Irredenta, and leading Rumanian personages. The Mayor of Rome expressed the greetings of Rome's citizens and exhorted the sons of Rumania to support with Roman firmness the present situation. The Roman eagles which showed the road to honor, he said, tomorrow would point the road to glory. Rumanian Representative Mandiescu thanked the Italian people and Government for their solidarity and help, and announced the presence of the Rumanian Legion fighting at the Italian front. He prophesied a closer bond between Rumania and Italy."

WIDER TIES FOR VATICAN.

Representation with America Is Sought, but Not Expected Now.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Aug. 26.—Discussion over the diplomatic relations between the Vatican and China and the opposition of France to the appointment of a Papal Nuncio at Peking brings up the question of the relations of the Holy See with all other countries. It is the evident aim one day for America and Japan also to have a representative accredited to the Pope, these being the only two great powers that never have had a permanent Plenipotentiary to the Papacy.

France had an Embassy until relations were broken under Pope Pius X. Spain has an Ambassador; Russia, despite the strongly anti-Catholic policy followed under the Czars, had a Minister; Austria has an Ambassador; Germany two Ministers, one representing Prussia and the other representing Bavaria; Portugal, by order of the Braganza Monarchy, had an Ambassador accredited to the Pope, while only a Minister was accredited to the King of Italy, although the Dowager Queen Maria Pia was a sister of the Italian sovereign.

The Portuguese Republic broke off diplomatic relations with the Holy See, resumed just now at the request of the new President. England, since the time of Henry VIII., has been among countries which discontinued any official relations with the Vatican; but at the beginning of this war it saw the advisability of having a representative there to counteract the influence of the Central Empires, and appointed a Minister Plenipotentiary.

America and Japan have had occasional special missions to the Vatican on given questions, in case of the former the most important being that intrusted to ex-President W. H. Taft regarding the Friars' lands in the Philippines. The Vatican has no illusions as to the possibility of setting up diplomatic relations with America while Wilson is President, or with Japan under the present Government there; but such circumstances may arise as to suggest to both America and Japan the advisability of entertaining relations with the Vatican just as happened with England recently, and with China, who both asked an exchange of diplomatists.

TOBACCO SUBSTITUTES FAIL

Shutdown of German Cigar Factories an Industrial Blow.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 26.—It has been announced that all the cigar factories in Germany will be closed down toward the end of the year on account of the exhaustion of tobacco supplies.

This will involve between 2,000 and 3,000 concerns and will throw more than 100,000 workers out of employment. It has been found impossible to obtain any fresh supplies from Holland, and no home supplies will be available till well on in 1919. Practically all the substitutes for tobacco have been found to be failures. Something like £50,000,000 is sunk in the German cigar industry, and it is declared that after an idleness of any considerable period it will be only with the very greatest difficulties that the industry will get to going again.

ALL CONEY HAILS K. OF C.

President Wilson Presses Button as Week's Celebration Starts.

The Knights of Columbus "Coney Island Week" was ushered in at 8:15 o'clock last night, when President Wilson in Washington pressed a button that released a large bell at Tenth Street and Surf Avenue. His signal started a parade of fifteen floats, depicting war scenes in which the Knights of Columbus have played a part. The police said there were 125,000 at the celebration opening.

More than 100 city and borough officials were entertained at a gold dinner, among those attending being Alfred E. Smith, President of the Board of Aldermen; Congressman J. J. Delaney, Borough President Edward Riegelmann, Sheriff Daniel J. Griffin, County Clerk William E. Kelley, Commissioner of Public Works Geiger, Police Commissioner Enright, Fire Commissioner Thomas Drennan, John H. McCooey, Richardson Webster, and Jacob A. Livingston.

Edward B. Goate, director of the celebration, announced that more than 1,000,000 tickets at $1 apiece were being sold for the week under the auspices of the War Camp Activities Fund.

CARDINAL IS BETTER; FRIENDS RENEW HOPE

Physicians Report That Condition of Prelate Is Satisfactory—Pope Asks for Messages.

Special to The New York Times.

MAMARONECK, Aug. 26.—A slight improvement was noted in the condition of Cardinal Farley today and the physicians in attendance at Orienta Point decided tonight not to issue an official bulletin. Monsignor Carroll, the Cardinal's secretary, said that the condition of the prelate showed a slight improvement and, though he was still in a very critical state, his condition was considered satisfactory. The Cardinal, inspite of his 77 years, has shown surprising vitality in his fight for life and his friends are hopeful that he will be able to overcome the attacks of pneumonia.

It was said tonight that Cardinal Farley was resting easily. No one called at Orienta Point today, but inquiries continued to come in from the numerous friends of the Cardinal.

ROME, Aug. 25.—The Pope, deeply concerned over Cardinal Farley's illness, has ordered that he be constantly informed of the condition of the patient. The Pope had special prayers said for the Cardinal's recovery, saying he hoped the Almighty would spare the precious life, so valuable to the Catholic Church of America. Cardinal Merry del Val, also much grieved, recalled how much pleasure he had when, as Secretary of State under Pius X., he announced to Archbishop Farley his elevation to the purple. That was a memorable day for America when, together with Archbishop Farley, Archbishop William O'Connell, and Mgr. Falconio, the latter an American citizen, were created Cardinals in the same consistory.

The Answer Repeated Substantially As follows From an actual Conversation

"My Income Tax will just about eat up my savings, this year."

"Do you run many Charge Accounts?"

"Why?"

"That may be the answer."

"I don't get you."

"When you buy merchandise at the store where your credit standing is recognized, you give little thought to the amount of money spent —that is to say—the goods purchased and charged to you. The thought comes when it is too late, after the merchandise has been used and you get the bill."

"I never thought of it in that way before."

"Then again, you know that no store where you charge goods is going to sell you its merchandise with its money without making you pay, don't you?"

"Why—er—yes, but that's not a whale of a lot."

"You're mistaken."

"Come across."

"Every time you buy goods on a charge account you pay a tax to cover the costs to that store of doing a credit business."

"Costs? What costs?"

"The cost to the store of maintaining a huge charge account department, with its clerks and collectors and expert Credit Men."

"Come, come, that can't be such an expense."

"NO? Well, R. H. MACY & CO. will tell you that it is a very big item of expense attached to the credit system of merchandising."

"Go on."

"Second, the cost to the store of carrying its charge customers. And third, the cost of its 'bad' accounts. Besides which, every cash purchaser has to pay the store charge account prices to support this system of special privilege to credit customers."

WASTE OF PAPER STIRS THE HOUSE

Members Protest Against Mass of "Leave to Print" Oratory in The Record.

ASSAIL OFFICIAL BULLETIN

Belief Expressed That It Should Be Suppressed or Reduced in Size.

RESTRICTIONS ON BOOKS

Publishers Are Asked to Make a Big Reduction in the Number to be Turned Out.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—In debate in the House today, precipitated by an alleged abuse of the "extension of remarks privilege," it was asserted by several speakers that, in view of the prevailing shortage, newsprint paper might be conserved by abolishing the Official Bulletin and publications of the Food, Fuel, and Shipping Boards. It was declared by one speaker that it might be necessary to commandeer paper in order to print the Congressional Record.

Five pages of the Congressional Record were found to be filled with a report of the renomination of Representative Blanton of Texas, inserted by him under the extension of remarks privilege, while eight pages were used by Representative A. T. Treadway to report speeches he had made from time to time. These examples brought the matter before the House.

Representative Joseph Walsh of Massachusetts, known as the "official objector" to the extension of remarks abuse, invited the attention of the House to the thirteen pages which, he said, were wasted.

"On Page 10,341 of The Congressional Record appears an extension of remarks by Mr. Blanton of Texas," said Mr. Walsh. "The remarks convey to an anxious world information as to the returns at a recent primary held in Comanche County and various other communities in the great State of Texas. It is a personal exultation over a political victory. In view of the shortage in print paper, it seems to me that such an extension ought not to be passed by without comment.

"My colleague from Massachusetts, Mr. Treadway, on Page 10,333 of The Record, under leave to extend remarks, has set forth extracts from speeches made by him during the second session of the Sixty-fifth Congress"

Reprinting Cost Government $300.

Representative Henry A. Barnhart of Indiana, Chairman of the Committee on Printing, said that the reprinting of the speeches inserted by Representative Treadway cost the Government $300. He said further:

"The time has come when it seems that it may be necessary for the Government Printing Office to ask the President to commandeer the paper to get out the publications that we need. I believe it the duty of the Speaker and every member to see to it that every time a man asks to have his remarks extended he state what he is going to print in the extension."

"Does not the gentleman think that a good deal of paper could be conserved by the suppression of the official bulletin?" asked Representative Clark of Florida.

"That is a matter in the hands of the President of the United States," replied Mr. Barnhart. "There is a widespread opinion that it could be reduced and that if the information given out in the Official Bulletin could be given to the newspapers of the country it would be much more generally read than it is in the Official Bulletin."

"If Congress wishes to adopt a policy to conserve, does not the gentleman think that the executive departments ought to lead in that?" asked Representative Good.

"Yes," Mr. Barnhart replied, "but that is up to the Committee on Appropriations, which controls the allowance for printing to those departments."

Publishers of certain kinds of books have been asked to make a big reduction in new titles of books to be manufactured in this country after Oct. 1. This is contemplated under new regulations controlling the use of paper by publishers promulgated by the War Industries Board, through the pulp and paper section.

The publications affected are trade books, copyright reprints, toy books, juvenile and noncopyright books. The regulations direct that, beginning with Oct. 1, there shall be a reduction in new titles of books manufactured in this country—in these classifications—of 25 per cent. of the average of the three years from July 1, 1915, to June 30 last. Publishers who have not been in business for five years will have their reduced tonnage based on their tonnage used in the year which ended June 30 last. Bona fide publishers who maintain no connection with existing publishers may apply to the War Industries Board for registration and allotment of the number of titles to be published in the first year.

The regulations make an exception in favor of books of research, published under subsidy, and war service books published for the United States or allied Governments under subsidy. Nor will they apply to books in manufacture to be published prior to Oct. 1. All shipments of books "on sale," "on consignment," or "protected," are prohibited, but where a traveling salesman of a publishing house has been unable to solicit an advance order for any particular publication, because of time limitation, the publisher may ship a sample order "on sale" not in excess of 100 copies.

U-BOAT SINKS FIVE SHIPS, WOUNDS CREW

Steamer Eric Destroyed by Shellfire Off Miquelon—Five Men Hurt.

ST. PIERRE, Aug. 26.—The steamer Eric of 600 tons has been sunk by shell fire, presumably by the same submarine which sent four fishing schooners to the bottom on Sunday off Miquelon Island. Five of the crew of the Eric, which hailed from St. John's, N. F., were wounded.

The news of the sinking of the four fishing schooners by a German submarine was brought here today by the crew of the E. B. Walters of Lunenburg, N. S., one of the vessels destroyed. Tonight the crews of all the other sunken vessels, numbering about ninety men, were landed here safely.

According to the information given by these men the U-boat's victims were the fishing schooners J. J. Flaherty of Gloucester, Mass., and the E. B. Walters, the C. M. Walters, and the Verna D. Adams, all of Lunenburg, N. S.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 26.—The sinking of the Gloucester fishing schooner J. J. Flaherty by a German submarine was reported in a message received here today by the owners from Captain Charles T. Gregory, who, with his crew of 24, has landed safely at St. Pierre. Captain Gregory did not tell where or when his vessel was sent down, the message merely stating "Torpedoed; all hands saved and at St. Pierre." The J. J. Flaherty, a vessel of 162 tons gross, was owned by the Gorton-Pew fisheries Company and valued at $50,000. She left this port May 22, and was equipped to salt and cure fish before returning home.

LIVES LOST ON LAKE EDEN.

Six of Crew Killed or Drowned—Ten Others Still Missing.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Six members of the crew are believed to have been drowned or killed by the torpedo explosion, and nine members of the crew and one member of the naval armed guard are still missing as the result of the sinking of the American steamer Lake Eden in foreign waters on Aug. 21. A report to the Navy Department today names the following as drowned or killed:

George Bruce, master; C. Craft, second engineer; P. Derham, fourth engineer; C. Maller, boatswain; A. Martin and Muller, (initials and rating not given.)

The member of the Naval Guard not accounted for as rescued is Ralph E. Hooten, gunner, of Laurel Hill, Fla.

The following members of the crew were still missing, although hope still is held that they may have escaped:

F. Feres, fireman; A. Mosher, chief cook; J. Harms, greaser; H. Ricardo, mess boy; Johnson, sailor; Lyrecian, sailor; Loronzow, fireman; Duterok, fireman; Stanbor, second cook.

7 FISHING BOATS SUNK.

Three of Them Were Dutch—Destroyed Near Free Channel.

YMUIDEN, Holland, Aug. 26.—Seven fishing boats have been sunk by the same submarine. Three of them were of Dutch registry. The crews of the destroyed boats have been landed here.

The craft were fishing a few miles outsidt of what has been known as the "free channel."

WARNS AGAINST PERISCOPES

Captain Says That Sometimes They Are Attached to Mines.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Aug. 26.—The Captain of an American steamship which arrived today said that shipmasters should be very careful before they attempt to ram a U-boat when only the periscope can be seen above the surface of the sea.

"I was in company," he continued, "with the tanker Luz Blanca when she was sunk near Halifax recently and had a narrow escape myself. The submarine, which was apparently one of the old 125-foot type, with one gun forward and a maximum speed of fourteen knots on the surface, came after my ship when it had settled the tanker. I manoeuvred five or six times at full speed and managed to get clear.

"When the Hun commander saw that I was going to escape he submerged. Shortly afterward I sighted what looked like the periscope of the U-boat on my port bow. From my previous experience in the North Sea I realized at once that this was a false periscope attached to a fine big mine a few feet below the surface. Had I steered for the periscope my ship would have been blown to pieces. At the present time the U-boats have the advantage over the American coastwise vessels in speed and guns. When all American steamships are equipped with automatic guns fore and aft the submarines will return to their base on the German coast."

SEES TROUBLE AFTER WAR.

Cunard Line Chairman Takes Pessimistic View of Future.

LIVERPOOL, July 17.—"Stormy days" after the war ware predicted today by Sir Alfred Booth, presiding at the annual meeting of the Cunard Line. The principal dangers he foresaw were:

Difficulty of deflating currency anad credit without destroying confidence.

The tendency to maintain Government control, which, he said, would produce a deadening effect on enterprise.

International attempt to divide up the raw materials of the world among competing industries, making politics, instead of price, the determining factor of distribution. "The international jealousies engendered by such a system," said Sir Alfred, "would be sufficient to kill any league of nations which we might have to form."

Labor unrest due to false hopes of a new heaven and a new earth.

and deal with all phases of the gigantic task connected with the enrollment of approximately 13,000,000 men, representing the estimated total between the ages of 18 and 20 and 31 and 45, both inclusive, not heretofore registered and not already enlisted in the army or navy.

The regulations give the following tentative ruling by the Provost Marshal General as to the persons required by the act to register:

"All male persons who shall have attained their eighteenth birthday and shall not have attained their forty-sixth birthday on or before the day set for registration by the President must register. The only exceptions are:

"(a) Persons who, prior to the day set for registration by the President, have registered under the terms of the act approved May 18, 1917, (which fixed the original age limits at 21 to 30 inclusive,) or under the terms of the public resolution of Congress approved May 20, 1918, (providing for the registration since June 5, 1917, of those reaching the age of 21 years,) whether called for public service or not.

"(b) Officers and enlisted men of the regular army; officers appointed, and men of the forces drafted, under the provisions of the act approved May 18, 1917; officers and enlisted men of the National Guard while in the service of the United States; and the officers of the Officers' Reserve Corps and enlisted men in the enlisted Reserve Corps while in the service of the United States; and

"(c) Officers and enlisted men of the Navy and Marine Corps and officers and enlisted and enrolled men of the Naval Reserve force and Marine Corps reserve while in the service of the United States.

Subsequent Registration.

"Persons not subject to registration solely on account of being in the military or naval service of the United States become subject to registration and are required to register immediately upon leaving such military or navy service.

"Citizens of the United States or persons who have declared their intention to become citizens of the United States who do not register on account of absence from the territorial limits of the United States are required to register within five days after their return to the United States."

The regulations warn registrants and all other persons charged with a knowledge of the regulations that ignorance of the provisions will not excuse them.

"These regulations," it is set forth, "have the force and effect of law, and all persons required by these regulations to be registered, and all persons who may claim any right or privilege in respect of any registrant, are charged with knowledge of the provisions hereof. Failure by any person required to be registered to perform any duty prescribed by these regulations is a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment for one year, and may result in the loss of valuable rights and privileges and an immediate induction into the military service."

The regulations provide registration machinery, under the supervision in each State of the Governor and Adjutant General, and prescribe the functions of the local draft boards and Central Registration Committees; the places of registration, the duties of the registrars, of the Mayors, County and Township Clerks, county and city attorneys, agents of publicity, the Post Office Department and Postmasters, and Federal, State, and municipal police officials.

As in the case of the first registration on June 5, 1917, use is to be made, so far as possible, of the election machinery in the various States, particularly in the use of voting booths as places of registration. In cities of 30,000 population and over, the local authorities are called upon to assist the local draft boards in providing places of registration, and making available for such purpose public buildings under their control. As far as possible a place of registration will be provided in each of the customary voting precincts within the city, with the assistance furnished of persons ordinarily employed in setting up voting booths.

Booths Open Fourteen Hours.

Registration booths will be opened to registrants at 7 A. M. on the day set for the registration, and will remain open until 9 P. M. Placards explaining to registrants how questions in the registration cards are to be answered will be posted conspicuously. In each place of registration there will be a table and two chairs, (one for the registrar and one for the registrant,) with the necessary stationery and blank forms. Only one registrant will be permitted to approach the table at a time.

Questions will be asked of the registrants as they appear on the registration card, and registrars are especially instructed to be patient and painstaking in explaining these questions. If the registrant appears sullen, or inclined to falsify, evade or refuse to answer, his attention is to be called to the law and the penalties prescribed for such conduct. If he continues refractory, the registrar is instructed not to delay the registration, but to take the man's name, note the witnesses to the occurrence, and, after giving one more opportunity to the man to reconsider, report the case to the chief registrar, who, in turn, will report it to the local boards. Failure on the part of the registrar to take this action renders him equally liable to punishment under the law and his oath of office.

After registering each man, the registrar will make out for the registrant a certificate, which the registrant is cautioned to keep with him always.

At the close of the day the registration cards are turned over to the chief registrar, who delivers them in person to the Chairman of the local board, together with a summarization report.

On the day following the registration the local board will cause to be numbered consecutively, beginning with number one, all the cards in its possession, without attempting to arrange them alphabetically or in any other way. These numbers will be "serial numbers" for the registrants. Subsequent regulations will be issued prescribing the method of determining the "order numbers," (showing order of liability to service,) and no "registration" numbers will be needed and none will be assigned. When the "serial" numbers have been assigned each board will prepare five identical lists of the names of all registrants, with the "serial number" beside each name. One of these lists will be posted at the office of the board, one made accessible to the press, one sent to the Adjutant General of the State, one sent to the Provost Marshal General at Washington, and one retained by the board.

It will be the duty of all registrants to ascertain their serial numbers in order that, when the drawing takes place at Washington, they will know their "order of liability" to call.

'LIGHTNIN' FLASHES A HIT AT THE GAIETY

Winchell Smith's New Rural Melodrama Is Better Even Than "Turn to the Right."

Winchell Smith's talent for extracting corking entertainment from the homely dramatic situations which have been doing service in plays innumerable all these years—drawing it from the soil, as it were—was demonstrated anew at the Gaiety Theatre last night by Mr. Smith's newest play, "Lightnin'." Like "Turn to the Right," the new piece probably does not contain a single situation which is dramatically new, yet it is doubtful if three plays presented during the season will approach it for sheer entertaining power. It is, as a matter of fact, a better show than "Turn to the Right," for it contains, in addition to the puppets, heroes, and villains of that piece, one character which is played so convincingly as to make him real. This is Lightnin' Bill Jones, acted by Frank Bacon.

Mr. Bacon was the original author of the play, and it was from his manuscript that Mr. Smith evolved the piece as it is now played. He generously gave all credit to his collaborator in his curtain speech last night, but it may at least be assumed that the original author created the leading character. Lightnin' is a nondescript of uncertain age, who has seen plenty in his time and is not averse to talking about it. Is crime the subject under discussion? Lightnin' has been a detective. Or if law comes up, Lightnin' has been a Judge. Should the conversation veer to bees, Lightnin' is none the less at home. He drove a swarm of bees across the desert in the dead of Winter, and without losing a bee.

When not reminiscing, Lightnin'—perversely thus named because of a deep and abiding laziness—is ex-officio proprietor of a run-down hotel on the border line between Nevada and California. That is to say, his wife is the proprietor; Lightnin' himself puts in his time roaming the hills, regaling his cronies with accounts of his exploits, most of them imaginary, and spending his pension money—he had been the first man to enlist, of course, in '61—for liquor.

Then into his horizon come our good old melodramatic friends, the land sharks. They discover a valuable waterfall on his property and scheme to get it away from him in exchange for some worthless securities. But Lightnin', in his cross-country rambles, has come upon the hut of a youth who is both lumberman and lawyer—and whose mother had been swindled by these very same villians—and thus the plot is foiled. The second act draws all concerned into a Reno courtroom, and here all the various sides of the plot are thrashed out—a railroad claim against the young lumberman, the divorce action of Lightnin's wife, (encouraged, of course, by the desperate villians, who hoped thereby to obtain the woman's property without her husband's signature,) and also the divorce case of the comedy relief lady, who presently marries the Judge.

All of this is covered with such an amount of genuine humor that one is well into the second act before it is discovered that it is merely the same old figures of rural melodrama which are being paraded again. By that time, however, one is so interested in the central character and so captivated by the fun of the thing that it no longer matters. Even the rather trite affair of the comedy relief lady and the Judge—as theatrical an episode as ever was inserted in a play—takes on new value from the general charm and humor which pervades the whole piece.

For Mr. Bacon the evening was a distinct triumph. Not even the fact that practically all of the humorous lines were his could spoil his performance, for there was never a moment when he appeared conscious of his characterization or tried to hammer a point home. On the contrary, he leaned to the other extreme. He played with a dry, detached air which seemed to imply that his thoughts were never really on the matter in question, but were really concerned with the stirring days of his youth, when he shepherded the bees over the desert. In his moments of drunkenness this repression was particularly valuable. He achieved admirably the thick utterance of the inebriate, thereby conveying his condition perfectly without so much as a single stagger. Altogether an admirable and perfectly sustained characterization.

The remainder of the acting was, in the main, also excellent. Frank Morgan was the young lawyer hero, and revealed himself as a highly promising juvenile. Thomas LacLarnie was amusing as the judge, and Sam Colt, Paul Stanton and E. J. Blunkall took care of a trio of villains handily. Beatrice Nichols was the heroine, both pretty and capable, and Jane Oaker at least kept the comedy relief lady from being too obviously what she was intended to be, viz., comedy relief. Jessie Pringle, as the wife of Lightnin', overplayed most of her scenes, but was delightful in a last-act reconciliation. A bit was played by Minnie Palmer, of early fame.

"Lightnin," taken all in all, is one of the real hits of the early season. What's more, it deserves to be.

Shorty	Frank Nelson
Marianne	Marjorie Rambeau
Rene	Pedro de Cordoba

In his program Mr. Megrue acknowledges that "When Poppies Bloom" was "founded on the French of Henri Kistemaekers." As to what the original may have been, one can only gather and surmise, but it was evidently not fitting material for American audiences. The emotional drama that unfolded last night at the Republic may be warranted not to bring the blush of modesty to the cheek of shame; but it does something even harder to bear. It brings the blush of shame to the cheek of modesty.

Miss Rambeau appears as a young widow, a Red Cross nurse, whose heart is torn between loyalty to a husband whom she mourns as dead, and love for a young French officer whom she has nursed under fire in the most romantic circumstances. Potentially the situation is dramatic enough, and there is a striking potential climax when it is discovered that her husband is in reality not dead but is serving as a German spy within the French lines. But if the plain truth be told, Mr. Megrue has not been fortunate in developing the theme. There are things, as Kipling has remarked, that "no feller does," and these are the things which make up the major part of the action.

The young lover has not seen his former nurse since she heard that her husband was dead; yet, all in mourning as she is, and pathetically heartbroken, he shows no trace of sympathy for her loss, but straightaway urges his own suit in the most ardent and impetuous manner. That is a bad start, and it augurs ill for his success. But the heroine in her turn is subject to similar lapses of human feeling. She has deeply loved her husband, both for himself and as the father of their child; but, when she finds that his professions of loyalty to France were false, she uproots the devotion of a lifetime with scarcely a quiver and turns resolutely against him. And it is not only the things that are done which lack emotional truth and sincerity. The manner in which they are done is even more destructive of interest and illusion. When the "happy ending" comes and these two are betrothed, the verdict is that they deserved each other.

The leading parts are in the hands of very capable actors, the husband being played by Lewis S. Stone and the lover by Pedro de Cordoba. But owing to the material they have to work with none of them scores. Miss Rambeau is bewitchingly lovely in her mourning. She is gracious and charming in her scenes with a group of poilus; and, in the scene in which she speaks of her supposedly dead husband, she strikes a note of sincere and beautiful grief. But in the climacteric scenes, though she plays with great energy and potential power, the effect is only the more painful.

The laurels of the evening fell to actors in the minor parts. Ill at ease as Mr. Megrue is in writing emotional drama, his command of familiar character and of the telling comedy line is unequaled on our stage. The colloquies between Percival Knight as a cockney Tommy, (much the same character which he played in "Getting Together,") and Will Deming as an American from Broadway kept the audience in an incessant breeze of laughter. The single setting—the interior of a war-shattered château—was highly atmospheric, and the melodramatic finale, which resulted from the explosion of a bomb from a Gotha, was very effective in its kind.

It may well be that Miss Rambeau's prestige and the comedy of Messrs. Knight and Deming will carry the production to a measure of success. But it will not add one cubit to the artistic stature of any of the principals.

IT IS NOT TOO LATE.

In his examination by the Senate Military Affairs Committee Major Gen. WILLIAM H. KENLY, Chief of Military Aeronautics, was asked whether "the establishment of a separate Department of Aeronautics "distinct from, yet co-operating with, "the Navy and War Departments" was desirable and expedient. His answer:

> I believe, Sir, it would be a very wise thing to do. It is a specialized arm of growing importance. I think the biggest thing in aviation that has been done has been the point of view taken by Great Britain.

By which General KENLY meant the creation of an Air Ministry to have charge of aircraft production and deliver to the army and navy the machines they needed. Lieut. Col. T. H. BANE, expert of the Signal Corps, who also appeared before the committee, said, when asked his opinion of aircraft production abroad:

> There is nothing mysterious about the construction of aircraft. It is perfectly standard. The British are probably head and shoulders ahead of the rest of the world, and we could not go far wrong in following in their footsteps, in view of the fact that we are so young at this game.

It cannot be said that "over here" there has been nothing mysterious about the construction of airplanes. Quite the contrary. Things have fallen out so that America must go full steam ahead in producing fighting and bombing planes, or another year will pass without that participation in aerial warfare on the western front to which we were pledged upon entering the war. Our machines, piloted by trained aviators, (we have the aviators, 3,000 of them,) were to insure complete mastery of the air by midsummer, 1918. Had the dream come true, the Germans would be unable to make a stand today against the onslaughts of the Allies from Arras to Rheims, and demoralization of the Kaiser's armies would inevitably follow.

Is it too late for an Air Department in the United States? General KENLY thinks it is not, and Lieut. Col. BANE evidently agrees with him. Airplane production is nowhere near the "peak," which was promised long, long ago by the War Department; in fact, by Secretary BAKER, who himself never realized the magnitude of the aviation problem. For the solution of it about $1,000,000,000 has been appropriated, a sum large enough to provide America with a new fleet from dreadnoughts to destroyers. Only now are we beginning to place American-made De Haviland Fours, a precious few, on the western front. Early in August, General PERSHING reported, eighteen of them made a reconnoissance behind the German lines.

An Air Department head—call him by what name or title you like—would have the authority, that no one seems to have now, to regulate and speed production and systematically to furnish the army and navy with the planes they require for general use and for special purposes. He would not have to reconcile independent and conflicting policies. His word would be law. He would be responsible. He could be displaced if he did not make a record. Mr. JOHN D. RYAN was to bring order out of chaos and build up a smoothly functioning machine, but the tools were not given him; he could ask and negotiate, but not command. In his testimony before the Senate committee General KENLY said:

> It became evident to me that, with an independent head of production, and an independent head of operations, which I am—I have no power to direct Mr. RYAN to do anything, nor can he give me any directions—the success of our work would be dependent upon the closest sort of co-operation.

It was like the strategy and tactics on the front in France, which never succeeded, except in spots, until unity of command was established. Now the Allies are winning victory after victory because FERDINAND FOCH is in supreme command, and can make his own plans and order them to be carried out by competent lieutenants. Mr. RYAN and General KENLY get on as well as they can by drawing up and signing agreements, furnishing the Chief of Staff with copies. There has been much friction all the way through the patched-up organization, "a lack of co-operation on the part "of subordinates, particularly along "technical and engineering lines." Within a few days these two able and energetic men have prepared a fresh agreement, a sort of ultimatum to all concerned, as a hint to engineers and technical experts, who are at sixes and sevens so much, that they must "get along harmoniously."

If ever a man made out a convincing case for an Air Department, it is General KENLY. He urges the necessary legislation. Why not follow England's example before it is too late? Must we forever wallow in our own conceit? Who in Washington is opposing unity of command in aircraft production, and what are the reasons?

BAY STATE CONSTITUTION MAKERS.

"Con Con Closes," so a Swinburnian builder of headlines in The Boston Herald irreverently records the end, for 1918, of the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention. It began its labors in 1917. It will resume them next Summer. Is it to be perpetual and immortal?

Most of the nineteen amendments to be voted on in November are beneficial, harmless, or unimportant. The initiative and referendum, which hardly seems calculated for Massachusetts latitudes, and the singular proposal to give the Legislature power to make voting compulsory are serious matters of contention.

An amendment which looks natural and desirable to mere outlanders authorizes the Legislature to provide for biennial instead of annual elections of State officers. Annual sessions of the Great and General Court the convention couldn't bring itself to favor. Georgia, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island, South Carolina, six States faithful to old habit or the gratification of parochial ambitions, still stick to the expensive superfluity of annual sessions. Surely there are many more than laws enough, and a diminution of legislative palaver would add to the happiness of the community.

The Alabama Legislature meets every four years. Alabama! "Blessed" word, more blessed even than "Mesopotamia."

THE LUSITANIA CRIME.

The decisions of the United States Courts in cases involving the application of the law of nations have always commanded high respect among the jurists of other nations. It may be said that our courts bore a leading part in establishing the laws of neutrality. The decision of Judge JULIUS M. MAYER of the Federal District Court of New York holding the Cunard Company blameless for the loss of the Lusitania and declaring that the guilt of that crime is Germany's alone will take its place beside other American opinions that have so notably contributed to the determination of law and national practice in this great field of jurisprudence.

Judge MAYER proceeds from a lucid and ordered review of the facts and the evidence to a well-reasoned conclusion. He finds it established by evidence that the Lusitania was a ship of unimpaired and unmistakable merchant character. She was unarmed, she carried no explosives, no munitions that could be exploded by fire or impact of collision. She was in charge of a competent commander, who was skillful in the navigation of his vessel under the orders of his company and the dictates of his own experienced judgment. She had drawn near to the coast of Ireland in order that her exact position might be determined; her speed had been reduced somewhat, because of Captain TURNER's wish to pass through the most dangerous waters of the voyage, from the entrance of St. George's to the Liverpool Bar, in the darkness of night; and in order that he might have a favorable tide for going over the bar without waiting to pick up a pilot, which would have occasioned a dangerous delay. The Court, therefore, finds "as a fact" that the Captain, and hence the company, were not negligent.

The Lusitania was struck while Captain TURNER was taking observations to determine accurately his bearings. Torpedoes were discharged against the side of the vessel without any warning, without any opportunity for the passengers and crew to seek safety. The pretense that the newspaper advertisement published on the morning of May 1 by the Imperial German Embassy at Washington constituted a warning is dismissed by Judge MAYER as having no bearing upon the issue other than that the advertisement served to emphasize the necessity for taking all precautions, which, in fact, were taken. Neither the company nor the Captain could have believed that it was the intention of the German Government, by the instrumentality of a submarine, to send the Lusitania to the bottom without warning. By a multitude of citations from the law of nations as established by civilized usage, and evidenced by the words of commentators and jurists, Judge MAYER justifies the belief, everywhere entertained prior to the criminal act, that, notwithstanding its danger zones decree, the German Government would not take upon itself the guilt of such an infamous deed. Even the German Prize Code declares that "before proceeding to the destruction "of a vessel, the safety of all persons "on board, and, so far as possible, "their effects, is to be provided for." The Court finds that there was abundant warrant for the belief "that this "simple, humane, and universally accepted principle would not be violated." It is, therefore, the finding of the Court that:

> The fault must be laid upon those who are responsible for the sinking of the vessel, in the legal as well as in the moral sense. * * * But while in this lawsuit there may be no recovery, it is not to be doubted that the United States of America and her allies will well remember the rights of those affected by the sinking of the Lusitania, and, when the time shall come, will see to it that reparations shall be made for one of the most indefensible acts of modern times.

The Imperial Government could meet with baseless assumptions, false reasoning and assurances given only to be disregarded the emphatic protests of our State Department against the outrage upon the laws of man and GOD committed in the wanton and unlawful destruction of the Lusitania. Those protests came from a political department of the Government. In the decision of Judge MAYER it is laid down by a high court of law that the act of the submarine commander was a crime, for which the German Government must be held responsible in the legal as well as in the moral sense. From that there is no escape. The Imperial Government stands condemned as a criminal. And it is in a highly interesting addendum to his legal opinion that the Judge declares the belief that "when the time shall come," which may be assumed to be when the peace conference meets, reparation will be demanded and enforced for this monstrous act of savagery.

MR. GOMPERS AND LABOR PACIFISM.

In addition to his unremitting and fruitful patriotic labors at home, Mr. SAMUEL GOMPERS has done the United States invaluable service abroad. He is for "a dictated peace" as strongly as Mr. LODGE and the rest of us, outside of the Socialist Little Germany and the imitation intellectuals of American pacifism, few but unfit.

Keen and steady was the opposition of the Federation of Labor to the Stockholm Conference and all the other German sideshows, the yearnings of some weak-kneed or weak-headed Entente Socialists for "conversations" with the German Socialists, long notorious agents and tools of the German Government. Steady and keen is the federation's opposition to all the games and devices of the dupes or accomplices of the German Socialists to bring about a peace by understanding, a peace of negotiation, a peace that shall leave Germany free to continue her policy of dominion.

Mr. GOMPERS has blocked once the little game of Mr. ARTHUR HENDERSON and the other gods of what is now the Independent Labor Party, which consists in large part of "middle class" people. Mr. GOMPERS has sailed for Europe, to block Mr. HENDERSON's game again. Mr. HENDERSON has been fed with ideas from cleverer men. The circumstances of his retirement from the War Cabinet are familiar. Since the ending of the political "truce," it has been whispered to him that he might form a Cabinet of his own some day. While he is ostensibly, and doubtless to his own mind sincerely, in favor of the war, he is always nibbling at German peace bait.

HAVELOCK WILSON of the Seamen and Firemen's Union, Labor Ministers like HODGE, ROBERTS, BARNES, and the old trade unionists, are the best representatives of British labor in politics. The pacifist and the "middle class" Socialists of the Independent Labor Party make a good deal of noise, but the numbers of the organization are absurdly out of proportion to its vociferation; and the whole collection of British Socialists, some of whose leaders are fiercely anti-German, is probably less than the vote (52,560) for the Socialist candidate for Governor of New York in 1916.

Wherever pacifism sticks up its sleek malignant head, Mr. GOMPERS will whack it.

A HALF-CENTURY PETITION.

Fifty Republican women have signed a petition which we must be forgiven for calling amusing, asking Governor WHITMAN, as a booster of the prohibition amendment, to pledge himself to abstain from the use of "alcoholic beverages."

Since the Republican unofficial State Convention was unable to take notice of this amendment, and since the relations of politics and politicians to "the drink traffic" have usually a strong color of unreality and humbug, one may imagine, if he likes, that this half century of signers may have unconsciously a political suggestion or impetus behind it.

On the face of it, however, the petition seems to be the invention of some never-enough-to-be-punished, waggish Wet to reduce prohibition to absurder absurdity. Voluntary total abstinence, prohibition for one's self, can be practiced and is practiced by multitudes, especially now, when the price of wet goods is steep. The Drys want to do away with this voluntary total abstinence and compel everybody to total abstinence; and here are fifty Republican prohibitionists calling for voluntary total abstinence. One can forgive what might, in the case of men, seem a hint of impertinence, and is but misdirected zeal, in this petition. It is such an admirable joke on the Drys.

THE SPANISH-AMERICAN CREDIT.

It is well to leave dollars and pesetas out of the discussion as much as possible when considering the advantage of the opening of a credit to our buyers of a half-billion of pesetas. Dollars and pesetas have settled par values when they are in the same place, and then there can be neither discount nor premium on either. Such differences arise when the dollars are here and it is wished to spend them there, or when pesetas are lacking here to pay for goods bought in Spain. Those are exchange difficulties, and are less important than price difficulties, with which the exchange problem is so mingled that it is difficult for the expert to say which is controlling. Dealers in cotton or pesetas may gain or lose by dealings in them, but the margin of profit or loss depends on the business done, and is not altered whether the exchange is at par or at a discount or a premium. The profit or loss is according to the operation, and not according to the exchange.

Spain wants cotton and cotton machinery. We want supplies for PERSHING's army. The credit facilitates the exchange of one for the other, regardless of whether we pay pesetas in Spain, or Spain pays dollars here. Ordinarily, the difference would be merely the cost of the transfer of gold from either to the other. Now the transfer is rather impracticable than merely more costly. Spain does not want gold, and we do not want to spare gold. The difference in the exchange value of the coins reflects upon the credit of neither country, and is due as well to our association with our allies as to the difficulties of trade direct between Spain and the United States. If it were possible to compartment that trade the exchange difficulty could be ended. But our credit is inseparable from that of our allies, and the "discount" on the dollar is due to the discount on their currencies rather than to any specific doubt of our credit. If pounds and francs were to rise dollars would rise automatically, without anything being done to make dollars worth more anywhere. All currencies are at a discount in neutral countries when trade is unbalanced without a supply of exchange to cover it.

The remedy must be found eventually in trade adjustments. Temporary adjustments are made by our buying the discounted exchange of our allies against their promise to repay us par and interest after terms of years. The discount on dollars is rather to the credit of our loyalty to our allies than to any discredit of our traders. And the importance of the dislocation of the exchanges is magnified. Firstly, nothing counts but winning the war, as to which the discount on the exchanges signifies not at all. And, secondly, the discount does not bear the meaning of normal times. It does not mean lack of either goods or gold to meet any and all demands, but the difficulty of putting them where their worth counts. When trade becomes normal these troubles will disappear.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Why Did He Spare the Kaiser?

It is "significant of much," as somebody said once, that, in a church like the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian, a congregation composed of such people as gather there should not only have listened with approval, but should have expressed the approval by cheers and applause as vehement as ever were heard at political meetings in hot campaigns, while the Rev. Dr. MARK A. MATTHEWS told what he thought ought to be done to Germany and the Germans after they have been thoroughly beaten. Of what it is significant there need be no difficulty in deciding, for Dr. MATTHEWS went appreciably further than do any except the very fiercest of Germany's enemies in formulating the punishments he thought she deserves, and he did not hesitate to make out a long list of highly placed Germans, military men and civilians, who should be court-martialed and shot as the criminals he held them to be.

With all this the assembled Presbyterians cordially agreed, and they seemed especially pleased by Dr. MATTHEWS's declaration that, when the allied nations assembled after the war to determine the conditions of peace, the German Government should be present only as is the prisoner who has been called into court for sentence. Curiously enough, though, when he came to telling what should be done with the Kaiser, whose personal responsibility for the war and its horrors is vastly greater than that of any other man alive or dead, the penalty demanded was not the one inflicted by a firing squad or the hangman, but merely exile for life to some lonely island, with nothing to read there except literature which tells of the triumph, peace, and prosperity of the United States and its allies.

That the Kaiser wouldn't like that is true. But with good reason he would count himself lucky, indeed, and earnestly thank whatever stars he might have left if nothing worse befell, and just possibly he, too, would see the element of the humorous there would be in the allotment to him of such a fate. Can it be that Dr. MATTHEWS, fierce hater of Germany as he is, shares the reverence for a crown that still lingers in so many minds and would have the post-bellum shootings stop just short of the Great Offender? He should read again the history of CROMWELL and his Ironsides and observe in the later English chronicles the effect on British royalty of what happened then to its representative.

A Peace Prize Used for War Purposes.

Possibly more of immediate and direct good would have been accomplished by Colonel ROOSEVELT with his Nobel Peace Prize money if he had given it in a lump sum to a single organization, and the American Red Cross naturally suggests itself to anybody who considers the possibility. Such consideration, however, is purely academic, and it does not, or at any rate should not, imply criticism of the wide distribution which the Colonel chose to make.

In the first place, the money was his own, absolutely, or as near to absolutely as any money can be one's own in wartime, and he was under no obligation at all to give it away—under none, that is, except the one imposed on him by his own feeling that to do so would be fine and therefore right. And, as the Colonel's sense of the practical is by no means dull or undeveloped, it may well be that he accomplished more by distributing the money as he did, among many beneficiaries, than he would have done by turning it all over even to the best of them. Which is the best, or even if there is a best where many are so good, is a matter of opinion, and a question of some delicacy besides. Taking the course he did, the Colonel not only showed the catholicity of his interest in, and appreciation of, the great organizations and societies whose good works are widely known, but he bestowed upon many other agencies and agents of relief whose operations have come less or not at all to public notice the very valuable guarantee of his approval. That will help them far more than the money he bestowed in these instances, for it can safely be assumed that these gifts were not carelessly made, and that every one of these objects and causes is what is called "worthy."

But how strange a thing it is that this money awarded to the Colonel in recognition of effectual work for international peace should all go for purposes which relate, at least obliquely, not to peace, but to war. This fact—it is to be hoped—will pain the pacifists as much as the Germans and their friends will be pained by their own failure to get any of it, but wiser and decenter folk will rejoice. It's quite all right as it is, and admirable, too, is the fact that the Colonel tied no conditions to his gifts—that he trusted the recipients to make proper use of them, and did not even offer any suggestions except a few that were in effect an authorization for the exercise of full discretionary power.

A Soldier's Courtesy Illustrated.

In most pleasing contrast with some of the current talk and writing about the American Army's part and purpose in the war was General PERSHING's answer to the message he had received from the Federal Council of Churches. After referring to the help our men get from the knowledge that they have a united country behind them to appreciate their deeds and to meet their needs, the General hastened to write: "We Americans have the added inspiration and encouragement that flow from the example and friendship of our allies, who for four years have been fighting our battles in fighting their own."

There was nothing in that of coming over to teach the art and practice of war to men who have learned it in the hard school of dreadful experience—no hint of an expectation to do more than stand side by side with heroic veterans of innumerable battles.

General PERSHING is as far as possible from lacking confidence in American soldiers, but it is a confidence marked with becoming modesty—the becoming modesty for which another and excellent name is common courtesy. In the General's message there is no faintest hint of "brigading the living with the dead." That dreadful statement could be made only some thousands of miles back of the firing line.

High Praise for Our Men.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It will, I am sure, be of interest to you and to your readers to read one more well-deserved tribute to the bravery and fine fighting qualities of the American Army in France. I cull the following glowing paragraph, with no apologies for its breadth of expression, from a letter today received from one of my brothers, who has been fighting for four years and is now a Major, commanding what is known to the British Army as "the fechting battery," and which in March fought the famous eight-day rearguard action and received a tricolor from the French Army for its gallantry. He writes:

"I have seen and heard many things to their (the Americans') greater and everlasting glory in action here. They are damned good. They are as good fighters as the Anzacs, and that's going some, and on the southern show have fought like wounded jaguars. Their one idea is to get over the top and into the Hun and stay put. Grand!" Grand, indeed.

Excess Profits.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The raising of war revenue by taking excess profits is again under discussion in Washington. The Secretary of the Treasury is reported to desire a reconsideration of this feature of the exceeding war revenue law; but Mr. Kitchen favors its retention and development.

Little space is given to this subject by the press. This may indicate that the public, regarding the matter as a phase of fiscal policy, is prepared for anything that may be deemed necessary to win the war, and is but mildly interested.

But the excess profits of enterprise—the profits that remain after providing for operation, maintenance and living expenses—constitute the only source in private hands from which extensions and development of industry and commerce can be provided for.

Excess profits are the thyroid gland of business life. If the Government shall take over these profits and administer them, it will, by this act, take the development of material civilization out of private hands; and such development will cease unless the Government shall assume the responsibility for it.

The program under consideration may be all right as a war measure but as a permanent fiscal policy it spells stagnation or socialism.

THE POILU'S GHOST.

I am a poilu's ghost. I fell
Where Soissons shamed the sinks of hell
With musketry and spattered shell.

You ask: "In Paradise how fare
The dead?" How should we know or care?
We would not leave the trench-graves here
For Paradise, while sacred France
Bears on her breast one Vandal lance
To scar the Frank's inheritance!

For, mark you well! We may not sleep
The while the Ardenne peasants weep—
The while the beasts who slew us keep
This slender strip, which is the all
Of earth that we, the dead, may call
Our own tonight! Though you may fall
Above, where now we hear you tread,
Win back the line for which we bled!
Oh, keep your faith with us, the dead!

ROOSEVELT DEMANDS SPEED-UP OF WAR

Would Send 4,000,000 Fighters, Thousands of Guns, and a Vast Air Fleet by April.

EXCORIATES ALL PACIFISTS

Says We Must Make Ready to Solve Industrial Problems That Will Come with Peace.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 26.—Speed up the war, prepare to defend ourselves afterward and make ready to solve the industrial social problems which will come with peace, were the demands of Theodore Roosevelt expressed in an address he delivered here today at the centennial celebration of the admission of Illinois to statehood.

"The two great needs of the moment," said the Colonel, "are to insist upon thorough-going and absolute Americanism throughout this land and to speed up the war; and secondarily to these needs come the needs of beginning even now to make ready, to prepare for the tasks that are to come after the war, the task of preparing so that never again shall war find us helpless, and the task of preparing for the social and industrial problems which this earth-shaking conflict of giants will leave in its ruinous wake.

"To insist upon thorough-going, 100 per cent. Americanism among all our people is merely another way of saying that we insist upon being a nation proud of our national past and confident of our future as the greatest of the nations of mankind; for if we permit our people to be split into a score of different nationalities, each speaking a different language and each paying its real soul homage to some national ideal overseas, we shall not be a nation at all, but merely a polyglot boarding house, and nobody feels much loyalty to a polyglot boarding house or is proud to belong to it.

American Pacifism Disloyal.

"We are not internationalists. We are American nationalists. We intend to do justice to all other nations. But in the last four years the professed internationalists, like the profound pacifists, have played the game of brutal German autocracy, the game of the militaristic and capitalistic tyranny which now absolutely rules the Prussianized Germany of the Hohenzollerns. American pacifism has been the tool and ally of German militarism, and has represented, and always will represent, deep disloyalty to our beloved country.

"For the moment the pacifists and internationalists and pro-Germans dare not be noisy. But let our people beware of them as soon as the peace negotiations begin and from that time onward. They have worked together in the past and they will work together in the future, the pro-Germans furnishing the most powerful and most sinister element of the combination, while the pacifists and the internationalists prance in the foreground and furnish the rhetoric.

"Let our people remember that for the two and a half years before we entered the war the pacifists clamorously insisted that if we kept unprepared we would avoid war. Well, we tried the experiment. We kept completely unprepared. Even after we broke off diplomatic relations with Germany we refused to make the slightest preparation, and nevertheless we drifted into the war. Pacifism and unpreparedness never keep a nation out of war. They invite war, and they insure that if war comes it shall be costly and long-drawn-out and bloody.

"Let us remember this when the peace comes. Don't trust the pacifists; they are the enemies of righteousness. Don't trust the internationalists; they are the enemies of nationalism and Americanism.

"When peace comes let us accept any reasonable proposal, whether calling for a league of nations or for any other machinery, which we can in good faith act upon, and which does really offer some chance of lessening the number of future wars and diminishing their area. But let us never forget that any promise that such a league or other piece of machinery will definitely do away with war is either sheer nonsense or rank hypocrisy.

An Army of the People.

"Let us rest our strength on an army which shall consist not of a special caste, but of the people themselves; on an army produced by the universal obligatory training of all our young men some time between the ages of 19 and 21.

"This is for the future. Our immediate duty is to win the war. We must speed up the war to the limit. We must try to finish it at the earliest possible moment, but be resolved to finish it, no matter how long it takes. We must insist on the peace of complete and overwhelming victory. We must remember that a huge army put in the field at one time will accomplish what the same number of men put into the field in driblets can never accomplish. We have a much larger population and much greater natural resources than Germany or than France and England combined.

"Therefore by next Spring we should have thousands of our own field guns, and scores of thousands of our own airplanes at the front, and an enormous ship tonnage in which to ferry across the ocean so many troops that by April we may have 4,000,000 trained fighting men at the front, not counting non-combatants and reserves. The age limits for the draft should be greatly increased and the exemptions greatly diminished."

Colonel Roosevelt enumerated some of the industrial problems that must be solved. He advocated co-operation among individuals and control by the Government to help business men succeed, but demanded a fair division of profits among all concerned. Workingmen, he said, should have their right insured to collective action, including collective bargaining. In a very real sense, he said, they should be made partners in the business, with a share in the profits and, at least along certain lines, a share in the control. But there must be no limiting of production, no reduction of the efficiency of the skillful and hard-working men to the plane of the shiftless and inefficient.

Insuring the rights of the farmer, he declared, should be a cardinal feature of the national policy. The farmer should be enabled to own his own farm. The national agricultural department, he urged, should be completely reorganized and its activities made more productive. Legislation to make the working farmer a land owner should be at once enacted.

"Drastic action should be taken," said Colonel Roosevelt, "to stop the purchase of agricultural land for speculative purposes. A system of marketing must be developed so as to do away with the hold-up methods that, in so many places, still obtain. There must be co-operation on a large scale among the farmers in marketing their products."

DAILY PAPERS AT 5 CENTS.

Atlanta Publications Announce Increase—Baltimore Editions Up, Too.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 26.—Both Atlanta afternoon newspapers, the Journal and the Georgian, announced today that, effective Sept. 1, the street sale price will be increased from three to five cents for the daily edition and from five to seven cents for the Sunday editions. Yearly subscriptions will be advanced about $1.75.

The Constitution, the only morning paper, remains at five cents for daily editions, but Sunday editions will be increased to seven cents, with an advance in subscription rates corresponding to the new rates of the afternoon papers.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 26.—All three of Baltimore's evening newspapers—The News, Star, and Evening Sun—today announced an advance in price from one cent to two cents, due to the mounting costs of white paper and general charges of newspapers.

MINISTER ADMITS DEFEAT.

German Official Says Loss of Ground Is Not Important.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—A diplomatic dispatch received from Basle today quotes the German War Minister as having said in an interview in the Morgen Post that the question of territory does "not play any part" in the present military operations.

"Unfortunately," the Minister is credited with asserting, "too much has been said about it. It is true that the last operations have not been attended with the success for which we had hoped. We have experienced some setbacks and, let us confess it, suffered a defeat. At the front ever since the beginning the possibilities of a check have been admitted, but in the rear such a reverse constitutes a warning, for it shows us that the war is not yet finished. What has to be done now is to drive back the enemy attacks and spare our own forces."

A diplomatic telegram from Berne states that, according to the Augsburger Abend Zeitung of Munich, the General commanding the district of Madgeburg, Prussia, has published a regulation threatening any person who spreads alarmist rumors with a year's imprisonment and a fine of 1,000 marks. Persons who ask questions likely to lead to affirmations of that nature will be subject to like penalties.

The Berliner Zeitung, says a Geneva dispatch, states that Imperial Chancellor von Hertling has exercised great pressure on leaders of the Reichstag in order to make them abandon their intention of demanding the convocation of the Reichstag Main Committee.

The Munich Neuste Nachrichten deplores the fact that the Reichstag itself will not be convoked soon, chiefly on account of the effect that this will produce outside Germany.

FINED BY FOOD BOARD.

Francis H. Leggett & Co. Turn In $1,400 to Red Cross.

The Federal Food Board announced yesterday that Francis H. Leggett & Co. had contributed $1,400.33 to the American Red Cross as penalty for taking excess profit on certain lots of barley flour and rice flour. The firm realized 12 per cent., it was said, whereas the margin allowed is 10 per cent. The amount paid to the Red Cross represented the excess.

The Food Board also issued a statement correcting the impression reported to exist in some parts of the trade that rye flour may now be used as substitute only to the extent of one-fifth of the substitute required, except in cases where large stocks of dark or medium rye on hand are in danger of spoiling. In such cases application should be made to the Food Board for permission to use rye flour as a substitute in larger quantities than permitted under the rules of July 19.

Harry Eckstein, a flour dealer at 3 Ainslie Street, Brooklyn, has been found guilty by the board of taking excessive profits for wheat flour. He had the option of contributing $3,619.08 to the Red Cross or having his license suspended. Eckstein, however, asked permission to sell some flour at a loss to the extent of the contribution suggested, and the board consented.

SEEK RECRUITS FOR SIBERIA

Brigade of British and Canadians Will Be Sent There Direct.

Major C. Brooman White, in charge of the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission at 220 West Forty-second Street, yesterday announced that beginning today volunteers will be accepted for the Siberian Expeditionary Force and that recruiting for this service will continue for two weeks only. The brigade will include artillery, infantry and engineer units and will be sent direct to Siberia without delay. Recruits accepted will receive the same pay as the Canadian soldiers.

Because of an urgent request from London for more fighting men, Major White yesterday emphasized the fact that Canadians and Britons between the ages of 20 and 45 years ought to realize the importance of the draft treaty now in force between the United States and Great Britain. Under this treaty recruits will not be accepted for service in the British or Canadian forces after Sept. 28, 1918. Those who have failed to answer the call will then be drafted by the United States Government.

THRIFT DRIVE SUM ASSURED.

Renewed Efforts of Salesmen Promise $25,000,000 Here.

Determined to raise $5,000,000 a day in the sale of War Savings Stamps for the remaining days of their $25,000,000 drive, the salesmen of the city renewed their efforts with such vigor yesterday as to make their goal certain of achievement before Friday night, when the campaign ends.

One feature of the drive was carried on in Wall Street yesterday with the aid of some of the well-known newspaper cartoonists, who drew cartoons on the steps of the Sub-Treasury. Among these were Oscar Cesare, Jimmy Swinnerton, and Tom McNamara. Their drawings were auctioned off at once for subscriptions in War Savings Stamps, the cartoon by Cesare being obtained by Martin Vogel, Jr., the five-weeks-old son of the Assistant Treasurer of the United States, for $1,000.

Addresses were delivered by Martin Vogel, Assistant Treasurer of the United States; William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association, and Roy F. Soule of the National War Savings Committee.

SEIZED COTTON TO BE SOLD.

Palmer Offers 950 Bales Once Owned by Enemy Aliens.

A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian, announced yesterday that all of the cotton in this vicinity held for export to Germany or elsewhere after the war, and formerly owned by enemy aliens, would be sold on Thursday, Aug. 29, at Providence, R. I. The lot contains 590 bales, and constitutes the remainder of the 1,250 bales stored in the Terminal Warehouse Company's plant at Providence. The cotton will be disposed of on the basis of 500 pounds to the bale, but without guaranty of quality or weight.

By order of the Alien Property Custodian, 7,549 bales of devitalized wheat gluten, amounting to 1,057,000 pounds, were sold yesterday at public auction at the Rossiter Stores at Fifty-ninth Street and North River. The sale was conducted by Horace O. Kilbourn. The entire amount of wheat gluten was purchased by Armour & Co., for 6¾ cents a pound.

CRITICISE THE WEBB LAW.

Argentinans Fear It Will Hamper Freedom of Their Markets.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 25.—The Webb law, which has been passed by the United States Congress and permits American exporters to co-operate in foreign trade, is sharply criticised in a long editorial printed today by La Epoca, the Government newspaper. This measure has been repeatedly attacked by other leading newspapers of Argentina.

"South American markets will be left to fight as best they can against the same commercial practices which are prohibited between the States," says La Epoca. "It is not likely we shall find tolerable that which the States have prohibited because it was obnoxious to them."

The newspaper expresses the hope that after the war the competition of other nations will counterbalance the effect of the Webb law in Argentina.

HOSPITALS OF CITY AT ODDS WITH ARMY

Send Committee to Washington to Confer with Gen. Gorgas—Fear Disorganization Here.

ADMIT SHORTAGE OF NURSES

Conference Here Asks Same Consideration as Essential Industry That the Movies Get.

The Hospital Conference of New York City voted at a meeting in New York Hospital yesterday to send a committee to Washington to confer with the Surgeon General for the purpose of forming a definite plan to furnish the greatest amount of medical and nursing aid to the army, without entirely disorganizing civil hospitals.

The meeting was called after numerous hospitals had received word from the Surgeon General's office that plans had been developed for calling out hospital internes and a certain number of advanced and intermediate medical students. This notification, it was said, took the hospitals by surprise because of earlier assurances that such a course would not be adopted.

The Hospital Conference Statement.

The following statement on the situation was issued:

A letter from the office of the Surgeon General of the United States Army suggesting that certain hospitals transfer to the Army School of Nursing considerable numbers of senior and possibly intermediate pupil nurses has come to the notice of the Hospital Conference of the City of New York, representing more than forty hospitals which conduct training schools for nurses. It is believed that this letter was sent out through a misunderstanding, for on June 1 the Secretary of War, in correspondence with representatives of the American Hospital Association, declared that "under no circumstances is the army to call out the second and third year pupils; that would be a body blow to the hospitals, and it is unnecessary."

The purpose of the Surgeon General's appeal appears to be to meet the shortage of nurses in the army.

A careful analysis of the situation shows that the shortage of nurses in the army cannot be fully met in the manner proposed, and cannot be even partially thus met without seriously impairing the efficiency of the civil hospitals, not only in the care of their own sick, but in the training of nurses and hospitals for army purposes.

The hospitals of the City of New York greatly desire to render adequate aid to the army in this emergency, and have been informed that at a recent conference in Washington at which the Surgeon General's office was amply and presumably authoritatively represented, it was decided to develop a program for the participation of the civil hospitals in the training of pupil nurses and hospital assistants (nurses' aids) in affiliation with the Army School of Nursing. The Hospital Conference is of the opinion that such a program should be prepared immediately by the Surgeon General's office, in conjunction with representatives of the American Hospital Association, and should then be presented to the hospitals of the entire country as a substitute for the makeshift proposal above referred to.

On the completion and promulgation of an adequate and dependable program, calculated to meet the army's nursing needs throughout the war, the Hospital Conference will devote its best energies to the execution of such a program, in loyal devotion to the Government and in hearty co-operation with the Medical Department of the Army.

The Hospital Conference of the City of New York has heretofore called attention to the progressive disintegration of hospital organizations and the steady loss of hospital efficiency under war conditions.

While these conditions are not wholly avoidable in the present military crisis, the difficulties inherent in the situation will be needlessly aggravated unless the situation is promptly, intelligently, and sympathetically handled by the Government.

The Hospital Conference notes with interest that the War Industries Board has declared the motion picture business in all of its branches to be an essential war industry. Apparently it has not yet occurred to any officer of the Government to bestow equal consideration upon the hospitals of the country, whose importance to the community is too obvious to call for description or defense.

The Hospital Conference of the City of New York appeals to the President of the United States to direct the War Industries Board, the Provost Marshal General, and the Surgeon General of the United States Army to formulate, in accordance with existing laws, regulations which, while giving due precedence to immediate military needs, will nevertheless preserve the integrity of the civil hospitals of the country as instruments of public service essential to the immediate care and comfort of the civil population, and necessary to the conduct of the war, in relation to which the hospitals serve as training schools for medical officers and nurses.

Working on Standard Course.

The heads of several hospitals, belonging to a committee acting for the American Hospital Association and the Hospital Conference of New York, are working upon a standard course of instruction for the training of hospital assistants in six months for duty in France. The directors of several hospitals here have urged the use of nurses' aids in hospitals in France, after the example of the British and other nations, but this was not encouraged until recently by the Surgeon General's office, whose original plans called for hospital nursing by trained nurses only. This policy was reversed recently by Surgeon General Gorgas because of the increasing size of the army and the growing appreciation of the fact that only a fraction of the trained nurses needed could be obtained.

As the new policy regarding nurses is understood, nurses who have been in training six months or more may be used as hospital aids. This plan was objected to yesterday on the ground that the first six months of trained nursing courses are usually devoted largely to lectures. It will be urged that hospitals, which have not engaged specifically in training hospital aids, should adopt intensive six months courses, substituting practical work largely for lecturing.

MOVE FOR AIR CHIEF GAINS.

Bill to Create New Cabinet Office Is Expected in Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Talk was heard in the Senate lobby today in favor of a bill to provide for a Cabinet portfolio on aircraft production, following the lines of the British Air Ministry. Leaders on both the Democratic and Republican sides of the chamber expressed approval of the suggestion, as embodied in the aircraft report of the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

Senator Chamberlain had a bill drawn last Winter to create such an office, but withdrew it when President Wilson announced a complete change in the Aircraft Production Board and put John D. Ryan in control of that activity. The President at that time opposed the bill drawn by Senator Chamberlain. Democratic leaders argued that the President had taken steps that would make the establishment of a Cabinet office in control of aircraft unnecessary.

Evidence before the Senate Military Committee by General Kenly, Chief of the Military Aircraft Bureau, and other experts, favoring the appointment of an executive in charge of aircraft production, with a Cabinet portfolio, has revived sentiment in favor of such a move.

It is likely that Senator Chamberlain or some other member of the Military Affairs Committee will offer such a bill within the next week. It admittedly would have substantial support among Democrats and Republicans.

BRITISH WOMEN SAY 'WAR TILL VICTORY'

They Stand With Lloyd George and Against Pacifism, Says Mrs. Pankhurst.

GIVES OUT THEIR PLATFORM

Tells What They Have Done and Warns Against Coming Propaganda to Let Bulgaria Out.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English suffragist leader, author and lecturer, returned to New York yesterday after a tour through the Eastern cities delivering addresses on women's work in the war and a visit to Washington.

After delivering a speech in New York on Labor Day in which at the request of Samuel Gompers, she will deal with the ruin of Russia by the Bolsheviki, Mrs. Pankhurst will go to Canada and then to England for the general election in October to fight for Lloyd George.

Mrs. Pankhurst said yesterday:

"It has been stated that our party was in favor of the Socialist Labor program. That is the very one we have been fighting against. Lloyd George has not got a machine behind him in the coming general election like the 'Wait and See' Liberal leader, Asquith, but he has the women voters with him and we are fighters from the start.

"All the real English people who believe in the win-the-war policy will stand solid with Lloyd George, and the only ones against him will be the pacifist 'Germany-is-not-so-bad' type and the backers of the Bolsheviki propaganda now being circulated in England.

"Asquith, with his delay, linger and wait-a-while policy will never get control of the Government again while the women have the power to prevent it."

Platform of the Women.

Mrs. Pankhurst made public this platform of the Woman's Party in England:

> War till victory, followed by a peace imposed upon the Germans and their allies which, by withdrawing subject populations from their control and by reducing their mineral and other warlike resources, will make it physically impossible for the Germans to wage another war with any prospects of success. The peace terms to include those indicated in the Allies' note to President Wilson, as follows:
> "The restitution of provinces formerly torn from the Allies by force or against the wish of the inhabitants; the liberation of the Italians, also of the Slavs, Rumanians, and Czechoslovaks from foreign domination; the setting free of the populations subject to the bloody tyranny of the Turks, and the turning out of Europe of the Ottoman Empire as decidedly foreign to Western civilization."
> In particular, the peace terms to include the restoration to France of Alsace and Lorraine and the dismemberment of the ramshackle Hapsburg Empire, these changes in the map of Europe being essential as a guarantee of future peace.
> The adoption of more radical and vigorous war measures, with a view to securing complete and speedy victory. Such measures to include:
> Food rations, accompanied by the development of communal kitchens, so as to economize domestic labor, reduce food waste, and guarantee to the people the best possible food at the lowest possible prices, cooked in the most skillful way, so that its full nutritive value may be secured.
> All non-essential industry to be now reduced and even prohibited in order to liberate additional labor power for agriculture and war industry and fighting power for the trenches.
> Efficient and loyal public service to be guaranteed by ridding all Government departments of officials having enemy blood or connections, and of all officials who have pacifist and pro-German leanings, or have displayed lack of the necessary zeal and competence.
> Better co-ordination of the military, naval, and aerial efforts of the Allies. Such co-ordination to be based on the principle of pooling the honor and the resources of the Allies.

She pointed out that the Woman's Party had accomplished the following things since the beginning of the war:

Set an example of loyalty and unity, undertook a great patriotic campaign, supported military service and held recruiting meetings, pioneered and campaigned for the employment of women in munition works, which was the cause of increasing Britain's military strength; sent women speakers all over the world to uphold the Allies' cause at public meetings, carried war into the pacifists' camp and refuted their arguments; attacked the evil of German influence in England; waged war on the "wait and see" war policy of the late Asquith government; fought against every form of compromise peace; devoted every effort against strike agitation, and roused the industrial workers to greater efforts in the national cause.

'Ware the New Peace Offensive.

In speaking of the expected German peace campaign this Fall, Mrs. Pankhurst said:

"It has already commenced in England and France with the intriguing over the proposal to declare Bulgaria a republic and grant her a separate peace, which is being carried on by the pro-Bulgarian-Balkan sympathizers. This would be a great injustice to Serbia and Rumania and a violation of the Treaty of Bucharest which was signed some time before the war commenced in August, 1914.

"My daughter, Christabel Pankhurst, who is the head of the Woman's Party in London, sent me a cable today containing a copy of the protest which she sent on behalf of the organization to Premier Lloyd George as a protest against Bulgaria being allowed to make a separate peace whether the Government becomes republican or not. The message reads:

> The Women's Party, having noticed a rumor that Bulgaria may declare herself a republic, nevertheless feels assured that the British Government, having regard for the fact that the Bulgarian people are equally responsible with their sovereign for the aggressive and iniquitous national policy of Bulgaria, which is the Prussia of the Balkans, will refuse to make any compromise peace with Bulgaria, whether that country be under a monarchical or a republican regime. Especially in view of the fact that any form of compromise peace would invoke spoliation of our faithful and heroic allies, Serbia, Rumania, and Greece, and would involve also the violation of British and allied pledges and honorable obligations to maintain Serbia, Rumania, and Greece in the possession of all territory they held before the war under the original Treaty of Bucharest.

"The German peace drive," Mrs. Pankhurst continued, "has already started in the United States by the dissemination of the reports that Germany is starving, her people are rioting and pulling down the Emperor's picture and that the army has lost its morale. Each time the Allies have driven the Huns back the same reports have been sent out via Switzerland or Holland, and these are followed by the various peace offers through neutral countries.

"I do not think for one minute that England would make peace now with the enemy, but there are men there and in France who will try to circulate the let-bygones-be-bygones humanitarian talk to try to influence the people. America has done a great work toward ending the war by sending an army to Russia we must go on fighting the Bolsheviki until their power over the people has been eradicated for all time."

Eddie Foy and Six at the Palace.

Eddie Foy and the younger Foys—reduced from seven to six by the enlistment of the eldest—are the headliners at the Palace this week in an amusing Irish-Italian act entitled "Slumwhere." Lester Sheehan and Pearl Regay, presenting songs, dances, and one thing and another, scored heavily with the matinée audience, and the program also included the popular Maud Lambert and Ernest Ball, the still more popular Van and Schenck, and Herbert Clifton.

Miss Costikyan Weds Ensign.

Costikyan of 423 West 120th Street, was celebrated at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Broadway Tabernacle, the Rev. William A. Kirkwood, the assistant pastor, officiating. The bride was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Costikyan, wife of Lieutenant Kevork Costikyan, U. S. A., Camp Meade, Md. Ensign Stanley had his brother, Herbert W. Stanley, as his best man, and there were no ushers. Ensign Stanley will take his bride to Hampton Roads, where he is stationed.

JESSE R. GRANT, JUST DIVORCED, MARRIES

Youngest Son of Late President, Aged 60, Weds Mrs. Lillian B. Wilkins, Widow, 41.

BEGAN NEVADA SUIT IN 1914

Lawyer Announced His Candidacy for Democratic Nomination for Presidency in 1908.

Jesse Root Grant, the youngest son of the late President Ulysses S. Grant, who obtained a Nevada divorce last week, and Mrs. Lillian Burns Wilkins of Inwood, N. Y., were married in this city yesterday afternoon after they had obtained a license from City Clerk Scully. Mr. Grant gave his age as 60 and his residence as 617 Fifth Avenue, the number of the Democratic Club, and Mrs. Wilkins gave her age as 41, and said she was a widow. Mr. Grant could not be reached at the Democratic Club last evening, but at the home of Mrs. Wilkins it was said that the marriage ceremony had been performed and that Mr. and Mrs. Grant had left the city for a few weeks.

Mr. Grant was born in St. Louis and was graduated from Columbia Law School in 1879, and in 1880 married Miss Elizabeth Chapman, a daughter of William S. Chapman of San Francisco, by whom he has two children, a son, Chapman Grant, aged 35, and a daughter, Mrs. Nellie Grant Cronan, the wife of a naval officer, aged 30.

In 1914 he began divorce proceedings in Goldfield, Nev., alleging his wife's desertion as the cause. He obtained a decree, but Mrs. Grant had the decree set aside. On Aug. 21 he again obtained a decree on the ground of desertion in Tonopah, Nev. This time Mrs. Grant did not contest the suit.

In 1908, after a stump speech tour through the South and West, Mr. Grant announced at the Manhattan Club, this city, his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency in opposition to W. J. Bryan.

WILSON TAKES HAND IN REVENUE DISPUTE

Secretary McAdoo would be taken up by the Senate Finance Committee.

Kitchin Foretells Delay.

Chairman Kitchin said that because of the differences between his committee and the Treasury, the bill would not be reported as prompt'y as had been expected.

"We cannot get this bill out in time to get it through the House and Senate by Sept. 28—the time for the next loan—and therefore there is no need to rush it," he said.

Many House Democrats are anxious to have the revenue bill delayed until after the Congressional elections. It is asserted by some of these members, viewing the situation politically, that the enactment of the bill before November would prove detrimental to Democratic incumbent in close districts. Whether there are any political considerations operating, it is becoming apparent that the revenue bill cannot be enacted for at least another two months. Leaders in the Senate assert that at least five weeks will be given to hearings by the Finance Committee after the bill is received from the House and that fully a month will be consumed by debate in the Senate.

"I cannot see how the bill can be disposed of finally by the Senate before late in October or perhaps not until after the November election," said Senator Penrose. "The Senate Finance Committee does not intend to allow a bill of such magnitude to be rushed through the committee hastily. If there is a desire to hasten its passage, I cannot understand why the Ways and Means Committee should delay reporting it to the House."

In the Ways and Means Committee today Representative J. Hampton Moore made an unsuccessful attempt to persuade the committee to adopt a proposition advanced by him in the House and by Senator Weeks of Massachusetts in the Senate for the appointment of a committee to audit war expenses. The vote was along strict party lines. Mr. Moore said so much money was being appropriated that it was time for a strict accounting and audit.

Proposed Taxes on Beverages.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Coincident with negotiations started in the Senate between prohibition and anti-prohibition leaders to postpone the effective date of the wartime national prohibition measure to be taken up soon, provisions of the revenue bill dealing with taxes on intoxicating liquors became known.

The schedule for the taxation of beverages proposes that all distilled spirits, either in bond or produced or imported, shall be subjected to a tax of $4.40 on a proof gallon, or on a wine gallon, if below proof. Should the distilled spirits be withdrawn for manufacture or production, the tax would be doubled.

On imported perfumes containing distilled spirits a tax of $3.30 a wine gallon is proposed. A rectifier's tax of 30 cents a proof gallon is to be levied on beverages, not including gin, produced by redistillation or aromatics.

On distilled spirits produced in this country, or imported and held for sale when the bill becomes a law, a floor tax of $2.20 is proposed. In event these spirits are intended for sale as beverages or beverage manufacture the floor tax would be doubled. For articles on which the tax under the 1917 tax has been paid, and which are held for sale when the present bill becomes a law a floor tax of 15 cents a gallon is provided.

The bill proposes a tax of $6 a barrel of 31 gallons on beer, lager beer, ale, porter, and other fermented liquors. On wines the tax is 16 cents a gallon on wines containing 14 per cent. alcohol, 40 cents for 14 to 21 per cent., $1 for 21 to 24 per cent., and the distilled spirits tax on wines containing more than 24 per cent. A wine producers' tax of 60 cents a gallon on grape brandy or wine spirits used in fortifying wines is proposed.

Champagne is to be taxed 12 cents a half pint in bottles; artificially carbonated wines, 6 cents a half-pint bottle; liquor cordials and such beverages, 6 cents a half pint. On all sweet wine held for sale by the producer an additional tax of 20 cents a gallon is to be levied on grape brandy or wine spirits used in fortifying, and an additional tax of 30 cents a gallon on all grape brandy or wine spirits withdrawn by a producer of sweet wines for fortifying purposes.

Included in the schedule is an independent tax of 30 per cent. on the sale prices of beverages containing less than ½ per cent. of alcohol sold by the manufacturer, producer or importer, and 20 per cent. on all unfermented grape juice, ginger ale, root beer, sarsaparilla, pop, artificial mineral waters and other soft drinks, and 2 cents a gallon on all natural mineral or table waters in bottles and on other waters selling for not more than 10 cents a gallon.

"The committee discussed a number of things today, including a provision regarding inadmissable assets in the calculation of capital under the excess profits tax," Chairman Kitchin said at the close of the session of the House Ways and Means Committee. "Inadmissable assets include stocks and bonds other than United States obligations from which income and dividends are not used in computing invested capital."

The bill as tentatively agreed upon provides that borrowed capital to the extent that it is invested in commonly termed inadmissable assets may be credited as part of the invested capital. The committee probably will modify this provision to meet the objection raised in the committee that it would permit companies with large bonded indebtedness to carry municipal and other bonds and thus obtain unfair credit for an overamount of invested capital.

PRINCE RUPPRECHT TO WED.

Luxemburg Princess to be Bride of German Army Commander.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 26.—King Leopold of Bavaria, at a family dinner on Sunday, according to an official statement made in Munich, announced the engagement of Crown Prince Rupprecht to the Princess Antoinette of Luxemburg.

Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, who has been in command of the German armies on the northern front in the west, recently went to Munich, it was reported, for a rest. His first wife died in 1912. The Crown Prince was born in 1869.

Princess Antoinette is one of the five sisters of the Grand Duchess Marie Adelaide of Luxemburg. All are unmarried. It has been reported several times through neutral sources that Emperor William was making vain attempts to have the Grand Duchess marry a German Prince. The Princess Antoinette is thirty years the junior of Crown Prince Rupprecht.

MATCH OF EIGHTY-TWO GAMES INAUGURATES NATIONAL TENNIS SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNEY

RECORD CONTEST OPENS NATIONAL TENNIS TOURNEY

Throckmorton Beats Taylor in Eighty-second Game of Five-Set Match.

FAVORITES ALL TRIUMPH

Murray Has Easy Time Winning First Struggle in Singles Championship.

A tennis record that has stood for thirty years was brushed aside unceremoniously in the opening round of the national singles championship tournament on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills yesterday afternoon. Away back in 1888 Palmer E. Presbrey defeated T. Suffern Tailer in a historic contest on the turf courts of the Casino at Newport with the score 19—21, 8—6, 6—1, 3—6, 6—4.

This made a total of eighty games, and until yesterday the match stood as the longest ever played in a national singles championship. It remained for two of the younger players of the game, Harold A. Throckmorton of Elizabeth and Harold L. Taylor of New York, to surpass the record which many had come to believe would last as long as tennis itself.

It was the brilliant, dashing Throckmorton who was returned the victor in a wondrous five set match with the score 6—8, 6—2, 11—9, 7—9, 13—11. This makes a total of eighty-two games played in the contest, which, when it was over, found both of the contenders bordering on complete exhaustion.

Throckmorton, who is now a Sergeant in the Coast Artillery, remarked to one of the linesmen after the fourth set, "Life in the army is a perfect cinch compared to a tennis match like this." Taylor, although the loser, appeared to be the fresher of the two. In fact, for the greater part of the last set, it appeared to the spectators that he would eventually be able to pull out the victory. But Throckmorton hung on doggedly, repeatedly playing an uphill struggle against the vantage game which lay with Taylor, and then finally he broke through and clinched the match in a superb rally.

Winner Takes 43 Games.

How long and how closely waged was the contest is shown by an analysis of the points and games. In all there were 503 points played in the match, 261 of them going to Throckmorton and the other 242 to Taylor. Of the games, Throckmorton won 43 and Taylor 39.

It was a fairly good-sized gallery that saw the two contenders for the singles title battle through more than three hours of play to a conclusion, the significance of which was hardly realized by even the most ardent followers of the game. In the course of thirty years even the most monumental match in tennis history was a bit rusty in the mind, and it was not until the records were glanced over anew that it was found that Throckmorton and Taylor had won fame for having played the longest match in the history of the game.

But it was a match that stood out not alone because of length to gain recognition. There was slashing, brilliant tennis much of the time, and while the mediocre was at times interpolated, this was only to be expected under the strain of such a struggle. By some strange insight into the future, the committee in charge of arrangements had given the match the place of honor on the championship court, and the gallery, which had been circulating here and there watching the other contenders, some of them the most prominent men in the game, got wind of the bitterly fought match that was being waged and most of them took up their places in the stand watching eagerly every shot that the rivals made in the rousing set that closed the contest.

Ripples of applause frequently swept over the courts in recognition of some particularly brilliant shot, but the players were unmindful. Their attention was centred only on the game. Each was wearied but determined. They almost forced themselves to the fray. Throckmorton, usually a picturesque and dashing figure on the courts, was slow in his movements, taking his own time to come into position, and the same was true of Taylor to only a slightly less degree.

Both Players Near Collapse.

Every moment it seemed that sheer physical exhaustion would cause the collapse of one or the other but that collapse never came. Finally Taylor was broken through and Throckmorton put all his strength into making his own service effective for the match. After he had won the verdict there was a wonderful rejuvenation on the part of the victor. He bounded to the net with all of his early enthusiasm, congratulating Taylor on a match well played.

The match in point of tennis skill cannot be compared with some of the other famous contests of the courts. There were too many lapses. Too often was the opportunity for a finishing stroke thrown away. It was particularly true of Taylor in the final set that he missed many a shot that might have been a determining factor in the match. The same was true of Throckmorton, but the good tennis far overshadowed the bad, and time and again there were flashing plays across the barrier that electrified the gallery. Wonderful recoveries and sparkling volleying duels were so much in evidence that the rather weak tennis of other moments was almost forgotten.

When Throckmorton was forced under in the fourth set, with the score 9—7, it appeared as if he had reached the breaking point. But he rallied his game for the opening of the fifth set and before long broke through Taylor's service. This gave him a commanding position, but he was able to maintain it for only a few minutes, for he was forced to relinquish his own service. After that the match went along merrily, each player taking his service games until finally Taylor was broken through after a deuce encounter in the twenty-third game. This was the turning point, for Throckmorton, fired by the knowledge that his own stamina would not avail him much longer, put all his strength into the next game and won it rather handily for the match.

The point score of the match follows:

Harold A. Throckmorton vs. Harold L. Taylor.

Taken as a whole, the opening day of the tournament did not supply any surprises. The leaders established themselves in advanced brackets without difficulty. There were a number of five-set matches during the course of the afternoon, but in no case was one of the prominent players forced to extend himself greatly to earn the verdict. It was among the lesser lights that the hard-fought struggles were played. All of the first-round matches were played and all of the second-round matches in the upper and lower half byes were also finished, so that the tournament has now settled down to the more serious contests when the leaders clash in what are expected to be stirring battles.

Robert Lindley Murray had the honor of opening the tournament, for he is the nearest approach to a defending champion that the event possesses. When he took the court to play against Jack Dudley in the first match of the day the grand stand was well filled, and there was a goodly bit of applause for the winner of the national patriotic tournament of last year, who is always a popular figure with the spectators. Among those present were Walter Camp, representing the navy, and Dr. Joseph E. Raycroft, representing the army. The tournament this year is being played for the benefit of the War and Navy Department Commissions on Training Camp Activities.

Murray met with little opposition from Dudley. The former Californian far outclassed his rival, and Dudley was able to take only one game in three sets, that coming in the last. The work of Murray was watched closely, for in the minds of many he is looked upon as the probable winner of the tournament. It was rather hard to judge of the worth of Murray's play because of the ease with which he won. However, it did seem that he possessed more speed than when playing at Southampton. His game appeared better rounded, with his ground strokes a bit more dependable.

Nathaniel W. Niles of Boston also won in straight sets by a one-sided score from H. Hane, the latter getting only three games. Straight sets prevailed also in the victories which were scored by S. Howard Voshell, Lieutenant Craig Biddle, Fred C. Baggs, Russel N. Dana, Conrad B. Doyle, Ichiya Kumagae, Irving C. Wright, Walter Merrill Hall, and Theodore Roosevelt Pell. In the case of Doyle, the advance was made at the expense of Lieutenant William A. Horrell. Both are from the same club, and Horrell did not exert himself to press Doyle to his utmost.

FAIRY WAND VICTOR IN THIRD ATTEMPT

G. A. Cochran's Filly Finally Lands in Front After Hard Race at Saratoga.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, Aug. 26.—On her third attempt within a week to gain winning brackets Gifford A. Cochran's Fairy Wand this afternoon mixed her speed with sufficient stamina to capture the Watervliet Handicap at a mile and a furlong. Little Willie Midgley, Jr., who rode the filly, trained by his father, had nothing to do but sit still, as Fairy Wand broke well from an inside position and led throughout. Fairy Wand was tiring at the finish and both Bondage and Star Master were catching her, but she managed to hold on long enough to win by a length.

Star Master, with Loftus in the saddle, was the favorite, but he was handicapped by the outside position and was forced to go wide at the first turn. L'Errant and Memories II. were the closest followers of Fairy Wand along the back stretch, and it was not until well around the bend that Star Master began to close the big gap. As he did Bondage came up from behind and the pair raced close together in the wake of Fairy Wand, with Bondage gaining the place by a neck. The performance was a good one from a time standpoint, as the 1:51 3-5 on a dull track is only a fifth of a second slower than the track record made by Advance Guard in 1902.

The Troy Selling Stakes for two-year-olds, which was so well patronized that it ran over the guaranteed value, fell to Edward Arlington's Questionnaire, which finished with a great burst of speed after being next to last in the early part of the race. Different Eyes set a fast pace, followed by Peter and Blairgowrie, until Questionnaire got ready to run in the stretch and win by two lengths. Peter took the place by four lengths from Blairgowrie.

Questionnaire's victory furnished the second success for the Arlington colors, as that owner's Brother Jonathan nosed out John E. Madden's Grouse in the first race at odds of 7 to 1. Only two favorites succeeded, the greatest upset coming in the last race, in which John E. Madden's Milkmaid and August Belmont's Cat's Paw finished in front of W. R. Coe's Herodias, an odds-on choice.

There was a mix-up in the first race in which Christie and Feu d'Artifice fell. Jockey Erickson, who rode the latter, broke his collar bone for the second time this season.

Indian Turner Defeats Levinsky.

Clay Turner, the Indian light heavyweight, gave Battling Levinsky the surprise of his career at the Armory A. A. in Jersey City last night by giving him a decidedly smart lacing for eight rounds. The Indian's boxing was superior to the Battler, and he hit him hard and often for six rounds. In the last two rounds only Levinsky's ring generalship saved him from a more serious defeat.

Lanky St. Louis Twirler Sends Locals to Shutout Defeat by Score of 2 to 0.

NO HELP OFFERED KEATING

Ray Pitches as if Seeking Victory, but Teammates Fail to Provide Runs.

The select gatherings of fans at the Polo Grounds these days do not seem to be any more enthusiastic about the game than they are about 50 cent shaves or dollar haircuts. The process of playing out the schedule brings no storming multitudes to the gates and the crowd which saw the St. Louis Browns beat the Yanks yesterday 2 to 0 wasn't as large as lots of gatherings you can find on any corner where some barker is exhibiting non-disappearing collar buttons.

In being defeated, Ray Keating pitched better ball than usual. That didn't worry big Dave Davenport hardly a bit, for the lanky Missourian was uncorking blinding shoots to the Yank batsmen. It could hardly be expected of the Yanks to slam the ball on the same occasion that Keating decided to pitch a good game. Under ordinary conditions Keating would have had a victory, but with the Yanks making all of four scattered hits, Keating traveled along his usual road.

Bill Lamar has gone away to the army and Manager Huggins planted catcher Al Walters out in right field, sent Gilhooley to centre and decorated first base with old John Hummel, as Jacques Fournier was indisposed. Fournier was supposed to have reported to the White Sox, according to the National Commission, but then the commission has been saying a lot of things lately that the ball players do not believe.

All the players have been given the blue envelope and they will wake up some of these fine mornings and find themselves initiated into an entirely new organization for them called the Sons of Toil. The players have been given ten days' notice of their release. Although they are free agents, the club owners have made an agreement not to tamper with each other's property. Perhaps they won't.

The only sound smash that the Yanks got off Davenport was a two-base prod by Frank Baker in the seventh inning. He made the hit with one out. Pratt skied to Gedeon and Hummel got an infield hit which sent Baker to third. Hummel made the spectators gasp when he stole second. Hyatt walked and jammed the bases and the banquet was all set for Peck to clean up, but all that he could do was to force Hyatt at second for the third out.

St. Louis didn't damage Keating much until the seventh, when Demmitt doubled to left. Tim Hendryx scored him with a single to centre. In the ninth George Sisler started off with a single to left and Demmitt sacrificed. Hendryx was thrown out by Peck at first and Gedeon was hit. Austin plugged a single to deep short and sent Sisler home.

BIG SERIES DATES STAND.

Herrmann Says National League Won Choice of Games.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 26.—Chairman August Herrmann of the National Baseball Commission issued a statement here today relative to the complaint made by President Frazee of the Boston Americans of the arrangements for the coming world series. Chairman Herrmann said that contrary to Mr. Frazee's idea, a coin had been tossed to decide which league should have the honor of the first game, and likewise that an agreement had been reached between the National and American Leagues to the effect that whatever league won the toss, the first three games would be played in the city of that league, while the other four games, if it is necessary to play that many, will be played in the city of the opposite league.

Chairman Herrmann's statement follows:

"Had Mr. Frazee waited until he had received his official bulletin with respect to the matter, possibly nothing would have been said by him. The schedule as arranged was made by the National Commission as an entirety and not by Mr. Johnson.

"The first thought we had in mind was to conserve transportation, and for that reason it was agreed that whatever league won the toss that the first three games would be played in the city of such league and the other four games, if it was necessary to play that many, in the city of the opposite league.

"Mr. Bruce, acting for the commission, tossed the coin. Mr. Heydler called "heads" and won. Therefore the first three games were assigned to the city in the National League where the pennant winning club is located, and the other four, if it is necessary to play all of them, in the American League city.

"The schedule will be carried out regardless of whether it suits Mr. Frazee or not."

GIANTS REVIVE IN ST. LOUIS.

Race Over, Perritt and Toney Display Effective Pitching.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 26.—The Giants played well behind the excellent pitching of Pol Perritt and Fred Toney today and took both games of a double header from the Cardinals. Perritt pitched a shut-out in the first game, winning by a score of 2 to 0, his team mates peppering the offerings of Red Ames. In the second game, the Giants knocked Gene Packard out of the box and won by a score of 4 to 1.

In the fourth inning, after Doyle had walked and died stealing, Fletcher singled to deep short. Zimmerman doubled to left, scoring Fletcher. In the seventh, Burns opened with a double to left, reached third on Young's infield hit, and scored on Kauff's single to right. In the face of Perritt's airtight pitching the Cards had few opportunities to score.

Rogers Hornsby disputed a third strike called on him in the second inning of this contest, and Umpire Harrison banished him for the afternoon.

Sicking started the Giants on their way to a run in the fourth inning of the second game by beating out a hit to deep short. Rariden followed with a double to left, scoring him.

Two errors made it possible for the Cards to tie the score in the fifth. Fisher lifted a pop fly, which Sicking muffed close to the pitcher's box, and Toney, picking the ball up, heaved it past first, Fisher reaching third. McHenry then raised a sacrifice fly to Burns on which Fisher scored.

McGraw's men again forged ahead in the third on a single by Zimmerman, a wild pitch, a pass to Sicking, and singles by Rariden, Toney, and Burns.

TRANSPORT CORPS CREATED FOR ARMY

Will Take Over Control of All Vehicles Except Tanks and Caterpillars.

MOTOR TRUCKS' GOOD WORK

Efficiency Shown in Recent Battles to be Increased—Organization Will Exceed 200,000 Men.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The creation of a Motor Transport Corps, to take over complete control of all vehicles in the army—from bicycles to motor trucks—was announced by the War Department tonight. The purpose is the more rapid movement of troops and supplies of the American Expeditionary Force in France.

The new corps is being organized by Colonel Charles B. Drake, a West Point graduate of the class of 1896, an officer experienced in motor transport work. Eventually his command will consist of approximately 5,000 officers and 200,000 men. Motor transport service up to the present time has been under the control of the Quartermaster Corps. It has grown to such proportions that it is deemed necessary to establish it as a separate corps and take steps for its further rapid expansion.

The War Department is following in the footsteps of the British and French armies, which some time ago adopted the plan of putting the whole motor equipment under a single head. Experience in handling American soldiers in the field in France has demonstrated the need for similar action on the part of the American Government.

All equipment and personnel in the various corps, with the exception of tanks and caterpillar tractors, are transferred to the new corps. Tanks have a distinct service to perform that does not involve the movement of troops and for that reason are not brought into the new Motor Transport Corps. Caterpillar tractors which are to be used for hauling guns remain under the supervision of the artillery and ordnance branches. But everything else in the motor transport line goes into the new corps.

Standardization of Equipment.

Among the many advantages sought by the creation of the Motor Transport Corps is the more perfect standardization of equipment, resulting in greater efficiency and economy of operation and permitting a more fluent interchange of drivers and parts. The problem of supplying parts and making repairs will be greatly simplified. Motor trucks are taking a more vital part in each successive big battle. In the recent counteroffensive of the French and Americans at Château-Thierry, motor trucks carried several regiments of troops to critical points in the line and supplied them with heavy and light guns, ammunition, horses, mules, and even wagons for supply train use over difficult terrain.

Motor trucks made it possible for the French to concentrate troops, ammunition, and supplies sufficient to stop the Germans at Verdun. When German aviators destroyed the railroad facilities, General Joffre called motor trucks into service to replace the wrecked trains, which they did with entire success.

In attacking along the Marne recently the American units were supported by machine guns mounted on trucks and even passenger cars, which swept the enemy lines with a storm of fire. Trucks were also used extensively to bring up reserves. Much of the work of the corps must be done at night, and it is well known that much used roads near the front are regularly searched by the enemy artillery, so that the motor transport service, while technically noncombatant, is really quite as active and dangerous as many fighting branches.

The present motor establishment in France includes many repair stations, some of them operated by from 500 to 1,500 mechanics and other skilled men each. The program of the Motor Transport Corps provides for greatly increased facilities along these lines. Repair work is carried on in garages, parks, depots, and reconstruction shops. A service park is a mobile garage which can be moved rapidly to any point where it is needed. An overhaul park is a large station where heavy repairs can be made, and a reconstruction park is equipped to completely rebuild broken-down or shell-shattered machines. Under the new organization the work of salvaging damaged machines, already highly developed, is to receive increased attention. All this work is necessarily in the hands of skilled men, and the personnel must be greatly increased to provide the transport service that will be needed next year.

Adventurous Service.

While the Motor Transport Corps handles many kinds of motor propelled vehicles, the army truck is the most important, and the demand for men especially qualified to drive and handle the trucks is great. Men qualified for this work by their experiences in civil life have offered themselves in numbers, but it has been found necessary to establish several motor transport schools in addition to the one at Jacksonville, Fla. In these schools candidates will learn, under competent instructors, the intricate mechanism of gas engines, so that they will be qualified to keep their trucks running under the trying conditions existing along the front lines, where their principal work will be done.

Men sent to these camps will be carefully chosen, as the work requires initiative and ability. Among those who have already enrolled are many who occupied positions of responsibility in civil life. At Jacksonville now are bankers, high-salaried executives, engineers and men of many professions who have been attracted to the corps by its opportunities for active service overseas after a comparatively short course of training. With the increasing use of motor transport in moving troops from point to point on the battle line, the life of the motor driver is becoming progressively more adventurous and exciting.

EGGS.—20,748 cases. There appears no general improvement in the quality of fresh gathered stock arriving; some lots are running even poorer than heretofore, while others show some improvement. There is still a very wide range in the character of the stock. High qualities continue in light supply and firm and there is fair call for good value medium grade eggs which do not show dead loss. Inferior qualities badly mixed with hatched eggs, rots and spots are still pressing for sale at any reasonable offers. There is a good demand for storage eggs and prices rule firm. Nearby white eggs moving slowly and prices averaged lower although the full range of values is about the same as recently quoted. Only a few of the fanciest eggs reach top quotations on sales to jobbing trade. Some further receipts of California eggs but these are not on the market as yet. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 50@52c; regular packed extra firsts, 47@49c; regular packed, 43@46c; seconds, 37@42c; poor to fair, 20@36c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 35@37c; No. 2 and poorer, 20@34c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 31@33c; undergrades, 20@30c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 43½@44c; firsts, charges paid, 42@43c; seconds, charges paid, 38@41½c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 66@68c; ordinary to prime, 50@65c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 45@65; Pacific Coast whites, firsts to finest, 63@65c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 45@60c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby hennery browns, 52@55c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 38@52c.

McADOO ASKS CRITICISM.

Both Commendation and Complaint Welcomed by New Railroad Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Establishment of a Railroad Administration "Bureau for Suggestions and Complaints," to be located here was announced today by Director General McAdoo. Notices will be posted soon in railway stations and passenger coaches, saying in part:

"Criticisms and suggestions from the public will be extremely helpful, whether they relate to the service rendered by employes and officials or impersonal details. It is impossible for even the most vigilant management to keep constantly in touch with local conditions and correct them when they are not as they should be, unless the public will co-operate in pointing out deficiencies and disservice when they exist, so that the proper remedies may be applied.

"Aside from letters of complaint or suggestion, the public can render a genuine service by sending letters of commendation of employes who are conspicuously courteous and efficient in the performance of their duties. Nothing promotes the spirit of a great organization more than recognition from time to time of those employes who perform their duties faithfully and commendably.

"It is requested that all communications be brief and explicit and that the name and address of the writer be distinctly written. Also give the time of day or night, the number of the train, the name of the railroad, and, if possible, the name of the employe whose conduct is complained of or whose services are commended, together with such other information as will enable me to take appropriate action."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks React on Profit-Taking in More Active Session—Foreign Bonds Up.

The upward movement launched under such favorable auspices at the close of last week was halted quickly yesterday when traders who had bought stocks in the early stages of the recovery took advantage of a more active buying demand to realize profits. With a slightly larger volume of business than the Street had become accustomed to, the more active issues, both rails and industrials, yielded ground and the list closed irregular.

The flurry which the market experienced on Saturday was induced primarily by the spreading belief that money would be more plentiful for speculative operations as a result of the broadening practice of lending money on acceptances at a preferential rate. Such a theory is based on a misunderstanding of the workings of the new departure. In the past the stock market has enjoyed a preferential rate because of the liquid nature of call loans secured by Stock Exchange collateral; in the future the advantage will lie with the borrower for commercial uses. Bankers expect to see call money stabilized, in the sense that it will probably move less violently, but they see no reason for adhering to a fixed rate of perhaps 6 per cent. when speculative activity is greater than the supply of call funds justifies.

The decision of bankers to advance call money on prime acceptances at the acceptance rate is expected to bring about a much more widespread use of this facility, particularly in the financing of crop movements and mill and manufacturing needs. When the South is delivering cotton at the warehouses acceptances secured by the warehouse receipts will come into the New York market; grain receipts will be used in the same way at Chicago and Minneapolis. Banks in one section of the country will be employing surplus funds for the purchase of acceptances when other sections are borrowing. It is a development under the Federal Reserve system which was certain to come and which will make for stability in international as well as domestic transactions.

The effect of the good news from the western battlefront has been more marked in the bond department than in stocks. Foreign Governments were strong yesterday, the City of Paris 6s selling at 93¼, the French Government 5½s over par, and the United Kingdom notes due next year within a small fraction of par. There was a reactionary tendency in Liberty 3½s, which closed at 102 flat, and in the farm loan bonds. The United States Government 2s and 4s available for circulation were in active demand by banks.

CHEERFUL TONE IN LONDON.

Continued Successes on Battlefront Stimulate Trading.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The stock market had a cheerful tone again today. The continued successes of the Allies stimulated the demand, but the turnover was only moderate, as many securities are strongly held. Central American issues were wanted, while other foreigners were quiet.

Shipping shares advanced in anticipation of an extension of the movement toward the concentration of resources. Gold mines were good following the improved labor outlook.

Money was in better demand and discount rates were steady.

Prices Firm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Prices were firm on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 62 francs for cash. Exchange on London, 26 francs 60 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 87 francs 85 centimes.

EXPLAINS BOND CONVERSION

Deputy Governor of Reserve Bank Urges Registering Securities.

Louis F. Sailer, Deputy Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, sent out letters yesterday to banks and trust companies in this district asking their co-operation in acquainting the public with the fact that the privilege of converting the 3½ and 4 per cent. Liberty Loan bonds into bonds bearing interest at the rate of 4¼ per cent. will cease on Nov. 9.

The Bond Issue Division of the bank reports that up to the close of business Saturday there had been converted $24,886,250 of the First Liberty Loan bonds and $400,229,750 of the Second Loan bonds.

Mr. Sailer in his letter calls attention to the fact that registered bonds are safer than coupon bonds, and suggests that the public be advised of the desirability of obtaining registered bonds. There have been sent to the banks several posters containing information regarding the conversion privilege and the safety of registered bonds.

CANADIAN RAILWAY PROFITS.

Three Principal Systems Report Gain Due to Rate Advances.

Owing to the rate advances the aggregate railway earnings of the three chief Canadian systems for the first half of the current year exceed those of any previous corresponding period. The tonnage carried has been practically the same as last year. At present the amount of freight offering is equal to the capacity of the existing facilities.

Discussing the railroad situation in the Dominion, the Canadian Bank of Commerce of Toronto, says:

"Since the beginning of 1915 the cost of operating the railroads has steadily advanced and has absorbed a correspondingly larger proportion of the earnings. Not until the Winter of last year was an appreciable advance in rates put into effect, and since that time extraordinary advances in wages have been granted, necessitating a further increase in rates. It is quite evident that serious as were the difficulties caused by the high price and scarcity of labor, materials and rolling stock, transportation companies have been able to increase the transportation service they give to the country, although they were not permitted until quite recently to increase their charges at all in proportion to the increased cost of operation."

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Spanish Credit and Cotton.

News that the Government was arranging a credit in the neighborhood of $75,000,000 with Spanish bankers brought about a softening of Spanish exchange rates yesterday, although the downward tendency did not develop until late in the day. At 24 cents to the peseta at the close, the cable quotation showed a decline from Saturday's final price of close to a half-cent. While details of the credit arrangement have not been made public, it is understood that 40,000 bales of cotton, worth about $6,800,000 at current quotations, are to be shipped to Spain each month for the remainder of the year or longer, to assist in liquidating the loan. In addition, petroleum and steel are expected to go out in increased tonnages.

Hide and Leather Directors.

Considerable interest in financial circles centres about the annual meeting of the American Hide & Leather Company on Sept. 4. It has been rumored for some time that new interests would find representation on the Directorate at that time. Henry Evans, President of the Continental Life Insurance Company, and M. C. Branch, of Richmond, Va., were mentioned yesterday as probable new Directors. The latter is understood to have acquired a substantial total of preferred shares in recent months. The stocks of the company, notably the preferred, have advanced with persistent strength during the last two months, stimulated by discussions of tentative plans for taking care of the back dividends on the senior stock issue, which amount to 117 per cent. A proposal is looked for soon after the stockholders' meeting.

Steel's Strong Start.

Steel common did well enough at the opening to cheer traders who bought late in Saturday's burst of strength, quickly moving up to 115. It seemed, then, as though a lot of owners of the stock thought the time had arrived to take their profits. Offerings were sufficiently heavy at 115 to cause a decline in a few minutes, and thereafter the demand was not insistent enough to prevent a retrograde movement to 113⅞. Before the close, however, the stock took on a firm tone; in fact, throughout the afternoon, following the decline below 114, the trend was steadily more toward firmness than heaviness.

The Effect of Outside News.

Cuba Cane Sugar gained a point and American Sugar Refining a half point, the rise representing, apparently, some speculative buying on the news that the price of sugar would be increased. The automobile company shares might have been expected to go down on the information from Washington that the making of passenger cars might be shut off at the end of the year, but they did nothing of the sort. The half-point decline of General Motors meant nothing for that stock, and Maxwell Motors and Studebaker gained fractions.

National Banks and Liberty Bonds.

According to figures just made public by John Skelton Williams, Controller of the Currency, the national banks of the country owned on June 29 Liberty Loan bonds to the amount of $408,859,000 and Treasury certificates of indebtedness totaling $618,766,000. This makes an aggregate amount of $1,027,625,000 of Government securities, exclusive of bonds used to secure circulation and exclusive of Liberty bonds which the banks had contracted to sell. The Controller also reports that the total amount of money which the banks were loaning on the security of Liberty bonds on the date mentioned was $457,000,000. "The banks of the country," Mr. Williams declares, "are now in a position to contribute largely of their own resources toward the purchase of Liberty bonds if there should ever be occasion to do so; but it is hoped and believed that they will be able to continue successfully their policy of aiding in the diffusion of the Liberty Loans widely among the people rather than of buying them for their own account."

French Government Bonds Higher.

The French Government 5½ per cent. bonds crossed par yesterday and sold up to 100⅛, the record high price for the year. Bonds of this issue sold at 98¾ last week and closed Saturday at 99⅝. The City of Paris 6 per cent. bonds were also strong, selling up to 93¼, compared with 91⅛, quoted last week, and 92⅛, the final quotation on Saturday. The 6 per cent. bonds of the Cities of Bordeaux and Lyons changed hands at 96, while the City of Marseilles 6s were traded in at 95⅝.

Demand for Circulation Bonds.

Dealers in United States Government securities report that there is a fairly good demand for United States 2 and 4 per cent. bonds available for circulation purposes on the part of national banks which are contemplating to increase the volume of their national bank notes.

ST. LOUIS BANK CLOSED.

Poor Collateral and Slow Security Cause Shutdown.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 26.—The Union Station Bank, with deposits of $1,800,000, did not open for business today, and it was announced that the bank was in the hands of State Bank Commissioner Enright. Of the total deposits $732,442 were savings deposits. Bank examiners began an investigation a week ago.

President F. W. Wrieden of the bank said poor collateral and slow security caused the institution's financial condition.

GARY, Ind., Aug. 26.—The Northern State Bank was closed by the State Auditor late today. The bank is declared to be in an insolvent condition. According to the last statement deposits totaled $655,428, and the liabilities amount to $822,450. The capital is $100,000.

DIVIDENDS AWAIT TAX LAW.

Middlewest Utilities Company Decides to Defer Payments.

The Middlewest Utilities Company has decided to defer payments of further scrip dividends on its $20,000,000 preferred stock because of the uncertainties of the pending income tax law. In a statement sent to stockholders, Samuel Insull, President, explains the situation in this way:

"Public discussion indicates quite clearly that the normal tax on incomes will be considerably increased. While it is not altogether clear that the interest-bearing certificates heretofore issued in lieu of cash dividends upon preferred stock of the company will not be taxable as income, the Board of Directors, having due regard to the wishes of the stockholders from whom they have heard, are persuaded that it is to the best interest of the stockholders for the time being to defer the declaration of preferred dividends in certificates and allow the dividends to accumulate."

FEDERAL BANK ASKS CREDIT CURTAILMENT

Pierre Jay Requests Institutions of This District to Agree on Common Action.

LOANS FOR ESSENTIAL WORK

Suggestion Made That Business Men Stop Overbuying, Carry Small Stocks, and Delay Expansion.

Banks and trust companies received in the mail yesterday a letter from Pierre Jay, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, requesting them to conserve credit by restricting or curtailing loans made for purposes not directly connected with Government financing, or the production or distribution of things necessary to maintain the health and efficiency of our armed forces and our civilian population. Mr. Jay suggests that an effective move to bring about the desired results would be for the banks in each city or county to reach an agreement for common action.

The Reserve Bank asks the individual banks to call to the attention of their depositors and customers the need of the conservation of credit. It points out that manufacturers and merchants can reduce their credit requirements by not overbuying, by carrying as small stocks as possible, by postponing new construction or expansion of their business, and by effecting business economies. The Reserve Bank has prepared a form letter on this subject for distribution among depositors, and advises the banks that it will furnish them in any quantity without charge.

Chairman Jay's letter to the banks follows:

Dear Sir: The Federal Reserve Board wrote you on July 6 relative to the necessity of conserving credit in order to furnish the Government the increasing volume of credit it requires to finance the war, and the Directors of this bank have instructed its officers to discuss the subject further with every bank in the district. While no general rules or program for the conservation of credit can be laid down, the duty of each bank is to do its share in securing the desired results, acting reasonably and judiciously, in such ways as its own conditions make practicable and as well spare borrowers undue embarrassment. We have no doubt that, like most bankers, you have already made some progress toward conserving credit, and our Directors wish to supplement the Federal Reserve Board's letter by asking you now to take up this necessary work systematically and conscientiously.

Saving of credit by banks, in order to help the situation as a whole, must be the result of saving on the part of the borrowers. Shifting loans from one institution to another, or sales of collateral which merely throw the burden upon other shoulders, save no credit. Credit conservation can only be accomplished by business or personal economies, and requires co-operation between banks and their borrowers, and education of borrowers by their banks.

Producers, manufacturers, and merchants may do their part and reduce their credit requirements.

By not overbuying.

By carrying as small stocks as practicable.

By postponing new construction, or expansion of their business.

By effecting business economies.

Individuals may do their part by studying their personal expenses and effecting economies which will enable them gradually to pay off their loans.

May we suggest that you make a careful analysis of your loans and lines of discount in order to determine definitely what credit now in use is not directly connected with Government financing, or the production or distribution of things necessary to maintain the health and efficiency of our armed forces and our civilian population? While the majority of bank loans will prove to be for these purposes, most institutions also have a considerable volume of loans to individuals made for other purposes, many of them of long standing. It is to loans of this character, as well as to the less necessary commercial borrowings, that credit conservation should first be applied.

New commercial lines or new loans to acquire or improve property, or for nonproductive purposes, will rarely be justified unless they are to aid directly in the prosecution of the war. A spirit of saving in the use of credit will naturally lead the banks themselves to exercise restraint in offering no or additional lines of credit in competing for business. A frank discussion of the principles and the necessity of credit conservation with a borrower will usually gain his co-operation, and where a borrower is asked to reduce a loan having securities or commodities as collateral, emphasis should be laid on the necessity of gradual and steady reduction by personal economies rather than by selling the collateral.

Several of our member banks, wishing to discuss the matter with their borrowers, have asked us to prepare a brief statement on the subject. We have prepared such a statement, which banks, if they so desire, may either use as a form letter or inclose with a letter of their own. We shall be glad to furnish either statement in any quantity to any bank in the district. Copies are herewith inclosed.

Will you be so good as to acknowledge this letter, advising us what you are doing or are willing to do in order to save credit and giving us your views as to the best method of accomplishing the necessary results? We suggest that one most effective step would be for all the banks in your city or county to reach an agreement for common action. Whenever this bank can properly assist, you may count upon our co-operation. Very truly yours,

PIERRE JAY,
Chairman Board of Directors.

The form letter prepared by the Reserve Bank for distribution among depositors embodies substantially the statements contained in the foregoing letter to bank Presidents.

MARKET OPENED HERE FOR ACCEPTANCE LOANS

Rate Paid Is 4½ Per Cent., but Volume of Business Is Comparatively Small.

The acceptance call money market was formally established yesterday when J. P. Morgan & Co. and other banking firms and trust companies freely offered funds to dealers in acceptances at preferential rates. The rate paid was 4½ per cent. as compared with 6 per cent. charged for Stock Exchange collateral call loans. The volume of so-called acceptance loans made yesterday was relatively small, but the willingness of institutions and firms to lend on these liquid securities at rates lower than those charged for the regular stock loans, stimulated the market for acceptances, and the purchases of the bills for investment were larger than for a considerable length of time.

The rate for prime member bank acceptances was 4$\frac{3}{16}$ to 4¼ per cent. and for nonmember bank acceptances, 4⅜ to 4$\frac{7}{16}$, unchanged from last week's quotations.

Although the acceptance call money market had its formal opening yesterday, following last week's announcement by J. P. Morgan & Co., several banking institutions have been making advances to acceptance brokers for some time. It was learned yesterday that one large trust company had been engaged in the business for four or five months, during which time it had had outstanding from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 in loans on acceptances. This institution has been lending at preferential rates on the average of $2,000,000 a day.

A number of private banking firms made it known yesterday that they were willing to lend money on acceptances at preferential rates, and several trust companies made similar announcements.

The Stock Exchange call money market yesterday was firm at 6 per cent. and the so-called Money Pool was a large lender.

Central Foundry Earnings Decline.

The Central Foundry Company reports a total income of $488,988 after meeting operating expenses in the six months ended June 30 last, a decline of $561,639 from the result in the corresponding period last year. The decline was caused, in part, by the fact that a furnace of the Central Iron & Coke Company, a subsidiary, was out of operation during a period of the second quarter. After providing for sinking funds, depreciation and setting aside $37,200 for the Federal war taxes, a net income remained of $253,136. The balance for dividends was equal to $199,170, against $862,000 a year before, when allowance was made for only a part of the full Federal taxes.

SAYS RUMELY LAID A TRAP FOR CREEL

Deputy Attorney General Becker Tells How Odell Article Was Rejected.

DISSECTED BY AN EXPERT

Investigator Quotes from Mail's Correspondent to Show How Berlin Inspired "News."

Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker, in charge of the German propaganda investigation now being made at the request of the Federal Government, issued a statement yesterday in which he said that Dr. Edward A. Rumely, who was publisher of The Evening Mail during the period that paper was in control of the German Government, had tried to get the approval of George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, of a pro-German article.

"On Jan. 3 of this year, nine months after this country entered the war," said Mr. Becker, "Dr. Rumely wrote to Mr. Creel, as Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, as follows:

> Dear Mr. Creel—I am sending herewith proof of a translation of a German manuscript which Odell brought with him. It may interest you.
> EDWARD A. RUMELY.

"With this letter was inclosed an article entitled 'A Plea for Peace by Reconciliation,' by Gerhardt von Schulze-Gaevernitz, a member of the Reichstag and Professor of Economics in Freiburg University. On Jan. 7, Mr. Creel returned the proof to Rumely with the following letter:

> My dear Dr. Rumely—I return the proof sent me together with the comment on it of one of our finest experts.
> Sincerely,
> GEORGE CREEL.

"The comment referred to by Mr. Creel, which was unsigned, was as follows:

> This article by von Schulze-Gaevernitz is a typically specious bit of German pleading. It leaves the question of who started the war—"to historical research." It falsifies dates in order to make the submarine war on commerce a consequence of the British blockade.
> It declares that President Wilson has expressly shaken off the claim of France to Alsace-Lorraine, and quotes him as standing for peace, "without victors or vanquished." It argues for the status quo, with various additions to Germany's "small land, rich in children, poor in raw materials," with economic preferences in Turkey, &c., ad nauseam.
> The only honest thing for American purposes in the whole article, is the paragraph in which the author warns the "Fatherland Party" of the danger of a general strike and revolution toward which they are driving.

Excerpts from articles written by Odell after his return to this country were quoted by Mr. Becker as illustrating the misleading propaganda which he said was designed to curb military activity in the United States.

"No matter what the military outcome may be," Odell quotes Professor Gaevernitz as saying, "the moral victory of the war will be won by the western democratic nations, and that alone will be the greatest blessing that can befall the German people."

"All Germany is for peace," Odell wrote. "The industrial workers and the peasants want it for obvious reasons. * * * The business men want it."

"The revival of the U-boat warfare last February was unpopular with the German business men," wrote Odell, "and Zimmermann's offer to Mexico to hand over Texas, Arizona, and New Mexico as recompense for an alliance and in getting Japan to switch over to the Central Powers' side in the war, made them thoroughly angry."

Mr. Becker pointed out that Odell tried to create the impression in this country that the views of President Wilson carried great weight in Germany.

"To their initial desire for peace, which began to manifest itself a year ago," he wrote, "the German masses have now added the wish to live on a par with the rest of the civilized world. * * * Those principles of peace first enunciated by President Wilson, and restated by the Russian revolutionists, struck a responsive chord in the hearts of the German people."

Mr. Becker said that Odell has admitted that he obtained most of his data in Germany after this country entered the war, and that articles cabled to this country had the sanction of Dr. Roediger, official censor of the German Foreign Office.

"In other words," said Mr. Becker, "the articles were written to mislead the President and people of the United States, the purpose being to bring about a lull in America's war preparations."

NO LABOR DRAFT FOR PROFIT

Men, if Called, Will Work Only for the Nation, Says Post.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—The Administration's attitude toward conscription of labor was outlined before the Association of Commerce today by Louis F. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor.

"The time may come," he said, "when we will have to conscript workers in mines, forests, and factories, but in the name of democracy these men shall not be conscripted until we have first conscripted the places where they shall work. This democracy will not stand for the conscription of men to work for the profit of other men. The conscripted man must work for Uncle Sam and no one else."

COTTON MAKES GAINS IN UNSETTLED MARKET

Net Results Range from 40 to 55 Points with Trading on Limited Scale.

The cotton market yesterday was irregular and unsettled. It opened barely steady unchanged to 45 points lower. Trading was not on a large scale. Moderate liquidation was induced by poor cables and further reports of rain over Texas and Oklahoma, and also in Mississippi and Tennessee. On the decline, Liverpool and trade buying orders absorbed the contracts and a rally followed, with the market selling up to above the levels reached at Saturday's close.

During the morning session the market was quiet. Following the early decline the market moved upward and closing prices recorded net gains of 55 points for October, 50 for February, 45 for March and May, and 40 for December.

The market closed barely steady.

SURPLUS TAX DUE THURSDAY

Corporations Warned to Make Remittances on Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The Commissioner of Internal Revenue issued a warning today that under the War Revenue act returns for the 10 per cent. tax on undistributed surplus must be made not later than next Thursday, Aug. 29. This applies to corporations whose fiscal year terminates with Dec. 31, 1917.

Under Treasury Department regulations it is held that returns must be made within sixty days after the expiration of six months following the end of the business year. Many corporations have construed the ruling to mean they have two calendar months instead of sixty days.

The Internal Revenue Bureau will regard Aug. 29 as the last day of grace rather than the 31st. The penalty for failure to file returns on the day named is 50 per cent. of the amount of the tax.

The revenue act imposes a tax of 10 per cent. on all undistributed surplus remaining after six months following the end of the business year. It is provided, however, that this tax shall not apply to whatever portion of such surplus may be actually invested and employed in the business or retained for employment in the reasonable requirements of the business or may be invested in the obligations of the United States after Sept. 1, 1917.

Protecting Prosperity

The present condition of prosperity is perilous. None who are familiar with the past can doubt it. The reaction will be proportionate to the present inflation.

At such a time as this, American Credit Insurance furnishes a bulwark of safety to manufacturers and wholesalers, against the uncertainties of trade. It assures, under policies of unusual clearness and liberality, against excessive losses through sudden mishaps—against temporary or prolonged reaction through falling prices or any other cause.

The American's Unlimited Policy not only insures against abnormal credit losses; it serves to prevent losses. It provides for the collection of all covered accounts not over 45 days past due, or the loss is provable under the bond.

Such service is of tremendous protective value, not only to the individual business man, but to the whole community as well. The full particulars will gladly be sent free to any manufacturer or wholesaler upon request.

UNION OF CAR MEN SEEKS FEDERAL AID

Counsel Sends Message Complaining of Discharges for Joining Organization.

OFFICIALS DENY DELAYS

Shifts Made from Other Divisions to Bolster Up Service Below the Harlem River.

Louis Fridiger, counsel for the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, sent a telegram to the War Labor Board at Washington yesterday afternoon in which he set forth the grievance of the motormen and conductors of the Third Avenue Railway system who voted to "suspend work" on last Friday night. The message was sent to W. Jett Lauck, Secretary of the National War Labor Board, and read as follows:

"The Third Avenue Railroad Company has discharged 100 motormen and conductors for organizing and wearing union buttons. The officials stated at the time that all men wearing buttons or joining union would be discharged. As a result, over 75 per cent. of the men are off the cars, practically crippling road. Spreading to other parts of the system. Men are desirous of avoiding complete tieup."

Superintendent George J. Murphy of the Third Avenue Company said yesterday that the cars were running on the normal schedule and that the majority of the men felt they had no grievance against the management of the company.

"Some of the men were influenced," he said, "by agitators who are trying to make trouble, but we do not expect any open rupture. The police are in charge of the barns, but there is little fear of violence. I hope that the men who have walked out will soon see the error of their ways and come back."

All cars on the Bronx division were running yesterday and Police Inspector Walsh said that no disorders had been reported beyond the arrest of a disturber at a meeting of car men yesterday morning at Curtin's Hall, Third Avenue and 166th Street.

Officials of the company said that men had been shifted from other divisions to bolster up the service below the Harlem River, the region thus far affected by the strike, and one of them added that the most strenuous measures would be employed to maintain the normal headway. This official said the lines were being run "near the schedule," but admitted that cars running on Third Avenue were far behind schedule during the rush hours, and at times were operating on a thirty-minute headway.

1,300 SHIPWORKERS QUIT.

Seattle Employes Demand More Pay —Strikes at Other War Plants.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 26.—The plant of the Pacific Coast Steel Company, engaged on contracts for the Emergency Fleet Corporation, was closed today as a result of a strike of nearly the entire force of 1,300 workmen, after the company and unions involved failed to agree on new working contracts. Officials of the company said wage demands amount to 68 per cent. above last year's pay.

The workers said they ask only the same wages and working conditions enjoyed by all other metal trades here doing Government work. The War Labor Board probably will be asked to settle the strike.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Aug. 26.—Two thousand plumbers who quit work on Government construction here last week were still out today, insisting upon a wage increase from 75 to 87½ cents an hour. The Government has agreed to their demands for double time after 4 P. M. five days a week and after 11 A. M. on Saturdays and Sundays.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Demands made by structural ironworkers who quit work on Friday for an increase from 80 cents to $1 an hour were rejected by employers today after information had been received that 80 cents was the rate prevailing in Buffalo and 75 cents the rate paid in Syracuse. Work on an addition to one factory engaged in munitions work is being delayed by the strike.

HEARST SUES FOR LOSSES.

Asks $1,400,000 Damages Because Mt. Vernon Bars His Papers.

MOUNT VERNON, Aug. 26.—The Star Publishing Company today filed suits against fourteen city officials, including Mayor Edward F. Brush, the ten Aldermen, the Police Commissioner, Corporation Counsel, and Chief of Police, for $100,000 damages each, arising from the recent city ordinance barring the sale of the Hearst papers. The complaint asserts that the city officers are "unlawfully contriving and intending to hinder and prevent plaintiff from carrying on its lawful trade."

It is said that the Star Publishing Company has asked Corporation Counsel Esser to make an arrest for the violation of the ordinance forbidding the sale of the banned papers so that it can be tested on habeas corpus proceedings. Mayor Brush and several others are away, and it is expected no date will be fixed for the test case until all defendants are served.

260,000 GERMANS LISTED.

Total of Unnaturalized Males Announced in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—About 260,000 unnaturalized male Germans live in the United States and have registered with police and postmasters under the enemy alien regulations, the Department of Justice reported today.

The registration for males was held in January, and a few additional Germans are being recorded from time to time. Reports of the registration of German women more than two months ago have not yet been fully tabulated, but it is believed that less than 200,000 enrolled.

These figures do not include the interned Germans, whose number never has been made public.

WELFARE BOARD APPEALS.

Wants Men Up to 55 Years Old to Aid Those in the Army.

Four hundred workers for home and overseas duty are needed by the Jewish Welfare Board, according to an appeal for recruits sent out over the country yesterday. The call is for men between the ages of 36 and 55 years, who are in good health—men of magnetic personality, executive ability, experience, and broad human sympathy.

A good Jewish and secular education, though desirable, is not absolutely essential, the appeal says. It calls for "men of ideas and ideals, who stand ready to give their all in this great world struggle."

GERMAN TROOPS DOWNCAST

Believe There Will Be No More Offensives, Prisoner Says.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE VESLE, Aug. 25, (Associated Press.)—German soldiers believe that Germany is not planning any more offensives because of the man power shortage, according to one of a party of seven of a German patrol captured by the Americans early Sunday east of Fismes.

The soldier, who was a former bank employe and the owner of a Berlin restaurant, said the soldiers no longer had any enthusiasm for war. Most of those with whom he came in contact believed the war would end soon.

The prisoner had been fighting three years and declared he was thoroughly tired of it. He said the soldiers understood that the German losses in the recent allied offensives had been very great. These reports were credited by the soldiers and were having a demoralizing effect. He said he knew of one division of 15,000 which had been reduced to fewer than 1,000. He did not know what became of the men.

Plenty of Germans, he added, would desert and surrender if they had the opportunity. Many of them were constantly watching for a chance to give themselves up to the Americans. Trouble had been threatened in the German munition plants, and the army leaders were tightening conditions there. The prisoner said the rules governing munition workers were more strict now than ever.

Germany, he declared, had plenty of ammunition, but the man-power question and the actual entry of American troops into the fighting were worrying the military leaders.

Naval Men Killed in Seaplane.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Dale Vern Campbell, Portland, Ore., and Lester Achan Barnett, Mount Pleasant, Tenn., Navy Quartermasters, were killed Aug. 22 in a seaplane accident in French waters. The accident was reported to the Navy Department today without details. Campbell's body was not recovered.

Expect Early Reorders.

Manufacturers of women's coats and suits in this city are of the opinion that reorders for Fall garments will begin to come in this year much earlier than in former seasons. It was pointed out by one authority in the local trade that the higher prices now prevailing exhausted the retailer's purchasing power before he had secured the usual volume of merchandise. Necessarily, then, with a more limited stock, retailers will find their lines working out very soon after the Fall season sets in, and they will be compelled to come back to market early for duplications in order to keep their stocks intact.

Fall Trade in Hardware.

Hardware buying for Fall is increasing somewhat in activity. It is said that there is a tendency, evident chiefly among the larger buyers, to go back to the normal method of anticipating requirements further into the future. Hand-to-mouth purchasing is still being done, however, among the smaller merchants, and opinion in the trade is that this condition will continue for some time. It is pointed out that the higher prices now pervailing make it impossible for the merchant with small working capital to order in very large quantities.

Surgical Instruments Sought.

South America is reported to be actively seeking surgical instruments made in the United States. One large wholesaler seen in this city yesterday said that he is called on almost every day by prominent South American buyers who want supplies in quite large quantities. As a rule, however, not more than two-thirds of the Southern buyers' needs can be supplied. While this is due partly to a shortage in this country created by the huge Government demands, it is chiefly the result of American manufacturers not turning out the type of instruments wanted.

Gray Goods Demand Fair.

A fairly snappy demand for gray goods was visible in this market yesterday, not a little of the business being done by second hands. Among the business put through from this source were spot and September-October shipments of 39-inch 68-72s at 19 cents and August and September deliveries of 38½-inch 64-60s at 16¼ cents. First hands did quite a little business on low-count bandage cloths, including 38½-inch 44-40s at 10¼ cents. They also sold 5.50-yard sheetings at 13½ cents. Orders for nearby deliveries of sateens, twills, &c., were also taken at Government prices.

Jobbers Have Dress Goods.

Though the mills are not offering any dress goods either for Fall or for Spring, coat and suit manufacturers in need of materials are finding a fair assortment of goods for both these seasons in the hands of jobbers. Prices, of course, are above what they would be were the goods bought direct from the mills, but then it is felt that expensive supplies are better than no supplies at all. According to one manufacturer, he finds that jobbers have a better assortment of serges than of anything else. He attributes this not to a greater demand for the other materials, but to a policy of the jobbers and the mills of going in more heavily for serges because they are staple.

Money Is Much in Demand.

That more than one manufacturer in this city is having trouble in financing his business this season, especially in the men's and women's garment trade, is evidenced by the number of requests being made for anticipated payments for merchandise purchased by retailers. One of the largest buyers in the country said yesterday that never had he received so many requests of this kind. Most of them, he said, came from the smaller garment makers and were due to the sharp terms on which sellers of fabrics are doing business these days. Often the firms with which the retailer in question deals submit inducements for quick payment that make it very much worth while for him to "come across" at once.

Retail Business Is Good.

That retail business in many of the cities and towns of the West—Far, South, and Middle—is not suffering from America's entry into the war is shown by the increased sales recorded by the J. C. Penney Company, Inc., in the first seven months of this year, as compared with a similar period last year. The Penney Company operates 197 stores in twenty-five States, and its sales up to Aug. 1 of this year totaled more than $9,600,000, or an increase of about 40 per cent. over comparative sales for 1917. While some of this gain is due to the higher cost of merchandise, the bulk of it has resulted from increased patronage of the stores. The company is not curtailing its Fall purchases. Already it has placed initial orders for about $1,000,0000 worth of ready-to-wear garments for women, as well as having spent well over $1,300,000 for men's and boys' clothing, hats, and caps. Orders for men's ties for Fall delivery alone total nearly $71,500. Duplicate orders, especially for women's wear, will swell these totals considerably before the season is over.

CUBA SEEKS SHOES HERE.

Proposes Government Sale to Cut High Prices of Dealers.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Aug. 26.—Pedro Osorio, Secretary of the Cuban Food Administration Board, has been selected by President Menocal to proceed to Washington to confer with the American Food Administrator in an endeavor to arrange for the purchase of a cheap make of shoes to be sold here by the Government on account of the exorbitant prices charged by dealers.

The Italian Minister has notified President Menocal that the Italian Government has decorated him with the War Cross of San Mauricio and San Lorenzo.

Plan to End Profiteering.

According to information that has reached this market, the State Council of Defense for Arizona is endeavoring to end alleged profiteering by retailers in that State by recommending that on and after Oct. 1 these merchants show the wholesale prices they have paid for their goods. These prices may either be plainly marked on each article or may be listed, the list to be hung in a prominent place in the store. So far as could be learned here yesterday the wholesale figures on the goods must not represent the "landed" cost or cost plus "overhead," but the prices actually paid for the merchandise in the market in which it was purchased.

Light Hat Facings Not Popular.

Though some of the local millinery wholesalers are showing Fall models with light facings of panne velvet or velvet, hats of this type are not popular at the moment. It is impossible at this time, according to a trade authority, to predict whether they will find favor in "dress" models later on. Up to the present time, hats in taupe, brown, sand, beaver, black, and navy have sold best. Henna, a new shade from Paris, is expected to find more or less favor, for, being a reddish brown, it makes a good combination with brown, navy or black. Among the favored color combinations now are sand with brown, taupe with peacock blue, and navy with sand or beaver.

"What Do You Mean By It?"

The above inquiry refers to the oft-repeated phrase in my advertising—"My contract is non-binding."

The whole thing in a nutshell is this: Those who avail themselves of my funds are not tied up to a time contract. They quit when they please. My terms are reasonable and there is no "red tape." Strictest confidence. Tel. "Chelsea 327."

And turning the scrap into a week's net profit of $5,805.64.

This is one form which the conservation idea has taken in the shipyards of Pusey & Jones Company, Gloucester City, N. J.

How easily and quickly this surprising result has been obtained is explained in the current issue of The Annalist.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Operators Buy West Sixteenth Street Lofts—Y. M. C. A. Takes More Space.

A loft building in the old downtown shopping district was bought by operators yesterday for a reported price of about $265,000. Hugh E. O'Reilly sold to the Nason Realty Company, Max N. Natanson, President, the twelve-story mercantile structure at 42 to 47 West Sixteenth Street, on a plot 65 by 22. Several weeks ago the buildings were damaged by fire. They will be altered by the new owners.

Y. M. C. A. Needs More Space.

In order to provide for increased war activities, the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. which leased seven floors in the Equitable Trust Building at Madison Avenue and Forty-fifth Street last January, has practically completed negotiations for the leasing of about 12,000 additional square feet on the fourth and fifth floors of the newly altered building at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street, formerly the Hotel Renaissance. The property is owned by William Ziegler, Jr. The lease is understood to call for a rental of about $36,000 a year for a three and a half year term.

The Bronx Market.

Barry Aronson, Inc., resold to William Jones, the two-story frame dwelling at 2,523 Sedgwick Avenue, on a plot 37.7 by 85, near Bailey Avenue.

The Benenson Realty Company resold 838 East 137th Street, a five-story flat on a plot 27 by 100, near Alexander Avenue.

Brooklyn.

C. L. Livingston sold to a client of Charles E. Rickerson, the three-story dwelling at 902 Union Street, near Prospect Park West.

Long Island.

Frederick C. Gilsey bought from Perle M. De Ford, the dwelling and garage at the northwest corner of Beverly Road and Netherwood Drive, at Great Neck. I. G. Wolf was the broker.

Westchester County.

The Scarsdale Estates Organization sold for Arthur P. Vermilya, his house on Walworth Avenue, in the Greenacres section of Scarsdale, N. Y., to Earl M. Wilson of Kew Gardens, L. I.

Plan Cranford Development.

Lincoln Graffin of Montclair, N. J., sold to William S. Hammond and associates of Chicago, an acreage tract near Cranford, N. J., for residential development; also a large tract in the new industrial zone of Bergen County. The selling price of the combined properties was $74,000.

Commercial Leases

Pease & Elliman leased for Tucker, Speyers & Co. as agents the store and basement in 743 Fifth Avenue, between Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth Streets, to Haas Soeurs, milliners, now at 648 Madison Avenue.

Thomas J. O'Reilly leased the store and basement at 140 Sixth Avenue to E. L. Spellman & Co.

Cyclonic depressions are central over the mouth of the St. Lawrence River and in the Canadian Northwest, and pressure is high in the upper lake region. The area of rainfall in the last twenty-four hours has increased somewhat and comprises the East Gulf Coast, Tennessee, and the Ohio Valley, and scattered rains have fallen in the Middle Atlantic States.

A woman buying ships and railroad equipment for France

WOMEN
Bank Managers
in England

The London City and Midland Bank was the first to promote a woman as manager of one of its branches. Of its 3,000 employees today, 2,600 are women.

In England, 278,000 women have directly replaced men in commerce.

> "IT is the nation with the best women that's going to win this war."

The nations today are counting their woman-brain-power. Will it hold the lines behind the men? Never before has such a startling call rung out—women wanted, to keep their countries' commerce going! Women in thousands to shoulder important financial responsibilities!

It is perhaps the one gap of which an over-burdened world would have said despairingly: "Here women cannot help. They have never had the training."

But look! A woman's business sense, a woman's business enterprise, is helping France to keep her transportation lines open for communication with the front!

Cecile Bornozi, railway woman of France, holds a special commission from her country. Already she has bought a million dollars' worth of railway rolling stock, had it shipped across the Channel, and rented it to her Government. She buys the fire-brick with which France is rebuilding her demolished factory furnaces. She buys the very ships for transporting it!

How women got the training

Mlle. Sanua, one of France's leading business women, applied to the Department of State for a School of Commerce for Women. "After all, Mademoiselle, is a woman's brain really capable for commerce?" the Minister of Commerce asked wearily.

"Train it. Then try it," she insisted.

So Paris got her School where the jeunes filles of today study commercial law, monetary systems, banking, merchandising.

Undaunted, they lay aside their workbags, and take up the studies which will enable them to fill the places of fathers, husbands, brothers in maintaining France's commerce—now, and in that rebuilding "after the war" when they will perhaps be needed even more.

Thousands of women in banking

It is the same in England. England has her women holding high government offices—her women controlling large enterprises—her Lady Mackworth, assuming complete charge of her father's, Lord Rhonda's, vast coal and shipping interests—her women bank managers, women accountants.

Thousands upon thousands of English women promptly, quietly took hold with an efficiency, a breadth of grasp which has won men's admiration.

New York's Schools of Finance for Women

Opened at Wall Street's request, the "Financial Center for Women," under the direction of Elizabeth Wylie, is training women in banking, investment, accountancy and managerial positions. Already it has placed young women in responsible positions in leading New York banks.

New York University, in order to meet the new business conditions caused by our entrance into the war, opened to women 142 courses in Commerce, Accounts and Finance.

One New York bank has its own training course for women. Since the war, this bank has already engaged nearly 500 women.

Until their countries' need aroused them, these women had been unacquainted with the very terms of banking—as unfamiliar with "stop payments," "certified checks," and a host of mysterious terms of "the street," as any man is with the language of frills and chiffons!

But now!—forty-two thousand women in finance and banking alone! Petticoats in London's financial district! Petticoats in the innermost recesses of the Bank of England itself—where for hundreds of years before no woman's foot had ever trod!

Wresting the Toy Business from Germany

Mlle. Sanua, organizer of Paris's School of Commerce, organized also the Federation of French Toy Makers, which she intends shall wrest the world's toy trade from Germany.

Through her efforts, French women are receiving the commercial training which already has enabled thousands of them to take men's places in banking and commerce.

The call to American women

Months ago, Pictorial Review told this stirring story—told it along with the inspiring news of America's call for women trained in commerce—of American Schools of Commerce now open to women.

Because Pictorial Review really believes in women, it has never been afraid to come forward and advocate a broader usefulness and wider interests for women.

Woman suffrage, direct representation of Women's Labor in the Government, more power and permanency for the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defence—these are some of the causes Pictorial Review has been the first to advocate editorially.

In every sphere of life, in the home and out of it, these big throbbing Woman-questions that Pictorial Review discusses are the things that are interesting American women.
